Nixon to Retain Power Over Wage-Price Board

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. Treasury Secretary John Connally said today the government will retain final authority over wage and price decisions made by the new boards created by President Nixon to oversee economic controls when the wage-price freeze ends.

At a nationwide radio and television news conference,

Connally appealed to labor to co-operate with Nixon's "Phase II" operations announced Thursday night. He said the fight against inflation would be "extremely difficult" without labor's participation.

But on the sticky point of whether the 15-member pay board composed equally of representatives of labor, management and the public, will have final authority over wage decisions, Connally said it would not.

IN PICTURE

"The government is going to continue to be in the picture," he said.

Labor has withheld its endorsement of Nixon's program on that very point. It wants the pay board to have total authority over what size pay increases will be allowed U.S. workers during the period the government will seek to cut the rate of inflation in half, down to two to three per cent by the end of 1972.

Connally said he couldn't be sure when the 10-per-cent surcharge on imports might be lifted.

"We want our balance of payments improved. The only way they can be improved, in a sense, is to the detriment of other nations. Other nations have to give up something in order for us to gain something," he said.

FRAMEWORK

Nixon laid out the board framework of his program before the American people, but he passed along to the new citizens' board the key decisions on the size of permissible wage and price increases.

It may be as long as five weeks before workers, businessmen and consumers get answers to the questions that concern them most: "How much will wages increase?" and "What will happen to prices?"

The boards have until Nov. 13 — when the wage-price freeze expires — to lay down guidelines for pay and price increases. Administration officials said the membership of the boards would be announced in a few days.

UNTIL NOV. 13

The wage-price freeze, as previously announced, remains in effect until Nov. 13.

"The wage-price freeze has been remarkably successful," Nixon said. "The primary credit for the success of this first step on the fight against rising prices belongs to you, it belongs to the American people. It is you who have shown a willingness to co-operate in the campaign against inflation."

Nixon said profits would not be controlled except for "windfall" profits resulting

BENNETT INVITES KOSYGIN TO VICTORIA

Premier Bennett said Thursday he will invite Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin to come to Victoria as part of his visit to Canada this month.

Bennett said the invitation will be made through proper diplomatic channels and that he hopes Kosygin will accept his invitation.

Kosygin will be in Vancouver on Oct. 22 and 23.

More U.K. Troops Sent to Ireland

LONDON (CP) — After a six-hour meeting with Ulster's Premier Brian Faulkner Thursday, British Prime Minister Edward Heath announced that three new battalions will join the 12,000 British troops already stationed in Ulster.

NEWS BRIEFS

Rock Hurdled

AMSTERDAM (UPI) — An unidentified man today smashed the windshield of Japanese Emperor Hirohito's car with an object, probably a rock, as the emperor and empress drove through the streets of Amsterdam.

Firing Blasted

REGINA (CP) — Marjorie Gordon was unjustly and unlawfully dismissed from her teaching position at Moosomin high school, Don Keith, a Saskatchewan Teachers' Federation officer, said today. Mrs. Gordon was fired Monday for "gross misconduct" in allowing her students to read a copy of the Georgian Straight, a Vancouver underground newspaper.

SAHOTEURS

Meanwhile in Belfast saho-teurs blew up a reservoir, sending one-million gallons of water gushing over the streets of the city which is already suffering a serious water shortage. Gunmen marched into the reservoir's adjacent pumping station, ordered staff out and then planted explosives at each of the main pumps and the reservoir wall.

Also in Belfast a British marksman reported shooting a sniper off a roof but was unable to confirm it because rioters prevented troops from reaching him.

The attorney general made no firm comment on future disciplinary action Thursday when he released the report on the riot.

SOME POLICE FACE DISCIPLINARY ACTION

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Tom Campbell today said there would be disciplinary action against individual police officers guilty of using excessive force in the Gastown riot last Aug. 7.

But he said the first move is up to Attorney-General Leslie Peterson.

"He can do something himself or he can pass it on to us (Vancouver Police Commission) to act," the mayor said. Peterson was not immediately available for comment.

The attorney general made no firm comment on future disciplinary action Thursday when he released the report on the riot.

Don't Dam Fraser, Says Study

A federal study released Thursday appears to rule out the possibility that Ottawa would ever approve the proposed Moran Dam on the Fraser River.

Highlights of the study are warnings that the dam will halve the Fraser's salmon fisheries and is unnecessary for flood control purposes.

The study contradicts statements made two weeks ago by Recreation and Conservation Minister Ken Kiernan who said Moran Dam may have to be built to prevent Fraser Valley flooding.

The B.C. Energy Board also is studying the proposed dam as part of an over-all survey of provincial power needs to 1985. Its report is scheduled for release in February, 1972.

Nuclear Power Ruled Out

Critics of the Moran proposal charge that the government already has decided to build the dam because the energy board was not permitted to study possibilities of thermal power generation from sources such as coal and natural gas.

Premier Bennett has ruled out nuclear power as long as he is in office, so critics of Moran say he has set his vision on hydroelectricity.

Premier Bennett had no direct comment on the report except to repeat his statement that he would approve the Moran Dam only if fisheries would not be hurt by it. See earlier story on Page 21.

Federal Environment Minister Jack Davis has called the 700 to 800-foot dam proposal a "monstrosity" which would halve the value of the Fraser's salmon fisheries.

The report, prepared by technical staff of the federal fisheries service and the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission, says the dam would cause a total yearly loss of $24 million to salmon fisheries.

Fishing Loss $71 Million

Annual loss of potential salmon production would be $71 million. Fisheries above and below the dam would be impaired, and the report says there is no precedent for passing salmon over a dam as high as the Moran would be.

Fraser River sockeye accounted for 46 per cent of the total B.C. sockeye catch between 1963-69, says the report. About 44 per cent of the Fraser's sockeye catch originates above the dam's site, 75 miles north of Lillooet in the Moran Canyon. Hatcheries and artificial spawning channels could not compensate for salmon losses, the report continues, because sockeye spend one year in a lake adjacent to spawning channels before migrating to sea.

Most of the salmon rearing capacity of the Fraser is upstream from Moran Canyon with many lakes capable of major increases in Sockeye stock.

Truck Line for Fish

The only way to get migrating salmon beyond the reservoir to the sea would be to capture the fish before entering the dam and truck or pipe them to the river below.

This, says the report, would be too expensive. The dam would halt siltation of the Fraser delta, ruining the system of marshes which house waterfowl.

A total of 10 million tons of sediment a year flows into Georgia Strait from the Fraser. Removal of sediment will cause erosion in the Delta, says the report.

Flood control can be more cheaply obtained from a dyke system downstream from Moran Canyon with the help of flood storage reservoir. The report says this could be done at an estimated cost of $4.9 million.

A dyking system without accessory flood storage facilities is being built for $30 million with a capacity to withstand water levels two feet higher than the levels observed in the 1948 and 1954 floods.

Nemetz Hearings Likely Next Week

Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz is expected to open hearings next week to settle the nine-month dispute between B.C. Hydro and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 258.

The Appeal Court judge agreed to resume his role as arbitrator Thursday after an appeal by Premier Bennett, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson and Labor Minister James Chabot. He had withdrawn in August because of his wife's illness.

More than 2,000 electrical workers were back on the job today after their four-day strike, as well as 2,100 other B.C. Hydro employees who did not go to work for three days because of picketing.

No PROBLEMS — During the four-day strike, electricity and gas service was maintained by non-union supervisors. No serious problems were reported. Picketing stopped his service in Victoria Tuesday.

The IBEW said it had received assurances from Chabot that "no legal action would be taken against members and officers of the union and other B.C. Federation of Labor affiliates."

Chabot had branded the four-day strike illegal because the cabinet had passed a back-to-work order last summer during an 11-day strike. Part of the settlement of the 11-day strike was acceptance by both sides of Nemetz as arbitrator. After Nemetz withdrew, both sides could not agree on a replacement to make a binding decision on the dispute.

RUSSIANS RETALIATE; 18 OUSTED

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union today ordered 18 British diplomats and businessmen expelled or banned from returning to Soviet soil in retaliation for Britain's ouster of 103 Soviet officials, an embassy spokesman said.

The British ambassador told the Soviet officials he regarded their action as unjustified.

The list and other details of the meeting were relayed to the British foreign office in London.

Visits of high-ranking Soviet officials to England have been cancelled.

Grains Bill Faces Tuesday Deadline

OTTAWA (CP) — The stormy career of the Prairie farm income stabilization bill appears to be nearing its end, with survival depending on a change of heart by either the government or opposition parties.

Thursday, Liberal House Leader Allan Rock set Tuesday as the deadline for a solution to the Commons deadlock. If opposition parties do not agree to pass the bill next week, the government will drop it.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said at a news conference today that his party is prepared to let the bill come to a quick vote provided the legislation be enacted in two sittings.

The first stage would be immediate enactment of the clauses dealing with payments to western farmers to compensate them for replacement of existing plans.

Other parts of the bill would be proclaimed only after further study and possible amendment. This stage of enactment would be by Commons resolution after debate.

UNDER CONSIDERATION

Mr. Stanfield said his proposal has been put before a meeting of party House leaders and is being considered by the other three parties.

Mr. Stanfield said Manpower Minister Otto Lang, responsible for the Canadian wheat board, has shown little disposition to be helpful or conciliatory.

He said he hopes MacEachen would bring some common sense to government deliberations on the Conservative suggestion.

Mr. Stanfield said that if the government is interested only in withdrawal of the bill, it should say so.

Dockers Returning

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dock union leader Harry Bridges has ordered 15,000 West Coast longshoremen back to work Saturday in compliance with a court order obtained after President Nixon invoked the Taft-Hartley Act.

A strike by 45,000 dock workers in East Coast and most Gulf ports entered its second week today and spread Thursday to Puerto Rico.

Also going into its second week today was a soft-coal strike by more than 100,000 members of the United Mine Workers as negotiations continued in Washington, D.C. The 100-day West Coast strike, the longest walkout on Pacific docks in history, has cost an estimated $1.70 billion since it began July 1. Losses in the East Coast and Gulf walkouts are estimated at $17 million daily.

No Price Curbs For Canada...Yet

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson said today it would not be appropriate to impose wage and price controls in Canada "at the present time."

He told reporters, however, that such controls could become necessary if inflation became worse.

He said he is worried by the recent trend of price increases.

The minister was commenting mainly on President Nixon's economic statement Thursday night.

In the Commons, Prime Minister Trudeau said the provinces would be consulted if controls were to be imposed.

He was replying to Marcel Lambert, Conservative financial spokesman, who said controls similar to those in the U.S. may have to be considered.

A federal-provincial economic conference is scheduled for Ottawa Dec. 8-9.

Mr. Trudeau reiterated Thursday's statement by Revenue Minister Herb Gray that the government is willing to negotiate with the United States on changes in the U.S.-Canada auto pact, but not as a bargaining counter to win removal of the U.S. import surcharge.

He also repeated the government's stand that talks with the U.S. on energy resources cannot go on now.

The government "can't do all things at all times," Mr. Trudeau said.

Officials were too busy with other economic problems to talk about energy.

In replies to Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, the prime minister said negotiations on the auto pact were under way before the announcement Aug. 15 by President Nixon of the 10-per-cent surcharge on imports.

AND NOW... SEA TRAVEL WAR

BRUSSELS (AP) — With airlines cutting transatlantic fares sharply, steamship lines got the green light today to join the competition.

The Atlantic Passenger Steamship Conference announced it would "grant to lines greater flexibility in meeting outside competition."

Richard Duffy, secretary-general of the conference, told a reporter he would "not be surprised" to see some new rates announced soon.

What could become a rate war was set off when the Cunard line, which runs the Queen Elizabeth 2, withdrew from the conference and announced new low fares. Duffy would not say how great the new "flexibility" would be, but it was enough to prevent any further withdrawals among the 13 lines remaining in the conference.

Cunard announced 12-day tourist-class trips, round trip, Southampton to New York, for $362. The price will go into effect Oct. 22. The present minimum official roundtrip fare is $634.

Airlines have announced transatlantic trips at under $200, to begin Feb. 1.

from the economic policy itself. He said the pay commission would require businesses to cut prices if they run up "exorbitant" profits because of controls on the wages of their employees and the cost of their supplies.

CONCESSION

The labor-management-public make-up of the pay board was a concession to organized labor which demanded such a tripartite body.

But the AFL-CIO charged a "double-cross" over the provision giving the administration veto power over decisions. Union sources said AFL-CIO president George Meany withdrew his offer to serve as a labor member of the pay board after hearing Nixon's address.

Nixon acted under the authority granted to him by the Economic Stabilization Act which expires April 30. He asked Congress to extend the law for a year.

RE-WRITE ACT

There may be a congressional fight over the legislation. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of the senate-house economic committee, has served notice he will try to rewrite the act to limit the president's power.

In addition to the pay and price bodies, Nixon established a dividend committee, headed by U.S. federal reserve chairman Arthur Burns, to supervise interest rates and corporate dividends. Officials said, however, that the committee should have little to do because interest rates have declined recently and almost all corporations have complied with Nixon's request to avoid increases in dividends.

Parking 'Saver'

An electronic device now is available to monthly parkers at the new Johnson Street parking garage which permits a driver to enter and leave without stopping.

Victoria's traffic engineer Dave Campbell said the main feature of the device is its "time-saving" capacity, enabling regular parkers to move in and out of the garage at will, thus causing less congestion at the entrance.

The device is small and battery-operated. It is attached to the outside of the car and it causes the gate at the entrance of the garage to open when the car is about 20 feet away.

They are available from the city hall to monthly parkers for a $10 deposit which will be refunded on return.

Trudeau Apologizes

Prime Minister Trudeau's office has apologized to Premier Bennett for any suggestion that B.C. is to blame for delays in establishing an early date for a federal-provincial conference on unemployment.

The apology came Thursday from Henry Davis, secretary of the constitutional conference, who told deputy to the premier Laurie Wallace: "The prime minister... has instructed me to express to you, and through you to Prime Minister Bennett, his regret if what he said in the House has been interpreted as implying that Mr. Bennett has any responsibility for the difficulty in regards dates for the conference."

B.C. previously had agreed to attend the conference tentatively scheduled for Dec. 6-8. Bennett now has proposed the conference be held Nov. 15-17 or as "early as possible." (See Page 21.)

PROTESTER FELS HIROHITO TREE

LONDON (AP) — Emperor Hirohito's visit to Britain was marred Thursday by a protester who chopped down a tree planted by the Japanese monarch.

The Japanese cryptomeria, a 12-foot Christmas-type tree planted Wednesday by Hirohito in Kew Botanical Gardens, was found cut to the ground beside a sign saying: "They did not die in vain."

Police detained a 35-year-old man for questioning. His identity was not disclosed.

The tree-chopping incident was the most striking protest so far in the three-day imperial visit, deplored by many British military veterans and survivors of Japanese Second World War prison camps.

Scotland Yard said a pint of a powerful chemical solution — sodium chlorate — had also been poured onto the base of the tree to kill the roots.

Oak Bay Group Growing Fast

Oak Bay's fledgling citizens' watchdog committee, formed in June of this year and expanded twice since, has again broadened its base and may now be eyeing the municipal political arena.

The group, originally organized as the Orchard Avenue Group, enlarged itself shortly after to become the Newport Neighborhood Group. Most recently it has expanded to include the Windsor Park Neighborhood Group, and Thursday night the membership voted to enlarge again, this time to encompass the entire municipality.

KEY PART

Architect Ben Levinson, vice-chairman of the organization, said following Thursday night's meeting the group's primary objective "is to have the character of Oak Bay remain as it is today, rather than lose it by whatever means there are to lose it." Opposition to high-rise projects in the municipality is a key part of the group's platform, he admitted, but "there's more to it than just that," he said. Widening of roads, construction of any projects which overpower the natural surroundings will also be opposed, he said.

GRAIN

tire bill failing passage Tuesday, it is not sincere about helping western agriculture.

Fourteen proposed amendments remain to be debated before the Commons can give final approval to the bill. That could take several weeks at the rate the Commons was moving before the government ultimatum.

Both Conservatives and New Democrats have been demanding amendments or concessions the government has declared unacceptable.

Party house leaders met on the bill Thursday afternoon, but no agreement was reached. They were to meet again after consulting their respective parties.

SUBMITTED IN APRIL

The bill has been before the Commons since April 29. It has taken up all or part of nine sitting days, six of them since the Commons returned Sept. 7 from its summer recess.

During the six days of debate, the Commons disposed of two amendments and a sub-amendment. The stabilization fund proposals were unveiled in a white paper Oct. 29, 1970.

Lang told reporters the government is always willing to listen to suggestions for technical improvements in the bill, but has made up its mind on the amount of money it will spend.

Most opposition suggestions, he said, "are simply suggestions for either unworkable things or for vast amounts of money."

His statement appeared to rule out any chance of the government accepting Conservative and New Democrat proposals.

Greenpeace Challenge

VANCOUVER (CP) —

Members of the Greenpeace Amchitka protest mission hoped to challenge the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission on its own ground today.

Mrs. Dorothy Metcalfe, communications co-ordinator and wife of Greenpeace crew member Ben Metcalfe, reported today that an AEC public relations team has arrived at Sand Point, the Aleutians centre where the Greenpeace protest vessel is tied up pending its move toward Amchitka.

She said mission members, among them experts on ecology, radiation and organic chemistry, have challenged the AEC team to a public debate on the proposed nuclear test, expected to take place later this month at Amchitka.

MDs Move to Curb 'Excessive' Income

The B.C. Medical Association at the conclusion of its annual meeting in Victoria Thursday approved a formula for controlling "excessively high" incomes of a handful of doctors.

Dr. F. W. Arber of North Vancouver, chairman of the association's cost quality study committee, said that at most about 2 per cent of the province's 3,300 doctors would be affected.

The formula would first establish average potential earnings and overhead costs for each medical specialty. It then provides a margin beyond the averages to take into account variables between practices.

But where a doctor's income exceeds the average plus the margin for his specialty, it would be reviewed by a peer committee, which could then recommend to the Medical Services Commission that the doctor's earnings be reduced by a certain percentage.

MAKES PAYMENTS

The Medical Services Commission is the provincial government agency which administers payments to doctors under medicare.

At least 90 per cent of the income of nearly all doctors in the province comes from payments under medicare.

A spokesman said today that only in Newfoundland have doctors taken such a radical step to curb the highest incomes of the profession. Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, responsible for operations of the Medical Services Commission, was not available today for reaction to the doctors' move.

METHOD

There is no indication yet of how the BCMA will seek to have the formula encoded in legislation or an agreement.

Dr. H. O. L. Murray of Kamloops, chairman of the BCMA's economics committee, noted in his annual report this week that the problem of individual high earners in the profession has generated criticism of the entire profession.

Specifically, the formula proposes a doctor be allowed to exceed the average earnings in his specialty by as much as 75 per cent to compensate for such variables as efficiency, longer working hours and personal capabilities.

It would allow exceeding average overhead costs by as much as 25 per cent to compensate as far as possible for such variables as office rental and assistance, supplies and travel.

It would allow exceeding average overhead costs by as much as 25 per cent to compensate as far as possible for such variables as office rental and assistance, supplies and travel.

It would allow exceeding average overhead costs by as much as 25 per cent to compensate as far as possible for such variables as office rental and assistance, supplies and travel.

Any doctor could apply to have himself excluded from the BCMA's formula.

"The most obvious reason for exclusion would be a justifiable and unusually high overhead," said Arber. "But whatever the reasons, the individual doctor could have his case reviewed."

He said adoption of the formula by the association's general assembly was not specifically a reaction to any pressures which might have been applied by the provincial government.

Doctors' performances in hospitals have been measured for years through such means as tissue committees, which weigh the necessity for operations, he said.

But until medicare there had been no way of measuring activities outside hospitals.

In his committee's report, Arber pointed out several high incomes appeared to be produced by the volume of work performed — "a volume so high that it was difficult for this committee not to feel that quality was being sacrificed."

Stray Feathers

By HAROLD HOSFORD

Not the least of the many dividends a member of the Victoria Natural History Society receives is the society's publication The Victoria Naturalist. Appearing in my mail slot 10 times a year — every month except July and August — I find it a welcome change from the otherwise steady diet of bills and advertisements usually deposited at the Hosford door by our intrepid "postie."

GREAT VARIETY

Under the guiding hands of editor Roy Wainwright and his able assistant, Ruth Stirling, the Naturalist is a potpourri of natural history and society activities. I never know quite what to expect from it. One month will feature botany, another birds, and sometimes, such as this month, the Naturalist runs a wild gamut from sphinx moths to grizzlies with a little pelagic birdwatching thrown in for good measure.

Unlike most publications, I find myself starting at the back of this one and working forward. Why? The last page is the activity page where the doings of the society for the next month are listed. It's a good place to start, particularly if you want to schedule yourself for participation in any of the outings and meetings of the coming month.

GRIZZLY ENCOUNTER

From there, it's on to the bird reports which, this month, are highlighted by a mockingbird seen on South Perifer Island in August by Mrs. Eve Smith. This is followed by Des Belton's account of a near-tragic encounter with a grizzly at Mount Robson last summer, an account which carries a word of caution for the over-confident naturalist who thinks he "knows" bears.

Still going from back to front there's a story about Western "Forest Industries" purchase of 17 acres on Sutton Creek in the Cowichan district for a proposed "wildflower reserve." Among the plants to be protected will be a stand of the rare pink dogtooth violets, considered the finest stand in British Columbia.

Caves come in for attention in the October Naturalist too, with Barbara McIntosh's account of spelunking on Vancouver Island.

Jeremy Tatum closes, or opens, depending on where you start the production, with some remarks on hawk moths and their life history. The whole thing is topped off with an excellent cover photograph by Terese Todd of an Eyed Hawk Moth larva.

But the feature of this month's production to me at least, was an idea from Keith Taylor which should appeal to those in search of exotic wanderers for their life lists. Keith suggests that for the price of a return trip to Port Angeles on the Cobo you can see pelagic birds from as far away as Chile and Cape Horn.

PLENTY OF EVIDENCE

And he has the evidence to back up the idea. On a recent crossing Keith recorded no less than 60 fork-tailed petrels, a puffin, 3 parasitic jaegers, a Pomarine jaeger and several sooty shearwaters, pelagic wanderers from the southern hemisphere.

Keith admits that all these species can be seen, at one time or another, from Clover Point, but it often requires a lot of patient watching. The shearwaters and petrels usually work well offshore and the jaegers, while they may come inshore more frequently, can be seen to best advantage at sea.

But it is the shearwaters that stimulated my imagination. They're not rare birds in these waters by any means but their habit of staying well out to sea usually puts them out of range of most of us land-based birdwatchers.

REMOTE ISLANDS

These slender, long-winged, gull-like birds range over a vast area being equally at home along the edge of the Antarctic pack ice or among mist-shrouded Aleutians. They nest on remote islands and coastal inlets from the Falklands to Chile, New Zealand, South Australia and Tasmania.

Summer, November in the southern hemisphere, usually finds them concentrating in their favored breeding grounds where family responsibilities keep them occupied until February. Then they begin a northward migration which takes them — in the western hemisphere — up both coasts of South and North America.

They have been recorded in British Columbia waters as early as March but the majority are seen about a month or two later.

GREAT TREK

By the end of our summer, in August and September, the great trek south has begun and as the seasons reverse themselves on this old globe, the shearwaters quicken their pace to meet, once again, that November deadline.

It may be a little late now for good sooty shearwater watching, but there's always a chance you could spot a tardy traveller still testing the waters of Juan de Fuca. Even at a distance their habit of alternately flapping and gliding low over the surface on slender, stiff wings, helps in identifying these world travellers.

Inspectors Charged

BOSTON (AP) — Forty government meat inspectors in the Boston area are under indictment on charges of bribery, conspiracy and perjury in an alleged scheme to give meats better grade ratings than they deserved.

The indictments, returned Thursday in U.S. district court after an investigation which began in 1969, include a charge that one inspector took $54,500 to $70,500 in bribes.

U.S. Attorney Herbert Travers, who outlined the indictments, said there was no allegation that unwholesome meats were allowed to reach the consumer. The inspectors allegedly took bribes to put higher quality grades on meat products.

In addition to the 40 inspectors, three meat-processing companies and six company officials in the Boston area were indicted on the same or related charges.

The inspectors indicated constituted more than half of the 75 assigned to the Boston area. Massachusetts has 40 slaughter houses and 170 meat-processing plants.

Travers said new inspectors have been assigned to replace the men indicted.

Ex-Mafia Mobster Got the Job

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. (UPI) — Bebe Rebozo, President Nixon's millionaire Florida friend, awarded a $673,839 shopping centre construction job financed through a deal with a federal agency to a former Cleveland Mafia mobster, it was reported Thursday.

In a second of a series of articles entitled Roboz and a U.S. Loan: Capitalizing on Friends, the newspaper Newsday quoted Rebozo's partner in the 1968 Miami, Fla., project, realtor C. V. W. Trice Jr., as saying they shopped among "five or six" contractors for the lowest price before awarding the job to Al-fonso (Big Al) Polizzi.

"But Trice has refused to reveal any of the comparative bid figures," said Newsday, whose reporting team assigned to the series was rebuffed in attempts to interview Rebozo himself.

Polizzi was jailed in Ohio in 1943 on conviction of violation of war price controls and tax evasion. He was a star witness before the Kefauver committee in 1950, and as late as 1964 the Federal Bureau of Narcotics described him as one of the most influential members of the underworld in the United States.

(In Washington, White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler said he would not comment on the series.)

(Ziegler was asked whether there was White House concern over the stories reflected on the integrity of Rebozo. "We have absolutely no concern about the integrity of Mr. Rebozo," Ziegler said.)

According to Newsday, Rebozo was approached by the federal Small Business Administration in 1967 about building a shopping centre for refugees Cuban businessmen at the suggestion of a Rebozo friend, Thomas Butler, an official in the agency's Miami office and a stockholder in a Rebozo-controlled bank. Harold Brown, director of the SBA's lease guarantee program in Washington, accompanied Trice to New York to help obtain a $750,000 loan from Equitable Life Assurance Co.

Thomas Murray, a vice-president of Equitable, told Newsday that Trice "said that Rebozo knows Dick Nixon," but he said that carried no weight in the company's decision to grant the loan. He said Brown convinced him that since the government guaranteed the losses of the individual stores in the centre, Equitable was well protected.

Words of Wisdom

THE REPORT OF MR. JUSTICE

Dohm on the Vancouver Gas-town-riot of August 7 appears to be a reasoned and reasonable assessment of credits and debits both for the police and for the crowd that was present at Maple Tree Square.

The report sees the gathering as generally quiet and good-humored until the police charged into it to clear the streets. It notes that having filled the square for two hours without police objection, the people could reasonably assume that they were to be permitted occupancy for the evening.

It recognizes two men as the prime instigators of the gathering, and accuses them of a deliberate attempt to provoke a violent confrontation. And it asserts that this attempt would not have succeeded if the police charge had not taken place and if some members of the force had not over-reacted and used "unnecessary, unwarranted and excessive force" in clearing the streets of people who up to then had shown no violence.

One recalls occurrences in some United States cities in which much worse violence, both by police and crowds, has taken place, and similarly, various incidents in Britain in which very large crowds have been handled by police with good humor and a minimum of damage.

While giving full weight to the evil intent of the civilian instigators, the report contains what is a very serious criticism of some of the Vancouver policemen, their individual actions and their mounted manoeuvres. By implication the criticism applies to all echelons of the Vancouver force, for it involves policy, tactics and individual behavior. The force in general, like the crowd in general, has suffered from the actions of a few.

Mr. Justice Dohm's recommendations are pertinent to the Vancouver force, but they could well be studied by police forces everywhere.

They seek not only to cope with street disturbances when they occur, but also to help in avoiding the creation of emergencies which invite muscular management.

The use of only properly trained men to control crowds, a ban on the use of horses except as a last resort, the use of cameras and recordings to obtain permanent records of police action both favorable and otherwise — these and other similar proposals are designed to protect both police and public, and they should be widely implemented.

The best development of all, of course, should be the encouragement of better relations between police and public — and in this respect the mainland force might find some good lessons in the generally fine mutual regard which exists between the public and the police of Victoria and the local municipalities.

It is unfair, of course, to judge police actions without giving due regard to the provocation — and many an officer has been tested beyond reasonable endurance by the words and actions of persons determined to invoke martyrdom or just plain violence. Experienced policemen can recognize the components of a crowd — the ringleaders, their assistants, the militantly inclined persons, and the usually much larger body of people merely present for excitement or to see what may happen. To antagonize the large proportion of peaceful citizens by a show of excessive force is not only bad tactics for the moment but also bad strategy for the future.

Mr. Justice Dohm's report has this concept well to the fore. It should be read by police and public everywhere with great benefit, for these are days when the threat of violence in the streets is an increasingly common danger in many communities. And the danger is not only to people and property, but also to the democracy under which and for which we live.

Money and Power in the UN

SECRETARY-GENERAL U

Thant has informed the General Assembly that the United Nations — "man's best hope for peace" — is so nearly insolvent that it had to borrow $15 millions last month from special-purpose funds to meet staff payroll and other accounts. Unpaid regular budget assessments at the end of 1971 will exceed $65 millions with at least $33.5 millions of it uncollectable.

This is not the first occasion on which the Secretary-General has found it necessary to call the Assembly's attention to the financial predicament in which the UN finds itself. The basic cause of most of the deficit — $50 millions of it now — is attributable to assessments some members refuse to pay for peace-keeping operations with which they disagree.

The situation focuses attention on one of the hard practicalities faced by the UN. Its voting membership contains a large number of small countries unable to meet more than a minor share of the costs of operations but with the right to cast ballots on important issues. The larger, more wealthy members carry the lion's share of the costs. When one of them declines to accept a proportionate share of special peace-keeping expenses it becomes necessary to dip into trust funds and other accounts set aside for important purposes.

This is an unhappy situation as the UN faces a period of critical decisions highlighted by the drive to seat Red China and to find replacements for U Thant and the retired Dr. Ralph Bunche. Added to these considerations are reports of a new power struggle within the organization and the fear that Russia may be trying to take over senior offices in a way that could render the world organization more amenable to Moscow's dictates.

If this fear is justified — and admitting the necessity of providing funds to keep the UN going — the inevitable question arises: Who will pick up the tab if the UN falls more obviously under Russian dominance? Perhaps more immediately: Who will want to be Secretary-General if this situation arises?

Keeping the Planet Clean

THE JAPANESE COURTS could be setting precedents for other jurisdictions in the world-wide battle to combat pollution. In June a court held that a strong probability of causing harmful pollution was sufficient legal proof to convict a defendant; a recent decision has gone further to say that a factory may be closed down for investigation if there is reason to suspect that discharges from it are injurious to health.

One Japanese ministry described the recent ruling as a "step forward" in dealing with environmental problems. Not all the reaction was favorable, though. The Nippon Chemical Industrial Association described the latest decision as "very regrettable."

The common concern of mankind in checking pollution has already led to a degree of uniformity in governmental departments dealing with the environment. It would be a "step forward" indeed if regulations and decisions regarding pollution throughout the world could become a recognized body of common law applicable everywhere. After all, local pollution pollutes the planet too.

"... Food? ... how can you possibly think of food at a time like this ..."

Housing

Mr. Heide in a report in your paper claims he is going to build some 13 unit row housing with the blessings of Central Mortgage and Housing. He claims further that people can buy these for as low as $90 to $120 a month over a period of 45 to 50 years. Mr. Gagliardi says the government cannot run around buying people's homes. In effect, Mr. Gagliardi is saying it is all right if welfare people pay the exorbitant rents they are now paying for all the dirty rotten old houses in any given area. To thus subsidize the speculators in human misery is evidently all right with him.

I believe the government has a campaign on at present to provide initiative for people to get off the welfare rolls. His program lacks humanity. I believe that many people given the chance to own their own homes would regain their desire to better their lot and the desire to become even more effective members of their district would increase. After all, the whole idea of welfare is misnamed. I am convinced that it should in this enlightened age be called by its right name. In truth welfare as we know it in our society today is only sharing the wealth of our nation with those have-nots and probably shall-nevers-haves. I ask you, are we trying to build a better world or protect the greedy landlords who offer inadequate housing at Skylock prices? Let Mr. Gagliardi defend that fact of life. — Daniel F. Paine, 454 Fraser St.

From an Expert

I am writing this letter on the ferry going home to the U.S. This is about your editorial "Tip better to blow up and lose."

My comment is simply: Damned clever, these Chinese. They have all you Canadians in a lather over an underground nuclear test scheduled for four weeks away. To do this after Canada has had their diplomats here less than a year is something to marvel about.

A greater marvel is that you Canadians are only concerned about the American test. You are neither concerned nor informed about last Monday's test by the Russians. Nor have you been concerned by the open air tests by the Red Chinese themselves.

All of which is solid proof of two things. First, that the so-called split between Red China and Red Russia is all propaganda. And second, that you Canadians have swallowed it all, hook, line and sinker.

Damned clever, these Chinese. Remember, Canadians, that their population is now around one billion and will grow to five billions in the next 60 years. And you are feeding them. And their technology is already ahead of yours, being mostly supplied from Russia. — John Baker, Gridley, Calif.

The Record

To those Canadians and Americans who have not yet written President Nixon protesting the proposed Amchitka test, I would quote the following from the U.S. Congressional Record, June 4, 1971.

Start of Quotation: "One may accept without question the Atomic Energy Commission's assurances that all will go well. But all too often such forecasts have not been borne out by circumstances."

"Project Longshot, the 60 kiloton test conducted at Amchitka in 1965 was not expected to leak radio-activity for hundreds of years. But only a few months after the test, radio-activity surfaced in at least two places."

"The Atomic Energy Commission did not expect Strontium 90 to accumulate in milk, but it did."

"The Atomic Energy Commission did not expect its 1964 test in Mississippi to cause $600,000 in property damage, but it did."

"The Atomic Energy Commission did not expect its 300-kiloton test in January, 1968 in Central Nevada to rock an area as wide as Salt Lake City to the East and San Francisco to the West — but it did."

"Ten per cent of the tests at the Nevada test site have unexpectedly leaked. Less is known about the effects of a five-megaton explosion than any the Atomic Energy Commission has detonated anywhere in the U.S. Less is known about the geology of the Aleutians than has been known about any sub-surface area in which the Atomic Energy Commission has conducted experiments."

"To go ahead with the test is courting a risk of a magnitude we cannot determine. The risk is not worth taking. Our national security will not be imperilled if the test is cancelled." End of Quotation.

For the sake of your children and for children as yet unborn, we urge you to write President Nixon asking that he cancel this test. — E.S. Henderson, Chairman, Committee for the Environment, Real Estate Board of Greater Vancouver.

Grateful for Service

I would like to commend you for the article, reproduced from the New York Times "Stop shedding tears for British."

Of course one would expect a statement, such as is attributed to Dr. Wesley Hall, M.D., president of the American Medical Association, as that body had consistently fought to maintain the status quo and protect the ivory tower of uncontrolled fees and services. I know the U.S. very well and I have seen the most deplorable institutions which cater for those who cannot pay the price demanded by the AMA. A nation which permits a person to sell blood which is then resold to a needy patient for a

VACATION MORALIZING

Excursion Into the Simple Life

A MAN returns from his rustic September vacation to find his home acres surging with growth in a moist though still balmy early October. What he considered lawn is now a lush meadowland, tufted with the couch grass he had tried earlier to control, but lush and green. In the plot from which a rich vegetable crop had been harvested the boisterous weeds have assumed sovereignty. The autumn border is its perpetual joy, tall powder blue and purple Michaelmas daisies joining their deep brown cousins in company with plumes of towering goldenrod, and white and blue asters providing a suitable footstool for the enthroned loftier plants.

This is a triumph of nature still so vigorous that unseasonal violets are blooming in an assertion of spring vitality. It is also direct evidence of toil for the returning vacationer. He has worked to do, physical work to follow the labor expended on the summer place — an unremitting reward of home ownership.

Yet, on evenings when an amber sky backdrops the blue silhouette of the Olympics across the Strait and glassy water is scuffed only by a gentle breeze, there is a time for quiet contemplation of the virtues of simplicity.

Life for the ex-vacationer has been a physical process for the last few weeks. No summer cottage can endure the man-made rigours of the warm season's activities and the preparations for the winter to come without labor by its owner. And from the labor has come the balm of uncomplicated living — jobs that had to be done, that used up much of a shrinking pool of human energy and, in another marvel of nature, replaced the expenditure with a toned-up generating system that seemed to renew strength. Payment for the tasks has been made in relative peace of mind, at least for a short space.

Some external crises have come and gone during a month, almost unnoticed, their screaming proclamation muted by the singing blade of a crosscut sawing fireplace wood for the winter weekends at the lake, or drowned in the grunts of a puny human playing Sisypus with impossible boulders piled from hardpan and pushed uphill to build a wall. Ignorance of the passing show has loaned an innocence to life, expunging hurts more tormenting than the skinned knuckles and bruises of an inept workman.

Toil, which may not be ennobling, has crowded out the saucy doubts and fears of intellectual contention, has left a body, physically near exhaustion, still receptive to the serenity of the lull following summer's rush and bustle in a resort area returning to country under nature's wing. There has been occasion, sitting to recuperate by the lakeside, to see how its surface catches a bronze sheen from slash fire smoke almost imperceptible in the air, to pick out the changing leaf of random maples and poplars which are beginning to flame on the steep and sombre evergreen hillsides. There has been time to note the different tones of arrogance in the calls of ravens and hawks in wing-beating flight over the water. Time, also, to see, with modest pleasure, the increasing appearance of canoes on the lake, quietly replacing the roar of outboards, and young boys rowing boats as they troll, maybe learning the pleasure and patience of fishing and storing, unconsciously, impressions to enjoy in years to come.

Worth Preserving

Perhaps the rustic holiday has created a condition of mind worth preserving. Conceivably it has built a frame for the chores to do at home, suggesting valuable physical activity to overcome the inertia of late fall and winter, to spur effort that encourages more effort and may even set the blood flowing more vitally through the arteries. The chores have to be done. The garden needs tending up for the season of dormancy. The winter woodpile needs building — a task that calls for resilient muscle, man-handling alder from the beach to the sawhorse and pushing a reluctant buck-saw through unwilling wood.

The personal moral of September's holiday, using the word loosely, is balance between the physical and the mental. Properly applied, it could take out the division between labor and refreshment.

Helping?

Toronto Star

A host of well-meaning Canadians, supported by governments and private agencies, are trying to reach out and help alienated and rebellious youths, particularly those who take drugs. The question is whether their efforts are really helping or making matters worse.

A grimly negative answer comes from Erna Koffman of Toronto, who speaks with some authority. A registered nurse, Mrs. Koffman is the director of the Odyssey Trailer, a drug crisis centre in Yorkville. In an interview, she asserted that the drop-in centres, "rap" centres, hostels and drug treatment centres which are proliferating across Canada are actually confirming teenagers in habits of vagrancy and drug addiction.

At these centres, she points out, wandering youths can get free food, free clothing, free medical, dental and legal aid and sometimes free accommodation, for which they don't have to do any work or even make a serious effort to break the drug habit.

Mrs. Koffman's solution to the problem is simply to close down all the special new organizations and at the same time adopt a tougher policy in handing out welfare payments to these youngsters.

This may sound a drastic solution, especially in a time of widespread unemployment, but it might have a salutary effect ...

transfusion should not criticize a nation which has tried to make health care available for all and not just for those who can afford the luxury.

I have recently returned from a visit to the U.K. and while we were there one member of my family was taken seriously sick. This person was given a full examination by a very competent and compassionate doctor in a very modern public health clinic which is staffed by two doctors. She was then sent to the local hospital where she received first-class attention from three specialists. We returned to Canada, not because we had any misgivings about the competence of British doctors or nursing staff, but because Victoria is our home and we have our doctors who have looked after the family for some 22 years and consequently have a better knowledge of the sick member of our family.

In Britain we received nothing but competent and compassionate attention and care and for this I will be eternally grateful to the National Health Service. — M. P. B. Wrixon, 1680 Poplar.

Lesson from the Triangle

I have been watching with some amusement the activities on and around the little triangle of land where Fort and Pandora meet. There used to be a filling station there, and then the city acquired the property for "park use."

A stone fence was placed around the three sides, topsoil was put in, it was seeded and watered. Just when the grass started to come through, a crew arrived with heavy machinery and started chopping up the sidewalk, plowing under the grass, and, strange to say, knocking down one of the sides of the wall.

Now it seems that the sidewalk will be narrower.

All this activity raises a few questions: did the city actually acquire the land for a mini-park or because this is part of the overall program of reducing sidewalk widths to accommodate more cars; why was the grass put in only to be dug up as it was making its appearance; why was a stone wall erected only to be torn down a very short time thereafter?

Alderman Savage recently told a delegation which presented a brief on parks to the city that it (the organization) ought to go about collecting money for the city so that new parkland can be acquired. He didn't offer to let people apply such gifts against their tax bills. He didn't guarantee that any parkland given the city would not be subjected to the same sort of management the efficiency of which becomes evident when one reviews what happened to this tiny little triangle. — Eugene Kellis, 1034 Chamberlain.

Abandoned Pets

I would like to bring up the subject of abandoned cats and dogs whose owners would rather kick them out to starve to death than to take them to the SPCA to be done away with or given better homes.

My father was on the Humpback Road on Saturday and found four young kittens abandoned on the side of the road. By chance my father gave them to his dad who is very fond of animals.

Maybe now people will be more active in saving our beloved domesticated animals. — Keith Miazgar, Jordan River, B.C.

60 Years Ago

From the Times of Oct. 8, 1911

Portsmouth, England — Great Britain's largest and best armored battleship, King George V, was launched successfully today. The warship was christened by His Majesty's aunt, Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein.

The King George V had been on the stocks two weeks less than the average dreadnought, having been laid down on January 16 last. The vessel has a displacement of 23,000 tons and her principal dimensions are: length, 555 feet; beam, 89; draft, 27½. The armament consists of ten 13.5 inch guns and twenty-four four-inch guns. Engines of 31,000 horse-power are expected to furnish a speed of 24 knots an hour.

CHINA: The Sleeping Giant Begins to Awake

Le Monde

One of the biggest surprises awaiting the Western visitor to China is the sight of its cities. They are an amazing spectacle. Take Shanghai, for example. Its six million inhabitants today mean six million pedestrians — and this is hardly an exaggeration. Of course, the city has a modern bus transport system which operates day and night, and thousands of bicycles. But almost everybody seems to be on foot.

What is most strikingly absent here is the privately-owned car. With the exception of a rare taxi, the car just doesn't exist. It's not only the queen of Western roads, that the Chinese city has dispensed with, but many of the other concomitants of urban life in the West. The carless city is also a city without advertising, neon lights, shop signs, and hoardings.

No bars, no drinks. No capital and no banks. Trade goes on, and purchases are paid for in notes and coins. But the scramble for wealth is missing.

Gone also is the emphasis on sex. You have only to slip over to Hong Kong on China's doorstep to realize the enormous distance separating the two worlds — physically only a few miles apart — one in which extreme sexual modesty is the rule and the other where eroticism is rampant.

Seeing China again one becomes aware not only that its pattern of development differs from that of the West, but peasant Mao is saying the Chinese peasant.

People's China cannot allow its modernisation campaign to empty the countryside. If it did, it would have to relocate its uprooted multitudes in hundreds of gigantic cities, like those megalopolitan complexes spawning on Japan's Pacific shores.

Such overpopulated cities could exist only if a Japanese-style industrial society were created, but ten times larger. And their factories could function only if they flooded the world with their products. Fortunately, Maoist development plans are totally different. They want China to become by the year 2000 a strong agricultural and peasant nation.

"China will never be a Super-Power," is a refrain that Chinese leaders have been repeating for the last year or two. It is an attitude which could apply just as well to their economic goals.

Under Soviet influence, Chinese policy had taken a wrong turn, with its emphasis on heavy industry. Since the Cultural Revolution, however, the country has reverted to Maoist goals, which are much more in line with China's needs. And urbanism is being kept to a minimum.

The regime controls the masses so closely that it seems to have succeeded in halting the flight from the land, and in avoiding the runaway expansion of the cities. It has even succeeded in trimming down the untidier ones.

Peking is trying to direct surplus city populations into the empty spaces in China's heartland, and to reduce, through birth-control campaigns, the explosive pressure of a population increase. Without such controls, China runs a risk of seeing its population soar over a perilous one billion mark.

China is not playing the same game as the other major Powers. This is something which was confirmed by my own observations during several visits to the country. Its pace is not that of the West.

Whether in the factory or in the commune, the Chinese work conscientiously, but without haste. Pedestrians are in no hurry, cyclists understand. The Chinese highway, lined with poplars as in France, has no souped-up cars, and no accidents. Airports are quiet and, if bad weather is announced, no planes take off.

The cities I saw — I didn't visit the north-east, the former Manchuria — have managed to avoid the scourge of pollution. The Chinese, in industrialising their country, maintain certain standards to avoid the pitfalls into which the West has fallen.

This refusal to become carbonised is no indication that the Chinese system is backward. On the contrary, it shows a country preparing for the future. If there is one modern gadget which cannot be allowed in a China opposed to middle-class smugness, private property and individualism, it is the private ownership of motorcars.

China should, before long, devise a rational and orderly scheme for motorcars. As their numbers increase, they will be put to a collective use.

What's missing? The automobile.

compatible with the nation's new social morality.

For when everything has been said on the differences between the Chinese system of political and economic development and that of the West, what sets China apart even more is perhaps what one could call its system of moral development.

Not only does China require the new society to be highly moral and virtuous — objectives which are entirely praiseworthy — but the way it proposes to reach these goals is completely at variance with methods employed in the West.

It is, the Chinese say, by right political thinking that one attains high moral standards.

Not Playing West's Game

Right thinking must be unanimous. And unanimous thinking is achieved through mass collective political instruction, which the West would call indoctrination. The entire Chinese nation obediently accepts this indoctrination, which would be considered intolerable by Westerners.

It may be on this question of liberty that the biggest difference exists between China and the West. This is where China may prove vulnerable, for it is a fact that in the end freedom always wins. However, it must be recognised that China's positive achievements outweigh its negative aspects.

In this post-cultural revolution period the China which I discovered, or rather rediscovered, is open to the outside world, a China marked by success and lowered tensions.

A China open to the outside world represents a country which is once again voicing its views on peaceful coexistence and trying to renew its links with other nations.

Success and progress are not only marked by the spectacular achievements that the Chinese always proudly show visitors, such as the giant bridge at Nanking, on the Yangtze River, the steel mills at Wuhan, and the Industrial Fair at Shanghai.

Success and progress are also obvious in a thousand and one little ways: the good health of the Chinese people, the variety in their clothes, the lack of queues in shops, the well-stocked markets, stable prices, more and more new bicycles, an almost complete absence of humans used as draught animals, and a better roads network.

"There are still many things to be done," say the Chinese modestly, obeying official precept. But this was my fourth visit to Mao's China, and each time was better than the one before.

The lower tension is noticeable now that the frantic pressures of the Cultural Revolution have disappeared. The people, quite obviously, are relieved that order and unity are reigning again.

A recent official text, said to have been inspired by Chairman Mao himself, proclaims that the 'Cultural Revolution' can be described as the second Chinese revolution. China in 1971 shows how far the second revolution has gone.

The fact that the Chinese people rose against the Communist Party in 1966 was in itself something extraordinary. But what is even more surprising is that the people rose to demand not less revolution, but more. They wanted to steer the regime not towards the Right, but even more to the Left.

The changes which this revolution brought about can be summed up in a single phrase: the People's Republic of China has well and truly become the people's China.

It may be difficult for the foreign visitor to obtain information on the tumultuous events of the Cultural Revolution, but their why and wherefore are readily, and very convincingly, expounded by the Chinese. Stripped of their strange Marxist and Chinese terminology, the information and analysis add up to one shattering fact. In less than ten years after the 1949 liberation (when the People's Republic was founded) Mao Tse-tung found his freedom of action in many areas being hindered. Power was slipping from his hands.

His program, which called for a continuing and expanding revolution, was up against an opposition within the system itself — an elaborately structured opposition whose ramifications extended from the party apparatus right up to the state offices.

Everybody called himself a Maoist, but official propaganda, the cultural organisations, the trade unions, a great number of officials from the party, the civil service and the economic organisations, both at the local and national level, were no longer following Mao's directives. Even Peking itself was now controlled by Mao's opponents.

Although they were widely dispersed, they constituted a substantial number and gradually found a leader in Liu Shao-chi, Chairman of the Republic and the second-ranking official in the regime hierarchy.

The revolution, in their view, had lasted long enough. Now was the time for compromises. Experiments in social surgery should come to an end. Politics should take a backseat to the economy.

And the Chinese should be entitled to a minimum of creature comforts and liberty. After the difficulties of the 1960-1962 period, this opposition began to manifest itself openly.

For Mao Tse-tung, the cultural Revolution meant rousing the people against the party mandarins; it meant being able to speak directly to the masses from whom his enemies were trying to cut him off by distorting his instructions or by suppressing them altogether; and it meant, too, countering and destroying the political doctrine and the organisational changes that Liu Shao-chi was trying to institute.

This could be done only by dismantling the entire state and party apparatus so as to expose his enemies. When the struggle was over, Mao would rebuild his nation's unity.

Helped by his immense prestige among the people and a loyal army under Marshal Lin Biao, Mao Tse-tung successfully carried out the

These new "hands" are usually sent to live in a working-class or peasant milieu, their stay among the masses lasting for at least two months a year. A four-month stint, however, is considered nearer the ideal. Compulsory service can also take the form of spending some time in places where things are specially organised to straighten out political deviationism.

The Chinese do not conceal at all the corrective aspect of the system: quite the contrary. The method was widely used after the Cultural Revolution to re-educate ordinary citizens and officials as well.

Such a large-scale mixing of social classes, where citizens of every category are required to blend with the masses and get their hands dirty, has really given China a more working-class character than ever.

There is an overriding impression that the country is made up of only one class — a countless and homogeneous people, consisting of one type of man repeated ad infinitum — although there is never complete uniformity — the worker with hard, calloused hands.

A few years ago there were still traces of the former middle classes, even if they had gone over to the new regime. There are no traces of them left.

There is nothing either that shows that one man has a larger income than another, or is more cultured or, for that matter, that he has a more subordinate position.

As Mao's best supporters were people with poor, working-class backgrounds, they have become the models to be widely copied in dress, in behaviour, and way of life.

It would be a mistake to see in all this a desire to reduce life to the lowest common denominator. Universal compulsory labour and the mixing of social classes may result in a certain lowering, but it is accompanied by another basic premise that the people must take over the leadership of everything in a country which is theirs.

And from this notion stems an immense levelling up, which tends to improve the lot of the entire nation. The starting point in this development is the political education of the masses, which was already quite intensive even before the cultural revolution. Today it has been extended to a degree never reached anywhere before.

The Little Red Book is perhaps less in evidence now, but this does not mean that the drive has slowed down. It is simply that there is no longer any need for demonstrations or gesticulations now that Mao's thought has triumphed. The Chinese citizen today is the most "politicised" and the most political animal on earth.

The Cultural Revolution has also given the Chinese new opportunities for moving up the ladder. At all levels, there is a widespread desire to do a good job, with incentives provided to spur workers to excel themselves and seek a better life.

Along with political education workers received continuing technical instruction. No matter where you go in that China is more fully committed than ever to fashioning another mode of life. China is in the process of creating "something else," something quite different from anything being done elsewhere.

The countryside, teeming with peasants hard at work on their plots of land, confirms that impression. The West has increased agricultural output by forcing the people off the land. Mao Tse-tung's China is also increasing the size of holdings through a system of collective communes and their subdivisions. But it is keeping the people down on the farms, where they continue to pursue their traditional occupations of intensive cultivation.

As in the West, China is mechanising its agriculture, but local workers displaced by machines do not head for the city. They are retrained and absorbed by small cottage industries on the spot.

Mao Tse-tung sometimes brings to mind Gandhi, with his spinning wheel. A revolutionary he may be, but in the Chinese tradition he is also wary of machines. The revolutionary in him is changing the countryside, while the FBI's bug," he asked, "or one of ours?"

A quick examination disclosed the great seal of the United States imprinted on the wire. "Good," he said, clearing his throat. "A hundred and five," he said. "You think that's a lot? You think a hundred and five spies is enough to do the job we're up against in these Western countries?"

"Don't you know even what's in your own country?" he went on, speaking with great emotion. "The volume of secret papers has increased by a factor of fifty or sixty in the past ten years. The more secret papers you have the more spies we need to get hold of them."

The difficulty, Boris explained, "speaking very clearly and distinctly into the bug, so that the FBI would hear every word, was that it had become a symbol of status in Washington for men to have secret papers in their possession."

He thought this had started with Prof. Henry Kissinger, Boris said. He had read somewhere perhaps in a top-secret story printed in a newspaper column of Washington society news, that Professor Kissinger never attended a party without bringing along a briefcase ostentatiously filled with highly classified papers.

Naturally, he explained, high-ranking officials at the Pentagon and State Department didn't want to risk being put in the shade by showing up at a party without secret papers when they knew that Professor Kissinger might drop in with an armful.

Boris said that he had, in fact, attended a party in one of the seedier saloons of Georgetown, at which a public-relations officer from the Department of Commerce tried to win a blonde away from a clerk in the Bureau of Obsolete Needs by flashing a fat roll of papers labelled "excessively secret."

The demand for secret papers among government officials, Boris said, had become so intense that status-hungry officials were plastering the classification stamp on every paper that came to hand. Among prohibited U.S. secret documents — which had turned up lately on his own desk, Boris went on, were a luncheon cheque for two cheeseburgers and beer, a laundry list for five shirts and a 1964 copy of Playboy.

"The more paper you stamp secret," Boris shouted into the bug, "the more spies we need to get our hands on it, study it, puzzle out its significance and forward it on to Moscow."

Having made his point to the FBI, he hurried off to a cocktail party where he expected a minor official from the Washington Monument staff to appear with a sheep of menus, classified "usually secret," from the National Art Gallery cafeteria.

"The Russians are begging for mercy," the FBI man observed later. "Maybe — just maybe, mind you — if we keep stamping, we can use their spy payroll to bankrupt them."

All this, incidentally, is "utterly secret."

second revolution. It was primarily an ideological struggle.

The Cultural Revolution was, in fact, a torrent sweeping away the dam behind which the new revisionist establishment wanted to pen Mao Tse-tung's revolutionary ideas.

One of Mao's ideas, among many others, was that in the new socialist society, everyone should do manual work. To every man, whatever his profession or his rank, Mao has said: "You will be a peasant or a workman."

Every man must spend a part of his life doing some manual work. The job may be in a factory, but it must be productive. Mao had been preaching this doctrine of universal and compulsory manual labour for a long time, but the idea was far from generally accepted.

Now, at last, it is being applied on an unprecedentedly wide scale, and the whole of China is being shaken by it.

Huge Pot Haul

EDMONTON (CP) — What RCMP described as the largest marijuana haul in Alberta resulted in four youths being charged with possession of a narcotic for trafficking Thursday.

Police seized 100 pounds of the drug, valued at $35,000, Wednesday night at Rabbit Hill ski slope, about 12 miles southeast of here.

They found the marijuana hidden in some bushes and waited until a panel truck came to pick it up.

Charged were Glenn Warren Hennig, 16; Jeffery Roy Pickham, 18; Charles Allan Dixon, 19, and Trent David Haugh, 17.

They appeared in court and were remanded to Oct. 14.

Campaigner Ill

CALGARY (CP) — Mayoralty candidate Frank Joynt has stepped off the campaign trail for a couple of days, suffering from exhaustion and influenza.

The 53-year-old businessman went to hospital Thursday and is expected to remain for two days. He was not allowed visitors.

Rueben Hamm, his campaign chairman, said he would fill in at speeches and forums until Johns recovers.

The election in which Johns and three other hopefuls are trying to unseat incumbent Rod Sykes is Oct. 13.

Mine to Reopen

SASKATOON (CP) — The Eldorado mine at Uranium City, Sask., will not be shut down because of a strike by 300 employees there, C. F. Smith, manager of the mine, said Thursday.

The company plans to start production as soon as the strike is settled, he said in an interview.

Eldorado has been mining about 300 tons of uranium ore daily since 1969 and much of this has been stockpiled, because of a glut on the world market.

Results Analyzed

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba Conservative and Liberal party leaders said today the poor showing of the NDP slate in Winnipeg civic elections was a rejection of the NDP style of government.

The NDP ran 39 candidates for council in the Wednesday elections and, elected only seven.

Liberal Leader I. H. Asper said "the results are fortunate that the public rejected traditional party politics at the civic level."

Dispute Settled

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government has agreed to wage increases for 500 correctional officers, ending a dispute which became a major issue in the campaign for the Aug. 30 provincial general election.

The guards and the Progressive Conservative government agreed Wednesday on a voluntary mediation report which recommended the guards receive an extra 4.7 per cent for 1971 in addition to a 4.7 per cent increase granted in May by the former Social Credit government.

Construction Halted

CALGARY (CP) — Construction at six major sites ground to a halt Thursday with the appearance of picket lines set up by 450 striking plumbers.

Among construction halted was a $16 million water treatment plant which was delayed in July for four days when the International Union of Operating Engineers went on strike.

The dispute doesn't involve wages, only a bargaining clause with the Canadian Plumbers and Mechanical Contractors' Association. The plumbers say the association wants an agreement which would give it wide jurisdiction.

The pleasant conditions will continue through Saturday as a ridge of high pressure remains nearly stationary over the southern half of the province. Extensive fog will persist in south coastal areas with some clearing during the afternoon. Only the north coast will have showers as a weakening weather system moves into northern B.C.

Carrie Snodgrass in NBC Drama

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Little more than a year ago, a young actress named Carrie Snodgrass was being touted as the best natural actress to make a film in decades. She was nominated for an academy award for her role in a Mad Housewife and created a stir when she refused to show up for the presentation ceremony. Thereafter it was as if Carrie had disappeared.

Carrie left boyfriend and husband to star in the Impassioned Heart which will be seen Oct. 3 as a world premiere for NBC.

It marked the first time that a single actress — and certainly one with so little exposure as Carrie — has been asked to carry the burden of a movie-for-television. Usually the casts are laden with several familiar names and faces. Carrie is the only recognizable name in the cast.

"I think this is a worthwhile project," Carrie said. "I did it because it's honest and deals with social problems."

"Today people don't want to see stories of returning GIs from Vietnam all strung out on drugs. Maybe they're right."

Carrie was anxious to let everyone know her absence from the screen was not due to difficulties or disagreements with studios or independent producers.

"I don't embark on anything I can't follow through with," she said. "So it was simply a matter of waiting for the right thing. Maybe I've been very involved with my sell. My confidence is growing. There aren't many scripts written for 25-year-old girls today. But with the passing of time my work will be better and more roles will be coming along. If not, I'll be glad to do anything I can do for the time being. It's good to be young and alive."

TV Executives Play It Safe—And Dull

NEW YORK (AP) — Les Brown, television-radio editor of Variety, says in a new book that a major ingredient in the slowness of making the wrong choice.

The right choice is a show or a schedule that attracts more viewers than the competition — and hence commands higher prices for commercials, he says in Television: The Business Behind the Box.

The right choice also is a show that offends no one and attracts no complaints.

Few executives are willing to risk their upward mobility or the company's fortunes on anything new or experimental. One network vice-president told Brown, "We don't pick the best chance of success. We pick the least chance of failure."

Drugs a Help With Parkinson's Disease

Every year, three of the most feared diseases in Canada — diabetes, cancer and Parkinson's disease — account for many thousands of unfortunate victims. Can drugs, many in their prime, who suddenly find their lives dramatically altered by crippling illness, a child with diabetes would have been slowly waiting away on a starvation diet of boiled vegetables and fruits. Today, insulin allows that same child to lead an almost normal life.

No one yet understands cancer, or how it is caused. But modern surgery, radiation and drugs have done much to reduce the incidence of death by this once-feared disease.

Today, the trembling hand and difficulty in swallowing, symptoms of Parkinson's disease, can be helped by drug treatment developed largely by Canadian research.

Last Monday, CBC's Today presented a new three-part medical series dealing with the disease, and the extensive research that has been done on them in Canada.

Diabetes, on Oct. 4, coincided with the 50th anniversary of the discovery of insulin by Doctors Frederick Banting and Charles Best.

Dr. Rose Sheinin, cancer virus expert.

fish is a favorite food, stomach cancer is 50 per cent more common than anywhere in Canada.

Why? While research in surgery, radiation and drugs to fight cancer continues, another aspect of medical science is equally concerned with the causes. Under the aegis of the National Cancer Institute of Canada, which has supported cancer research for 25 years, other countries are duplicating our own findings in something, hopefully in the not-too-distant future, some one will find a cure.

Parkinsonism, the final program of the series (Oct. 25), will concern itself mainly with current medical research into this crippling disease of the middle-aged. Surgery and drugs, notably L-Dopa, which has given many sufferers new hope in the treatment of this disease, are discussed.

While medical science does not know the exact cause of Parkinson's disease, it has fairly good ideas of the factors involved. Research has enabled Parkinson victims to return to active life. Today, an old man's trembling hand can be returned to normal by surgery, an old woman's walking difficulty helped by drug treatment... all developed by Canadian researchers.

Former Victoria Actress Hosts Show

Diana Ricardo, well-known Vancouver broadcaster, news anchor, columnist and actress will host a new late night talk show beginning Friday, at 11:30 p.m. on Channel 2.

Diana Ricardo and Patricia, an hour-long show to be broadcast in color each Friday night, will be produced at the Bayview Hotel in Vancouver. The program will focus mainly on arts and entertainment and will feature local personalities and visiting celebrities with guest entertainers.

Diana's guests on the first show, Oct. 8, are Bruno Cervasi who is starting in the CBC-TV Vancouver series, The Beachcombers now in production; singer-guitarist Pat Rose, co-host of CBC Vancouver's Country series; and John Margulies, Drop-In, and Bill Adler, producers of The Television series.

Music for the show will be provided by a show trio. The announcer is Bob Switzer. Producer is Doug Clipperton.

Diana Ricardo was born in Victoria. Her theatrical career began at age five when she performed in school and Little Theatre productions. Her first professional role was in the series Dominic Andrews G.P.

RICARDO new talk show

With Victoria's Starlight Theatre, she later had major roles with Thorn Theatre, Avon Theatre, Vanguard Theatre and Metropolitan Theatre. Her most recent theatrical work was with Metropolitan Theatre.

Diana's entry into radio was with the CBC at the age of 18. She started with boy's roles due to her flexible vocal range. Many other roles followed including the sustaining character of Jean in the series Dominic Andrews G.P.

George Zukerman is a Canadian musician with incredible felicity in an instrument rarely heard in solo — the bassoon.

On Sunday, on 2 at 3 p.m., CBC Television's Music To See will present Zukerman, assisted by Norman Tobias, Nicholas Kilmour, Wolfgang Schuler and Montreal pianist Andre Saville, in a bassoon recital in color.

One does not think of the bassoon as a solo instrument in the ordinary course of events. There is little music for it, comparatively speaking, and its tone, even in the hands of experienced players, tends to be coarse in texture and weak in volume — not at all with Zukerman, however!

Selections for this television recital range from the Baroque to contemporary. They are: Pachelbel's Gigue, Scarlatti's Allegretto, Schumann's Concerto, and Scherzo Humoresque (Prokofiev).

The program was produced in the studio by John Coulson.

Financial Adviser Jailed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Cornelius Polviest, former vice-president of the Commonwealth Trust Co. and financial adviser to its group of companies, was sentenced Thursday to three years in prison for theft and fraud involving $100,000.

Mr. Justice Peter Seaton imposed sentence in British Columbia Supreme Court after noting that Polviest, while making no personal gain, used his position to manipulate the companies, deceive the securities commission and ultimately, the public.

Polviest was charged with theft from Commonwealth Trust Co. by fraudulent conversion of $100,000 and defrauding another Commonwealth company of a promissory note for that amount.

The offences occurred in 1968 and 1967.

Earlier in B.C. Supreme Court, Commonwealth president A. G. Duncan Cruz was sentenced to seven years on fraud and theft charges laid following a government investigation into the collapse of the Commonwealth group of companies.

Alsopco

A New Jersey firm with branch in Vancouver has patented in Canada, the U.S., U.K., Australia and Philippines a new process for pulping wood fibre more efficiently and without pollution.

Alsopco Consolidated Ltd., of Passaic, has patented the "nitrocell" pulping process, licensing the idea to Instrument Systems Corp., of Jericho, N.Y., for U.S. manufacture.

Independent analysis by C. D. Schultz and Co., Vancouver, and Kilborn Engineering Ltd., Toronto, showed economic advantages over sulphate and sulphite pulp-making as now done in B.C. By using a closed circuit process, Nitrocell returns liquid or gaseous materials to the process or siphons them off as fertilizer.

Impressive Expansion Of Economy Forecast

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian economists, business and government officials put together a generally optimistic view of 1972 Thursday, despite gloomy prospects for Canada-United States trade relations.

Prospects for the coming year were summarized by 17 speakers at the annual business outlook session of The Conference Board in Canada, a Montreal-based business and economics research institute.

Most predictions were for a gain in Canadian gross national product of about 5 1/2 per cent and a 3 1/2 per cent inflation rate. There were few projections on unemployment levels, but short-term prospects were for continued unemployment rates above six per cent.

E. P. Neufeld, a University of Toronto economist, said it seems "Canada is facing a period of impressive economic expansion, but one in which there will have to be experimentation with new approaches to controlling inflation."

Neufeld said the problem of inflation "has become so intractable that I fully expect that Canada will have to adopt a system of wage-price guidelines" to match actions taken by the U.S.

URGES NEW APPROACH

J. Douglas Gibson, a Toronto financial consultant, said Canada must "take a fresh look at our relations with the United States."

He said Canada should adopt policies and priorities so Canada's trade partners will know the rules.

Herb Gray, federal revenue minister, told a luncheon session there would be no one-sided concessions in Canada in exchange for removal of trade restrictions already imposed by the U.S.

He said the Canadian government has said it is willing to resume negotiations for changes in the auto trade agreement, which allows free movement of vehicles and parts by manufacturers but establishes a Canadian-content formula. But the government did not believe that changes in the auto pact should be related to removal of extra tariffs imposed by the U.S.

Topics by other speakers covered key sectors of economic activity.

Monetary Policy — J. R. Beattie, deputy governor of the Bank of Canada, said government encouragement of use of domestic capital has had results.

He said a shift to borrowing at home "has taken place more smoothly than probably anyone would have predicted."

The government's expansionary policy was reflected in changes in amounts of public currency holdings and bank deposits the common definition of money supply. The increase was four per cent during 1968, 11 per cent during 1969 and for the first nine months of this year the change was 15 per cent on an annual basis.

Consumer Credit — Douglas D. Peters, chief economist for the Toronto Dominion Bank, predicted consumer credit would increase by between eight and nine per cent this year and the total outstanding would exceed $10 billion by the end of the year. This would be below the average of 11 per cent during recent years.

Capital Spending — J. W. Popkin, senior economist for Sun Life Assurance Co., Montreal, said business spending on plant and equipment is expected to increase to reach $12.1 billion during 1971, up from $11.2 billion last year. The 1972 financing requirements are expected to be up by about $21 billion over the 1970 figure.

Corporation Profits — Popkin said corporate profits are expected to rise about five per cent this year and should gain 10 to 12 per cent during 1972.

Foreign Exchange — J. N. Abell of Wood Gundy Inc., the New York branch of a Canadian securities firm, said prospects for international agreement on currency exchange rates are "looking much better than before the start of the International Monetary Fund meetings" last month.

Mr. Abell said he expected the Canadian dollar would remain strong and its value in international trading may reach parity with the U.S. dollar in 1972.

Automobiles — Ron W. Chrysler Canada Ltd., said that while prospects for the industry may be affected by negotiations on the auto pact, he was optimistic.

Toddham forecast an increase of close to eight per cent in passenger-car sales during 1972 to 850,000 cars and a gain of more than 10 per cent in truck sales to 220,000.

Construction — R. C. T. Stewart of Halifax, president of the Canadian Construction Association, said his industry will need a $750-million increase in construction spending during 1972 to keep up with inflation.

Stewart was optimistic about prospects for residential construction during 1972 because of government commitments to provide housing.

NDP May Give Iron Mine Okay

SASKATOON (CP) — On the basis of additional information, the Saskatchewan government may announce next week it is willing to proceed with iron ore mine at Chiseland, Sask., J. F. Daly said Thursday.

Daly, Chiseland Iron Mines Ltd. president, in an interview said more information about the proposed $60 million project northeast of Prince Albert was presented to Premier Allan Blakeney early in August.

He said he was optimistic the government would react favourably.

A agreement to construct the mine was made by former premier Ross Thatcher with Daly, S. B. Roman, chairman of Denison Mines Ltd., and Interprovincial Pipe and Steel Corp. of Regina. (IPSCO)

However, Premier Blakeney's new NDP government cancelled the agreement because of what Blakeney said was a lack of information about the project.

Daly said IPSCO indicated it is "still anxious to go ahead."

ELLIS DUE TO START FOR PIRATES

Pitcher With Problems Still Danny's Choice

BALTIMORE (AP)—Pittsburgh Pirates manager Danny Murtaugh may find himself biting a little deeper into his cigar, but as of now he's sticking with problem-plagued Dock Ellis as his starter for Saturday's World Series opener against Baltimore Orioles.

Ellis, besides his normal difficulty finding hotel accommodations to suit his style, has a tender right elbow that doesn't suit his efficiency on the mound. But Murtaugh still is sticking with his original decision to go with Ellis against Orioles lefthander Dave McNally.

"I've named Dock to start," Murtaugh explained. "I've not named a replacement if Dock isn't able to go."

And it's not likely that a final decision will be made much before Saturday's 1 p.m. EDT starting time, following the pattern Murtaugh set during the National League playoffs when he waited until minutes before game time to replace Nelson Briles with Bob Johnson.

Ellis, meanwhile, had some difficulty when he checked his hotel room after arriving here with the club Thursday. After he and his wife took one look at the accommodations, Ellis changed rooms.

Murtaugh agreed with Ellis' assessment of the rooming situation, acknowledging they were "not too spiffy."

Once Ellis straightened out his accommodations, he left for the ball park to see if his elbow would respond to his satisfaction and it did.

"My arm didn't hurt," he said.

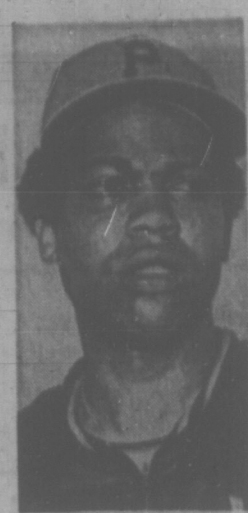

Las Vegas oddsmakers initially shied away from the first game but later made the Orioles 3-2 favorites to take the first game and a 9-5 choice to win the series.

But New York oddsmakers established the Orioles as 7-4-5 favorites to win their third world championship in the last six years and their second in succession.

They also made the Orioles' slight favorites to win the opener behind McNally, who was 21-5 during the regular season compared with 19-9 for Ellis, the Pirates' big winner.

However, Baltimore manager Earl Weaver, as concerned

BILL WALKER

The air in the dingy little room in the bowels of Memorial Arena were positively pungent with the acrid stench of cigarette smoke. But then the sign was up: men at work. This is what Victoria Cougars called home.

Coach Fred Huol wasn't in, but the general manager was, and so was the managing director, Eric Bishop and Mich Pechet were trying to get it all put together before Saturday's opening game of the Western Canada Junior Hockey League season. There was much to do before Flin Flon came to town.

"I guess I've been on the phone for about 36 hours," said Bishop through the cloud that enveloped him, and as he finished talking to a friendly general manager from Calgary.

"That was Scotty," he explained, Scotty being Scotty Munro, owner-coach of the Calgary club.

"He's been good to us," Bishop continued, "and he's sending us a player. Matter of fact, we've got two new players coming. Jim Atamanenko is a defenceman from Saskatoon who played for Swift Current last year, and Len Chalmers, a right winger, is coming in from Calgary. He scored 34 goals last year."

How about your other friends?

"Hunter still owes me a player," Bishop said, "but we are beginning to get some action now. Jackie McLeod has come through... and with that, the phone jangled again.

Meanwhile, enter Pechet, the club's high poobah and managing director.

"Big ones!" he snorted to an inquiring reporter's query as to the relative size of the Cougars. "Hell, I'll take 15 little ones, if they can put the puck in the net."

"The wires are hot," he suggested, as Bishop said to a player on the blower: "I want to see you today."

"Good lord, we're trying," Pechet went on.

After all, it had been a busy three weeks since training camp began. The restless search for talent had already taken in over 100 candidates. There would be more.

Pechet, meanwhile, added: "We got a lineup of young hockey players waiting outside to see us." It was sign-up time and the last chance for the youngsters to make their final pitch even if they already had agreed to terms. There would be some dissent. There always is. But Bishop wouldn't be around the rest of the week. He had other duties. He would be in Eastern Canada, where, as a master of the pear-shaped vowel, he would be describing the heroics of the B.C. Lions on radio. He wanted those contracts out of the way. Quick.

Earlier he had said of the team:

"Sure, we need help. But for now our forwards should suffice. Our defence has been shaky, but then Fred (Huol) has been moving players 'round, he added of the club's recent road trip to the Okanagan.

But if that junket wasn't a howling success — the Cougars got one tie in four games — it wasn't expected to be. It was simply a period of trial and error to see who could do what best.

"Besides, the team is brand new," said Bishop. "And the trip gave some of the players a chance to get to know the others on a first-name basis. Now they should know one another better."

The discourse was interrupted by that noise again.

"That was Scotty," Bishop laughed. "And he asked me 'Did you call?' Munro had been returning the previous call. Things had gotten so busy that the calls were getting through before the messages.

"Then, do you know what he said?" said Bishop, the conversation having been abruptly terminated.

"It's always nice talking to you." Click!

Just another day at the office, and an example of the creative genius of hockey men at work.

The phone again.

"That was Scotty," said Bishop. "That hockey player will be in on the 10:45 plane."

Lefty and Coaches Dropped by Angels

Manager Lefty Phillips and his four coaches were dismissed Thursday by California Angels in Anaheim.

Gene Autry, board chairman of the American League baseball club, and president Bob Reynolds issued a statement saying the contracts of Phillips and coaches Rocky Bridges, Carl Koenig, Pete Reiser and Norm Sherry would not be renewed.

During Phillips' three years as manager, Angels have lost 225 games and won 221 while finishing third in the American League's Western Division in 1969 and '70 as well as fourth this season.

REHired BY PADRES

But in San Diego, it was a different story.

Manager Preston Gomez and the rest of the San Diego Padres coaching staff were rehired for the 1972 season despite a third straight finish in the National League cellar.

"It has never been my policy to blame the manager or coaches for failures on the field," said E. J. "Buzze"

Laver Leads Way To Quarter-Finals

VANCOUVER (CP) — Giant-killer Ishaq el Shafel of the United Arab Republic, who upset fifth-seeded Arthur Ashe in the second round of the $50,000 Rothman's International tennis tournament, was ousted himself Thursday by Nicki Pilic of Yugoslavia, 6-2, 6-2.

Others to make it through to the quarter-finals were Bob Carmichael, an Australian who plays out of Paris, Andres Gimeno of Spain and Ken Rosewall of Australia.

Top-seeded Rod Laver of Australia, Roy Emerson of Australia, Tom Okker of the Netherlands and Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., made it to the quarter-finals Wednesday.

Carmichael defeated Mark Cox of Britain, 6-3, 4-6, 7-6; Gimeno downed young South African pro Rob Maud, 3-6, 7-5, 6-3; and Rosewall recovered after a shaky start to

U.S., Romania Series Starts

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The two top players, Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., and Ilie Nastase of Romania, were drawn for the opening match in the Davis Cup challenge round.

The second match sends U.S. team's Frank Froehling of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., against the Romanian veteran Ion Tiriac.

The matches start today on the Julian Clark clay courts in suburban Charlotte.

The doubles will be played Saturday, with the final two singles, in reverse order, Sunday in the best-of-five match series.

Bavas, the club's president, in making the announcement. Bavas added, "If our club improves next year as I anticipate it will, it is only right that the present manager and coaches be part of it."

Munro is owner and coach of Calgary Centennials, who emerged with the best defensive record, by far, but wound up playing second fiddle to Edmonton Oil Kings last season. The Kings topped Calgary by 10 points in the Western Division's final standing, then rubbed in the salt by eliminating the Centennials in the divisional final.

Munro figures he may play the first fiddle this time out.

STRONG DEFENCE ... As Always, Scotty's Guys Will Be Close

(Third of a Series)
By ERNIE FEDORUK

"Don't worry about Scotty."

That was the message from Roderick (Scotty) Munro, and a funny thing happened between postmen's knocks. Some of Scotty's Western Canada Hockey League rivals said the same thing.

Munro is owner and coach of Calgary Centennials, who emerged with the best defensive record, by far, but wound up playing second fiddle to Edmonton Oil Kings last season. The Kings topped Calgary by 10 points in the Western Division's final standing, then rubbed in the salt by eliminating the Centennials in the divisional final.

Munro figures he may play the first fiddle this time out.

And even if he's not right, he'll at least be close — as always.

Granted, there are holes to plug.

Gone are Ed Dyck, the league's leading netminder with four shutouts and a solid 2.53 goals-against average; high-scoring Allan Rycroft, and defencemen Len Frigg, Wayne Gibbs and Bernie Doan. All whisked out of Calgary by the National Hockey League draft.

Highly-regarded Jim McMasters and Jim Watson figure to go a long way towards welding together Calgary's new defence corps.

McMasters scored 22 goals and 23 assists, while Watson was 9-35 in the point-producing column. Both are definite candidates for all-star and draft selections.

John Davidson, imposing as he is at six-foot-three and 190 pounds, may have a more difficult time in convincing the selectors. The big guy from Lethbridge Sugar Kings is being groomed as Dyck's replacement while junior "B" grad Ron Burgess is the early choice to serve as Calgary's backup netminder.

Munro isn't worried about his goal suppliers. Scotty started with seven holdover forwards, brazenly declared he "wouldn't be surprised if five or six wound up as draft choices."

Ron Homeniuk (27-33) and left winger Doug Horbal (32-26) finished 23 in Calgary's point parade last season. Both have been standouts in preseason works, as have Brian Walker and John Senkpiel.

Danny Gare, a training camp surprise, and Fraser Robertson, another Lethbridge grad, are among the rookies who figure to make it as regulars.

"I know I could put out two lines which would be as good as any in the league," said Munro. "Naturally, I would rather have three balanced lines. The rookies have shown me that we're capable of having both balance and strength."

As the man said, don't worry about Scotty.

The Cents, who make their first Memorial Arena appearance next Wednesday, figure to be involved in a tight, three-way fight with Edmonton and New Westminster Bruins for first-place honors in the Western Division.

Dunc Wilson Asked to Tote Canucks' Load

By The Canadian Press

The fate of Vancouver Canucks in the National Hockey League this season rests squarely on goaltender Dunc Wilson, says general manager Bud Poile.

The Canucks are host to Toronto Maple Leafs, and Los Angeles Kings tangle with California Golden Seals at Oakland as the NHL's 55th season opens tonight.

In Saturday contests, New York Rangers meet the Canadiens, defending Stanley Cup champions, in Montreal. Detroit Red Wings are at home to Minnesota North Stars, Chicago Black Hawks play the Blues in St. Louis and Philadelphia Flyers take on the Penguins in Pittsburgh.

"Dunc Wilson certainly is the key to our club," said

Poile Thursday. "I put it squarely on Dunc's shoulders. If he doesn't become a major leaguer, then we're in big trouble."

Last season, Wilson, picked up from Philadelphia in the 1970 expansion draft, shared Vancouver's goaltending duties with Charlie Hodge and George Gardner.

But this season, the Canucks' second in the NHL, Hodge is on waivers and could end up with Rochester Americans, Vancouver's farm team in the American Hockey League.

Has Improved Attitude, Incentive

Gardner, 28, is regarded as only adequate. But Wilson has been instructed to make himself No. 1 in a bid to improve upon Vancouver's sixth-place finish in the East Division last season.

Although Wilson's average last season was 4.28 in 35 games, Poile realizes that the 23-year-old was used against last season's powerhouses—New York, Boston, Montreal and Chicago — while Hodge and Gardner drew the leftovers.

COULD MAKE MONEY

As incentive to Wilson, Poile has loaded his contract with bonus clauses, including extra money for staying in the league for a certain number of games and for performance.

"He can make himself a good buck," said Poile.

Wilson is also on his word that his behavior this season will improve over his antics last season when he became involved in several fights and had to post a $1,000 keep-the-peace bond with the league.

"We've told him to stay in goal and play his game," Poile said. "He had seven fights last year. I think his attitude has improved."

New York defeated Boston

5-3 Thursday night to complete the exhibition schedule.

Jim Neilson and Bruce MacGregor scored 33 seconds apart early in the first period, leading the Rangers to their sixth win against two losses and one tie in exhibition games with NHL clubs.

At Buffalo, the Sabres sent veteran Reg Fleming, 35, to Cincinnati Swords of the American Hockey League. Fleming scored six goals and had 16 points with the Sabres last season.

Another Buffalo player, Paul Andrejko decided to return to his Glace Bay, N.S., home rather than report to Cincinnati.

Foreman Boosts Knockout String

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — George Foreman, No. 2 world heavy-weight contender, knocked out Ollie Wilson, 219, Hartford, Conn., in 2:35 of the second round Thursday night.

Foreman, 219, is now 31-0 with 28 of his victories by knockout. Wilson went down twice in the second, first on a left-right combination and then for the final time on a crushing left to the ribs.

Vic West-United Aims at Top Spot

This weekend is one of the few this fall and winter when Victoria fans will be without Pacific Coast Soccer League entertainment.

With two local entries in the PCSL this year — Gorge Molsons and Victoria West-United — soccer enthusiasts are assured of a home game almost every Saturday. This Saturday, however, is an exception.

But arrangements have been made for supporters to travel with Vic West-United Sunday when it meets New Westminster Blues in a 2 p.m. game at Vancouver's Empire Stadium. Information may be obtained by contacting Gil O'Malley at 382-0553.

United defeated Vancouver Firefighters 3-1 in its only start so far. Currently tied for second place with Paul's Canadians, United could gain sole possession of first place with a victory over the Blues on Sunday. Vic West is one point behind league-leading Vancouver Inter-Italia which has one victory and a draw.

Inter-Italia's victory came at the expense of Gorge which dropped a 4-1 decision in its league debut. Molsons, who also lost to Paul's last Saturday by a 2-1 score, play their next game on Sunday, Oct. 17, against the Blues in Vancouver.

Vic West edged the Blues 2-1 in a pre-season exhibition game in Victoria, but coach Frank Grealy expects the hosts to be tougher Sunday.

"We'll have to be up for the game," Grealy insists.

YOUTHFUL GOALIE

The United coach put his charges through a lively workout at Royal Athletic Park Thursday night and said he was "very pleased" with Ash Douglas who, at 17, is the league's youngest goaltender.

"Ash is steadily improving at every practice," Grealy noted.

The Outdoors

Fishermen might have to exert themselves a little more in waters around Vancouver Island this weekend, but the salmon are reported to be still out there.

A mixed population of Jack springs and coho up to 13 pounds may be found in Saanich Inlet near Chesterfield Rock, Bamerton, Mill Bay and off Willis Point.

Fishermen using bucktails and buzz-bombs have been picking up coho in the same size range around Moss Point and from the Deep Cove marker through to Pat Bay. Other anglers trolling small plugs have caught an abundant number of Jacks from three to four pounds in Satellite Channel.

Coho up to 13 pounds and springs up to 12 are supplying action off Oak Bay from the Gap to Trial Island as well as out toward Constance Banks. For coho, successful sportmen were using six to eight ounces of weight while eight ounces to one pound were required to reach the springs. In both cases, 50 to 75 feet of line is needed.

Macaulay Point and Brochie Ledge waters are yielding coho averaging eight pounds as well as a few springs around 10 pounds.

A few winter springs and coho up to 40 pounds are nibbling on Lucky Louie plugs, strip, minnows and bucktails along the kelp bed in Pedder Bay and near Christopher Point and Race Rocks.

Waters between Otter Point and Secretary Island are producing a fair return of coho (eight to 12 pounds), springs (up to 20 pounds) and the occasional pink.

Further afield, a few coho are harrying the large number of herring which are moving down Sansum Narrows toward Cowichan Bay.

Other up-island spots producing coho are French Creek, the south end of Hornby Island, Little Qualicum River, Oyster River, Duncan Bay, Race Point and Quathiaski Cove.

Trout returns on the Island continued to increase during the past week, perhaps sparked by the cooler nights. Sea-run cutthroats have turned up in creeks in the canyon areas of Cowichan River while other limits of trout were taken from Cowichan Lake as well as Brannen and First Lake near Nanaimo.

Anglers fishing the creek mouth at the head of Great Central Lake were seldom stunked and sea-runs have also been picked up on worms in the Puntledge River and on flies in the Oyster River.

NIBBLES: Our special thanks to Gary Vaughan for the "ride" and company during the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association executive derby on Sunday. Also to derby chairman Mark Woodward and the VSIAA ladies for the refreshments later. Congratulations are due Frank Jenvey, who won the derby with an 8.04-pound coho, landed on a surface-trolled green-and-white bucktail fly. We won't talk about what yours truly caught.

Big derby for this weekend is the annual three-day Thanksgiving Coho Derby in Cowichan Bay. $100 goes to the angler weighing in the largest coho each day. Entry tickets are $1 for each day fished. Also up for grabs are two hidden-weight prizes each day as well as about 30 merchandise prizes.

Hunters are reminded that ducks, coots and rails become fair game starting Saturday and ending Jan. 9. Note also that geese and snipe do not come into season until Oct. 23. Hunters need a $2 migratory bird permit in addition to their provincial hunting licence. This federal permit is available from any post office.

Pheasant and quail, which may be bagged with just the provincial licence, are also in season Saturday.

PALMER UPSET

Jack's Faith in Putter

VICTORIA WATER. Eng-land (AP) — An Englishman, a South African, a New Zealander and a wayward putter stood today between Jack Nicklaus of the United States and his second successive title as the world's best match-play golfer.

"It's quite a lineup to overcome but the main thing is that my putting touch is coming back," said the Golden Bear from Columbus, Ohio.

Nicklaus, top money winner on the U.S. circuit, clashes with Neil Coles of England in the semi-finals of the Pirelli Knockout tournament over the 5,997-yard, par-74 Wentworth course near London.

Gary Player of South Africa, a three-time winner of the cherished title meets left-handed New Zealander Bob Charles in the other semi-final.

Charles eliminated Arnold Palmer on the 37th hole. It was dusk when Palmer and Charles finished 36 holes all-even and Palmer walked to the tee of the first extra hole where he had to wait 10 minutes because Charles had gone into the clubhouse.

"If I had known he was going in, I would have followed him and suggested we play the extra hole tomorrow morning because it was getting dark," Palmer said.

Palmer lost the extra hole and then had something to say about the crowd of around 6000 fans who swarmed over the fairway to watch the play.

"There's no other major tournament in the world where the gallery gets out of control as it does here," said Palmer. "It is one reason why I missed this tournament last year and the year before."

Nicklaus was the favorite to retain the championship in which eight star golfers compete face-to-face in 36-hole matches for prizes totalling $60,000. The winner picks up $20,400.

"The man who can putt will win the championship," said Nicklaus, who wasn't pleased with that part of his game in his opening match Thursday against Liang Huan Lu, the popular player from Taiwan known to British fans as Mister Lu.

Nicklaus beat Lu 2 and 1 in a match that began like a walkover for the American, who went four up after 14 holes but then saw his lead turned into a one-hole deficit by the 16th.

Coles, the English Ryder Cup star, qualified to meet Nicklaus with a 5 and 4 victory over U.S. Masters champion Charles Coody of Texas.

Some of the wise money was on Player to recapture the title he won in 1963, 1966 and 1968.

Player Thursday eliminated Britain's ailing Tony Jacklin 4 and 3.

TEE TOPICS

Spread in Final Is 45 Years

GEORGE BIGELOW faces junior champ

It's club championship weekend, at four of the six Greater Victoria Courses.

Victoria, Uplands, Gorge Vale and Glen Meadows all will declare their club champions this weekend. Cedar Hill's titleholder will be named Oct. 17 and Colwood will complete the parade with its final on Oct. 24.

The spread will be 45 years when Dr. George Bigelow, the 62-year-old former national seniors champion, faces 17-year-old Duncan Conrad in the 36-hole Victoria Club final Saturday, starting at 9 a.m.

Bigelow was never ahead until he finally won the 20th hole in last week's semi-final victory over Bob McKean. Conrad, the club's junior champion, defeated Jim Barry, one up.

Dave Mick, who sparked B.C. to its Willingdon Cup triumph this summer, will be the heavy favorite in the Gorge Vale final on Sunday. Mick, who defeated Junior Bob Beauchemin 5 and 4 in the semi-finals, faces Urban Allen.

Allen defeated Don Marsden, one up, in the other semi-final.

Mick played even-par golf in the semi-finals despite a steady downpour.

New faces show in Uplands' final, also scheduled Sunday. Mike Gray and Ted Pollard both are bidding for their first club championship.

At Senior, three down after 12 holes but pulling even with three straight birdies, carried Gray to the 18th while Pollard eliminated Jim Douglas in last Sunday's semi-finals.

Glen Meadows' finalists — Marty Richards and Brian Shuggett — were decided two weeks ago.

Brian Gandy faces Ron Griffiths and Wayne O'Malley meets Doug Hunt in Sunday's semi-finals at Cedar Hill. Gandy defeated Ron Ferguson, 3 and 2; Griffiths was approximately one over par in eliminating Ron Stewart, 4 and 3; O'Malley bounced medalist Gordie Rands, one up, and Hunt downed Cy Spaven 4 and 3.

Only four of the eight quarter-final matches were completed at Colwood last weekend. Four matches bowed to weather conditions but Fred Hanson, Ron Howard Sr., Ernie Betteridge and Bruce Chisholm beat the elements and opposition.

Hanson took out veteran Vic Painter, 4 and 3; Howard edged Doug Gerow, 3 and 1; Betteridge beat Joe Evans, while Chisholm downed Ray Crabbe.

SHORT CHIPS: Former city women's champion Shirley Naysmith counted the second hole-in-one of her career, scoring on the 163-yard 10th hole at Gorge Vale while playing in a foursome with June Lovitt, Bernice Breffitt and Peggy Matthews. Rick Truman of Cedar Hill counted his second ace in less than a month by sinking his tee shot on the 14th hole at Victoria. Truman, playing with Brian Gandy, Morris Kozak and Bruce Rands, counted his first hole-in-one in the recent Alberta Open. Uplands is looking for a new head greenskeeper following the resignation of Rod Perks.

Medallist Betty Strome wrapped up the Cedar Hill women's championship by defeating Isabel McMillan one up. Charles Davis of Portland has been re-elected president of the Pacific Northwest Golf Association for a third straight term.

CANADIAN GIRL LEADS BY ONE

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (Reuter) — Jocelyne Bourassa, of Shawinigan Falls, Que., held a one-stroke lead after the second round in the 73-hole New Zealand women's golf championship today. The Canadian girl, helped by three birdies in four holes on her inward half, shot a par 71 for a 36-hole total of 150. On both the 13th and 14th greens, she sank putts of 40 feet.

Sharing second place at 151 were New Zealanders Marilyn Smith and Jean Whithead.

Marilyn Palmer of Kamloops, B.C., had rounds of 78 and 77 for 155.

Biggs Returning To Racing Post

John Biggs was re-elected president of the Vancouver Island Track Racing Association at the group's annual meeting.

Other officers elected were Ken Alexander, vice-president; Fred Ford, secretary; Lawrence Fox, treasurer; and Bob Macmurchie, Rick O'Dell and Frank Killo, directors.

Bruder Collects Third Finn Win

TORONTO (CP) — Defending champion Georg Bruder of Brazil won for the third day in a row Thursday, taking the fifth race in the Finn Cup world championship sailing races.

High Rent, Poor Turnouts Worrying Grey Cup Champs

MONTREAL (CP) — The defending Grey Cup champions are losing money, Red O'Quinn, general manager of Montreal Alouettes, said Thursday.

"It's something I really even don't like to talk about," O'Quinn said.

"Every time we start talking about our financial position, people say we are crying."

The biggest problem, still, is getting fans to fill the Autostar, a detriment in which the Alouettes have fallen behind last year's pace.

O'Quinn's figures show that after five home games, Montreal has drawn 16,957 fewer fans, 108,778 to 123,725.

Gotta Switches Former Eskimos

OTTAWA (CP) — Coach Jack Gotta announced Thursday that Ottawa Rough Riders have replaced one former Edmonton Eskimo with another.

The Eastern Football Conference club cut wide-receiver Terry Swann and signed full-back Bob Houmard. Both started the season in the Western Conference with the Eskimos.

Ulster Cup Victory

LONDON (CP) — Glenoran beat Derry, 4-1, in an Ulster Cup soccer match Thursday night.

And with more fans in 1970, the team ended up with a $100,000 deficit. With ticket prices raised a dollar each, Montreal cannot expect to do better than finishing even with last year's deficit.

"This isn't a non-profit, community-run project," O'Quinn said.

"We can't go around holding $100-a-plate dinners like they do in Regina and other western cities."

"And we can't go on losing $100,000 a year, year after year," O'Quinn added.

RENT IS HIGH

With one of the highest stadium rentals in North America — 35 per cent of the take — and other factors, Montreal needs to average 25,000 fans each game to break even annually.

So far this year the Alouettes have averaged 21,356 and the break-even point for the season is 69,000 fans away. Even if their last two home games could fill the 33,000-seat Autostar to capacity, the club would still fall short of that objective.

O'Quinn has a lot of ideas why the fans have not been responding this year but no solutions.

"But I think one of the biggest problems is the fact that football interest just deteriorated badly in the past 10 years," he said.

O'Quinn admitted that 1971 has been a tough one financially for Montreal.

McGinnis Clubs Face Off Monday

The new-look Stuffy McGinnis Men's Hockey League starts its 1971 season Monday with an afternoon doubleheader scheduled at Memorial Arena.

CFB Esquimalt Blues are slated to meet Empress Paint in a 2 p.m. contest, while Ingham Buckaroos tackle the league's new entry, Stocker North Americans, at 3:30.

Stocker, the Colony Cup champions last year in the Vancouver Island Hockey League, appear to be a threat in the McGinnis League as well. Coached by Norm Jones, Tom Allen will lead the Buck's offence at centre, and Ron Griffiths is expected to be strong in goal.

The team which could pull an upset this season is Empress Paint, last year's champions in regular-season play. Coached by Larry Laroche, Empress has veterans Lonnie Restall and Bob Holmes returning.

The Andy George-coached CFB Esquimalt team hopes to be known as the "Blues" in name only this year following a dismal last-place finish last season. Manager Johnny Bond says his squad will wear white uniforms this year.

Youngsters will be admitted free of charge to Monday's afternoon games only. The schedule this year calls for two games every Monday night at the arena, starting at 8:15 p.m.

No games are scheduled for Dec. 27 and Jan. 24. Regular season play ends March 13.

AROUND OUR SHORES

Only 10 Boats in New Race

Canada's first half-ton championship racing begins in Vancouver this weekend, bringing to our country a type of competition that began in England about three years ago and hit the United States for the first time last year.

The aim of the game in half-ton racing is to prove that small boats, if seaworthy and well-equipped, can race offshore as well as the larger gold-plated dollar-devourers.

To be eligible, among many other factors, no boat can have a higher IOR (International Offshore Rule) rating than 21.7. She should have standing room of 47 inches for at least 47 inches in her cabin, fore and aft, a gimbal stove, water capacity of 13½ gallons and a hanging locker large enough for four jackets and pants.

The rules for the Vancouver series also state that the crew should remain the same in all four races.

It's unfortunate that only 10 boats, nine of them from the Vancouver area and one from Portland, will be there to make sailing history in Canada.

But by this time of the year most yachtsmen have taken all their holiday time in a mixture of racing and cruising during the summer months. The Vancouver series, to be raced Saturday, Sunday and next Thursday means that out-of-towners must be prepared to spend two weeks in Vancouver.

Jay Lewis, organizer of the series, reports that they've bent the rules a bit in order to encourage skippers to try this new form of racing which, unlike any other sailing for cruising class boats has them all competing with the same rating, 21.7. This means that if you're much lower you try to jack up your sail area and use other means in order to give your boat a more even break.

Lewis reports that his committee are not insisting on the headroom or gimbal stove requirements and they'll be receptive to crew changes during the series.

Their main objective is to give Canadian skippers a taste of this type of competition.

But they'll not be fooling around when it comes to ensuring that all safety requirements are met.

Curling Veteran Bill Walsh Dies

WINNIPEG (CP) — Bill Walsh Sr., two-time winner of the Canadian men's curling championships died in hospital here Thursday. Walsh, 54, had been in ill health for several months.

The first president of the Manitoba junior curling association, he skipped his rink to the Canadian men's championship in 1952 and again in 1956.

ments are met. Beginning this morning, all 10 boats were open to inspection by the committee and other skippers and crews.

Two races will be sailed Saturday, the first an Olympic course, the second, a 50-mile. There'll be another Olympic course race on Sunday. The finale will be a 150-mile offshore race on Thursday.

What happens in this Vancouver series may well decide whether half-ton racing catches on in Canada.

It's too bad it was organized at a time of the year when because of the time involved, a national championship has to be restricted to nine Vancouverites and an Oregon boat.

The Canoe Bay Sailing Club, which prefers to cruise in the summer, and get down to racing when the season ends, is back in action again.

Twenty-three boats were on the start line for a six-mile race Saturday, which ended with only 14 being able to finish within the time limit because of light winds.

Bud Peetz's Saki was the over-all winner. She was followed by Bert Buchanan's Lairig Ghu, Will Jensen's Yogi, Jack Smith's Reality, Don Evans' II, Miles Dighton's Obsession, Gordie Inglis' Salt Shaker, Dave Taylor's Achates, Dick Fisher's Tricky Dick, Will Fahning's Little Baelit, Dave Christian's Invi-ta, Crosby Smith's Dor Cross, Merv Bretnon's Bird of Dawning and Ole Backhaus' Shanghai.

SHORT TACKS — The hardy breed of frostbiters at the Royal Victoria Yacht Club are all set for another winter of dinghy racing. Things got under way Saturday with a shakedown sailout at 1:30 p.m. The first race of the season's first series will be held the following Saturday at the same time.

BUCKET BRIGADE FOR PENNY PITCHERS

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Two young men arrested for pitching pennies in Fountain Square Plaza have been sentenced to 10 days of cleaning up the plaza.

Judge Paul Gilday sentenced Howard Kenner, 25, and Joseph Williams, 19, after they refused a police order to stop pitching pennies. The two men will report to the square at noon for the next 10 days with broom and buckets for four hours.

Kenner, after being sentenced, commented: "I think it's stupid. What are the courts coming to today?"

Mexico, U.S. Cities Eye CFL Franchises

TORONTO (CP) — New York, Tampa, Fla., Chicago and Mexico City have made formal or indirect bids for Canadian Football League franchises, commissioner Jake Gaudaur said Thursday.

Gaudaur, long opposed to CFL expansion outside Canada for "nationalistic" and "practical" reasons, said all applications would be considered by the league's executive committee.

"Two groups in New York have, in writing, said they intend to make formal application for a CFL franchise," Gaudaur said. One of the New York groups is said to be headed by Ottawa-born singer, Paul Anka.

"We also have a letter from a lawyer in Mexico City purporting to represent a group seriously interested in acquiring a franchise."

The Chicago bid, he said, came in a telephone conversation asking what procedures a group there should take to apply for a CFL franchise. He said a letter was expected from the Chicago bidders.

The Tampa bid, he added, was less than serious and he didn't expect to hear anything further from this source.

"It sounded more like the interest shown by San Antonio (Tex.) earlier in the year," said Gaudaur. Much was made of the San Antonio interest, but nothing formal arose from the discussions.

More recently, bids from a Detroit-Windsor, Ont.-based group, to play out of Detroit, was rejected.

Has all this interest changed Gaudaur's thinking on expansion beyond the Canadian border?

"It's flattering to have all this interest and I think it's academic proof we're becoming better known outside," said Gaudaur, adding that his opposition "has been a philosophical argument based on nationalism."

But on the practical side, if such expansion came to be, Gaudaur could not see how the CFL could then object to a National Football League franchise moving into one or more of its franchise cities.

"And as bigger U.S. centres came in, a smaller Canadian centre would be forced to drop by the wayside."

Gaudaur said he doesn't "have any unilateral authority in this area", of franchise distribution. It was his "responsibility to bring any interested applications before the executive committee for consideration."

When the Dust Settles...

Housewives may find this hard to believe, but Victoria had the least average dustfall of 14 cities surveyed in a national air-sampling program last year.

An average of 8.5 tons of dust a month settled on each square mile of Greater Victoria over a 12-month period, according to figures released this week by Environment Minister Jack Davis.

A dustfall reading is considered a main indicator of air pollution.

The highest average was recorded at Sidney, N.S., with 87 tons a month. In Ottawa it was 30.7.

In a second test to measure air pollution — sampling the concentration of suspended particles in the air — Victoria was sixth out of 23 cities over a 12-month period.

The average here was 60 micrograms per cubic metre of air. Fredericton had the lowest at 39 micrograms and Hamilton the highest with 168.3.

The air sampling program will be expanded to other cities, Davis said, as a vital step to future pollution control legislation.

Post Office Cuts Mail Frequency

Victoria post office will reduce the frequency of its business mail delivery in the Greater Victoria area Oct. 18, it was announced Thursday.

But post office officials said a survey of a "cross-section" of Victoria businessmen showed the curtailment would have no adverse effect on their business.

Ken Stoffer, post office public information officer, said the present three deliveries a day to business firms in the downtown area will be cut to two, morning and afternoon, eliminating the mid-morning delivery.

The service would be reduced from two deliveries a day to one in the outlying areas.

Meanwhile, Ottawa announced Thursday that Christmas cards in unsealed envelopes destined for all points in Canada must be mailed by Dec. 8. Cards for points within the same city should be mailed before Dec. 17.

Unsealed cards for delivery within Canada are mailed for six cents.

Christmas cards for overseas delivery may be mailed in unsealed envelopes and travel by air mail for 12 cents or by surface mail at an eight-cent rate.

The post office says overseas cards travelling at the cheaper eight-cent rate will travel by air when space is available.

Sealed cards will travel at first-class letter rates: To destinations in Canada, seven cents; to United States points, either seven cents for surface mail or 10 cents for air mail; and to all overseas points, 15 cents.

Christmas mail for Africa, the Middle East, Cuba, and the Orient should be mailed by Dec. 9 while mail for all other points except Britain has a Dec. 10 deadline. The deadline for mail bound for Britain is Dec. 14.

Meeting Picketed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The annual meeting of National Nursing Homes Ltd. was picketed Thursday.

Until three months ago, the Vancouver-based company managed under contract the Sandringham private hospital in Victoria which is locked in a bitter dispute with the Canadian Union of Public Employees for a first contract.

Six women stood with signs at entrances to the Hotel Vancouver, where the meeting was held. Slogans on the signs accused them of being anti-labor and having no social conscience.

One of the group said they were protesting the "hypocrisy" of the company which said would not negotiate a fair wage but had an increase in revenue to $6,073,556 this year from $4,824,046 a year earlier.

However, the annual report showed net income and earnings per share were down in 1971, to $544,990, from $665,371.

In response to a question from the floor, NNE president Neil Cook, said management of the Sandringham hospital has been transferred back to its original owners, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Shepherd of West Vancouver and Jack Macgill.

We simply withdrew through mutual consent," Cook said.

People

LONDON — The year-long battle of the Wimpy Bars has been won by the women. The chain of all-night hamburger restaurants has bowed to the demands that uncoordinated women may enter between the hours of midnight and 6 a.m. The women charged "blatant sexual discrimination."

VANCOUVER — A two-month traverse of British Columbia by water from north to south ends this weekend for Sir Basil and Twissle-Wykeham-Fiennes and his six crew members at English Bay. They passed their last major hurdle — Hell's Gate rapids — losing $1,300 worth of camera equipment.

HARRISBURG, Pa. — Another bastion of female privacy has fallen to the drive of equality of the sexes. Attorney-General Shano Cresmer has ruled that beauty parlors may not refuse to cut or style the hair of male patrons.

ORLANDO, Fla. — Tempest Storm is blowing up a storm over what she calls "near-sighted cops." Arrested for topless dancing, the 48-21-38 entertainer claims she was wearing pasties. "Next time I'll put a diamond in the centre of each one so the police will be able to see them," she's out on $500 bail.

VANCOUVER — Larry and Missy got a taste of freedom Thursday at Stanley Park when they got out via a hole in the roof of the monkey cage. For Larry freedom was a case of unrequited love as he dashed over to Mrs. Joan's Ulmer and hugged her. Park attendants managed to round up the chimps after a lot of coaxing and the use of nets.

Finalists Honored

Five Victoria finalists in the provincial plumbing and steamfitting apprenticeship contest last June were honored at a dinner Thursday night organized by the joint training committee.

One of them, Stan Johns, came second in the steamfitting contest, only 0.4 per cent behind the winner, said Alex Simpson, apprentice co-ordinator for the Vancouver Island piping industry.

Now a journeyman, Simpson said Johns is "If not the youngest, very definitely closely in that area, in the trade." Johns is 21.

Other finalists in the contest honored at the dinner were Gerald Ozard, Colin Smith, James Ross and William Freethy, all plumbers.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Two young men appeared in court Thursday for sentence by Judge William Ostler in separate trafficking offences. One was given a definite, indeterminate prison term and the other a nominal one day in jail and a $750 fine.

Brian Patton, 1302 Astle, Ostler said, was "a special case" although "perilously close" to going to jail.

Drug trafficking offenders usually receive prison sentences.

Patton was earlier convicted of trafficking in hashish. Half an ounce of the substance was involved in a sale to an undercover agent.

Defence counsel Dermot Owen-Flood called character witnesses who pointed out that the accused was a good husband and father with a good job and well thought of at his place of employment.

Owen-Flood noted that Patton had no previous related record and a probation officer had said the man was doing his utmost to become a useful member of society.

Ostler said cases of this type were "grievously difficult" for both Crown and defence counsels.

Prosecutor Rodney Taylor, contended that Patton's was a special case.

Ostler sentenced the accused to a day in jail and fined him $750 as well as putting him on a two-year probation.

The second accused, Bruce K. Erven, 19, of 130 Robertson, Ostler sentenced to nine months definite and 18 months indeterminate in prison.

Erven pleaded guilty Sept. 17 to possession of a narcotic for the purposes of trafficking.

Four to five pounds of marijuana were found by police at the accused's residence when searched Sept. 13.

An officer testified earlier that the substance would sell for about $1,100.

Two other persons charged jointly with Erven had their charges stayed by the Crown when the accused pleaded guilty.

Ostler noted that the accused was "emotionally deprived," not having the close association of a family so primarily important in developing character.

He called Erven's presentence report "a disturbing one" with a long association with drugs.

A stay of proceedings was entered by the Crown in the case of James W. Buckner, 27, of 4853 Cordova Bay, charged with possession of a narcotic for the purposes of trafficking.

He had earlier pleaded not guilty and a preliminary hearing was to have begun Wednesday.

Michael R. Waring, 18, of 3120 Qu'Appelle, was sentenced to four months definite and 12 months indeterminate in prison for stealing a wallet with $81 from a fellow tenant in his residence.

Waring earlier pleaded guilty and admitted he had been on heroin for about two years, lately using two or three $20 capsules a day.

Ostler said he was "appalled" at the 18-year-old having such an appetite for the substance. He noted that the accused had said he spent $1,800 on heroin over the past month.

The judge added, however, that Waring seemed to be resolved to break his habit.

Barry Billan, 26, of no fixed address, was sentenced to one day and allowed to go when he pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance at a theatre production at Langham Court Theatre Sept. 30.

A 10-day production "Marat Sade" by the Uvic Players Club will conclude Saturday at the theatre.

Ostler asked Billan if he thought the performance was participatory theatre. The accused said yes.

"Apparently a lot of people were enjoying it, the accused said, 'but someone called the police.'"

Court was told that police arrived about 11 p.m. to find Billan sitting at the back of the stage, shouting incoherently.

He was chased around the theatre and apprehended following a struggle.

Andrew Roy Kennedy, 39, of 1817 Michelle Place, was fined a total of $600 by Judge E. F. N. Robinson for impaired driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

He was prohibited from driving for three months.

Hisashi Gerald Matsubuchi, 30, of 1045 Pandora, was sentenced to a month in prison when he pleaded guilty to stealing a pair of shoes from The Bay about 1 p.m. Wednesday.

Judge William Ostler imposed the sentence after the accused acknowledged that he had a similar conviction two years ago.

Raymond Joseph Healey, 40, was fined $300 for driving with a blood-alcohol content of more than .08 per cent and prohibited from driving for three months.

Tax Changes Wanted To Offset U.S. Move

OTTAWA (CP) — One Liberal backbencher invoked Erio Klerans and another advocated retaliation Thursday as the Commons discussed the Canadian reaction to U.S. economic policies.

Hugh Faulkner (L—Peterborough) supported what he called the most eloquent plea of Mr. Klerans, former Liberal minister, that the government stop tax discrimination against the manufacturing sector—hit most by the U.S. measures—in deference to resource industries.

Robert Kaplan (L—Don Valley) said the government's tax change bill would have to be revised if U.S. intentions are "what they appear to be" in changing U.S.-Canadian economic relations.

If the U.S. was going to treat Canada as a resource depot, Canada would have to revise its tax laws to stimulate manufacturing, exports and employment in a way that had never been necessary or desirable before.

Their comments came on second-reading debate on the government's tax change bill.

DEFEAT AMENDMENT

A Conservative amendment calling the bill inadequate to deal with the country's economic problems was voted down 92 to 56. All Liberals present were opposed and all other parties voted in favor.

As the government moved toward critical decisions in what External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday could be a fundamental reassessment of Canada's relationship with the United States, nearly all debate focused on that issue.

Mr. Kaplan said Canada and the U.S. had been involved in an economic partnership of great benefit to both countries.

But if U.S. was changing its economic policy towards Canada, then this country would have to retaliate with measures similar to the U.S. 10-per-cent import surtax, its export-promoting and buy-American tax incentives.

REJECTS NDP IDEA

He rejected suggestions by New Democratic Leader David Lewis that Canada impose an export surtax on resources needed by the U.S., saying the U.S. wasn't really all that dependent on Canadian resources.

Middle East oil was cheaper than Canadian oil, natural gas could be replaced with oil, and nickel was being produced in other countries.

In a recent Commons finance committee meeting, Mr. Kaplan suggested Canada put a special tax on dividends and interest flowing to U.S. citizens from Canadian investments.

Mr. Faulkner agreed the U.S. had gone too far in trying ing to repair its balance-of-payments deficit and was threatening world trade structures.

But he said it was to the credit of the Canadian government that it had not attempted to retaliate. Rather, he said, Canada should bargain with the U.S. and other countries from strength, on the basis of its good record on free trade, and "not make all the concessions."

CITES KIERANS

Mr. Faulkner then invoked Mr. Klerans's theories on both the need for co-operation among labor, business and government and on the contention that resource exports, favored by tax concessions aren't enough for real Canadian development.

He agreed with Wednesday's report of the Science Council of Canada that Canadian manufacturing, on the other hand, is not growing rapidly enough.

The government should push for more processing of resource exports domestically, Mr. Faulkner said, and give priority to making a statement on foreign ownership of resources and industry.

Ran Harding (NDP—Kootenay West) also praised Mr. Klerans. The former minister had shown how unjustly the income tax system favored big mineral-fuels business, he said.

POLICE IDENTIFY DU PONT VICTIMS

MONTREAL (CP) — A 27-year-old man is being held on a coroner's warrant following the shotgun slayings Thursday of three employees of Du Pont of Canada Ltd. in their downtown offices.

Police say Vincent Joseph Meloche, dismissed the day before as a sales representative with the company, gave himself up shortly after the shootings and will be held pending a coroner's inquest.

The three victims were senior personnel in the company's sales division. Autopsies have been completed on two of the bodies but a police spokesman declined to give results.

The victims, each shot in the head, were identified as J. C. Cawley, 48, sales manager of the film division, Brian Mathews, 61, sales office supervisor, and Gordon Langlois, 42, eastern district sales manager.

DEMANDS A JOB

Mr. Cawley was to be presented with a gold pin at a special luncheon later in the day for 25 years of service with the company.

Police said a man entered the Du Pont offices at 555 Dorchester Boulevard, near the busy intersection of Beaver Hall Hill at 10:30 a.m. He interrupted a meeting between Mr. Cawley and Mr. Mathews and demanded employment.

The man pulled out a .410-calibre shotgun when they refused, police said, and shot them in the head.

He then went through a passageway leading to Du Pont offices in an adjoining building, and shot Mr. Langlois.

Heavily-armed police moved in on the buildings and ordered them evacuated. They also blocked off part of Dorchester Boulevard.

Believing the man to be still inside, police asked office workers to leave or to lock themselves in their offices or a washroom.

Lieut. Larry Levis of the Montreal police said a man was arrested about 10 blocks from the scene after he telephoned police about 11 a.m. saying he wanted to give himself up.

Mr. Cawley, a native of Haileybury, Ont., is survived by his wife, a son and two daughters.

Mr. Mathews, from Shawbridge, Que., is survived by his wife and two sons.

Mr. Langlois, born in Ottawa in 1929, was also a 25-year employee at Du Pont. He is survived by his wife and one daughter.

Plans Scrapped

VANCOUVER (CP)—Plans for a 42-storey hotel at the southeast corner of Georgia and Seymour in the downtown area have been scrapped and the land has been sold to British Columbia Telephone Co. by its Hong Kong owners, it was announced here.

Ho-Chapman, managing director of the Investment Syndicate, said in a telephone interview from Hong Kong that difficulties in obtaining financing and management for the hotel forced the group to scrub the venture.

Drug Battle 'Takes Time' Says Brothers

Education Minister Donald Brothers said Thursday critics of the government's drug abuse committee must realize it takes time to develop effective anti-drug policies and programs.

"We're just starting off in British Columbia to attack the thing, and we're the first province in Canada to do this," Brothers said in an interview.

Brothers is chairman of the committee which also includes Health Minister Ralph Loffmark, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson, deputy provincial secretary Lawrie Wallace and deputy travel industry minister Ron Worley.

The education minister said the committee's first priority is an education campaign now being conducted in all news media.

He said this will continue well into 1972 but refused to place any cost estimate on the advertising.

Other committee programs include plans for in-school presentations about drug use.

Brothers said he hopes the first of several teams of informed people and former drug users will be visiting schools before Christmas.

Resignation Regretted

He said he regretted the resignation of Saanich police Sgt. Bill Chisholm from the committee, Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis charged Tuesday Chisholm resigned because he was being used as a "political pawn."

Brothers said: "It doesn't help to have people come out with statements that it's just a political ruse." But he praised Curtis for speedily making Chisholm available to the committee.

Chisholm's departure, Brothers said, will delay progress on the in-school program, because the Saanich policeman had become an expert in the field.

The B.C. Medical Association Wednesday passed a resolution calling on the committee to outline its programs, particularly regarding the treatment and rehabilitation of heroin addicts.

Brothers said rehabilitation programs will be developed later as will anti-drinking campaigns and programs designed to counter the abuse of prescribed drugs.

He suggested the BCMA contact Loffmark on the question of rehabilitation for heroin addicts.

Other committee programs, Brothers said, include a call for proposals for an anti-drug film. The committee will decide which makes the film before December. Brothers said it is unlikely the film will be in production before 1972.

The committee intends to survey work being done by private agencies in drug education and rehabilitation and set up advisory committees throughout B.C. to inform the government of specific community problems.

Kick in the Face Costs Man $50

A city man was fined $50 today by Judge William Ostler for kicking a cab driver in the face when he was refused a ride.

It was "just stupidity," James W. Warrington, 1012 North Park, said when asked to explain his actions by Ostler.

Warrington pleaded guilty to common assault.

Court was told that cab driver, Les Brown, 221 Sims, refused to pick up Warrington at his home Sept. 29 because he was too drunk.

Working Prisoners To Get $1.75 Rate

Selected prisoners at William Head minimum security establishment will soon be paid a federal minimum wage of $1.75 an hour to do construction work on prison grounds.

The announcement was made Thursday in the Commons by Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer who was outlining a new federal policy of rehabilitation instead of punishment.

Goyer said the reforms, which will include family visits, prison committees and even income tax, are aimed at the 80 per cent or more of prisoners who can return to normal life.

Gamaliel Milner, superintendent of William Head, said today he has not yet been given specific instructions on the new program but he has been aware of the steps leading up to it.

REWARD FOR WORK

He said only prisoners "who are reasonably skilled and willing to go to work" will be selected for the job, which he expects will be the construction of new vocational shops.

If a prisoner does not put full effort into it he will be taken off the job, Milner said.

"It will just be like working out in the world. If he works he is awarded accordingly."

Currently, prisoners get paid between 55 and 65 cents a day for normal duties. Those who are completely uncooperative don't get paid at all.

Milner said prison committees have been in operation for some time and recently their sizes have been expanded. Those committees, he said, make recommendations on behalf of the 140-prisoner there on ways to improve rehabilitation.

In the Commons, Goyer said visits by the prisoner's family, "under conditions which are to comply more fully with the requirements for privacy," are one aspect of the program. (For the past three years selected prisoners at William Head have been allowed to make weekend visits to their families.)

Goyer said that establishment of elected prisoner committees for co-operation with prison officials has already been set in motion across Canada.

The new wage "will make it possible for them to pay for their room and board at the institution, to pay for their clothing, to help support their family, to save money for their eventual release from prison, to pay their taxes and to be eligible for payments under unemployment insurance acts," Goyer said.

"Once released, an inmate may be less inclined to rob a bank. On the contrary, he will already have a bank account."

"He may even, as in the case of other workers, receive unemployment insurance payments during the period required for finding some employment."

ance and workmen's compensation acts," Goyer said.

CESSNAS TO CROSS TWICE DAILY

Air Link Set With Abbotsford

Twice-daily service between the Inner Harbor and the middle Fraser Valley will be launched immediately with light amphibious aircraft of Abbotsford Air Services Ltd.

The company, operating out of Abbotsford airport, was granted a charter to fly the regular service on a demand basis in addition to its charter work.

A Cessna 180 with retractable wheels will connect the Inner Harbor with the hard surface airport serving Fraser Valley communities 50-60 miles from Vancouver.

The company said there is a demand by lawyers, real estate agents and municipal officials particularly for fast transportation to the capital.

TWO SERVICES NOW

Under terms of its licence, the company would not be required to make flights if there are no passengers, but initially it is intended to leave Abbotsford at about 8:15 a.m. and 4 p.m., returning almost immediately.

Additional flights may be added as required by volume of traffic.

Two float-equipped flying services now operate out of the Inner Harbor. Air West and Victoria Flying Services both connect with Vancouver Harbor, some flights directly, some by way of Duncan and the Gulf Islands.

A spokesman for the firm said businessmen wanting to visit Victoria for a few hours must now waste an hour driving to Vancouver airport and a half-hour driving from Victoria airport downtown, repeating the performance en route home.

SIX FARE

Total travelling time from Abbotsford airport to the Inner Harbor is 45 minutes, he said. Fare will be about $16 each way.

Permission was granted by the air transport committee of the Canadian Transport Commission.

The commission rejected the original application April

15, 1970, and upheld its decision Oct. 9, 1970. But Abbotsford Air appealed to the transport minister and the minister asked the commission to review the case.

In its decision, the commission noted the minister had said that Abbotsford Air would not hurt existing carriers since Abbotsford was sufficiently far from Vancouver as not to affect Vancouver-Victoria traffic. Abbotsford is 50 miles southeast of Vancouver.

Canadian Pacific's marine section.

West Tours had earlier planned to omit the Victoria call and use only Vancouver.

Sam Lane, president of the Greater Victoria Visitors and Convention Bureau, said the Seattle company's reasons for considering boycotting Victoria had been mainly based on "logistics."

Lane said the company would be using slower ships in 1972 that would need eight hours for the crossings between the mainland and Victoria.

They had also been concerned about their passengers having good connections by planes and Canadian Pacific boats.

Negotiations also ironed out problems connected with the victualing and refueling of the cruise ships.

The bureau and Jack Thomas, manager of the Vancouver Island Coach Lines, had acted as intermediaries in the dispute between Canadian Pacific and the Seattle company.

Lane said that Harry Tyson, manager of CP's marine section, "deserved all the accolades."

He said CP had gone out of its way to co-operate.

Last year, Lane said, West Tours conducted a total of 45 cruises from Victoria to Alaska. Had they withdrawn Victoria from their schedule Lane estimated this would have meant a loss of about $150,000 in tourist revenue.

"There were a total of 11,000 tourists on the cruise ships this year. They stay here two days before the ship goes to Alaska and another two on her return."

"This gives you an idea of how much would be lost to the tourist industry if the Victoria stop had been cancelled."

However, while I don't see the report as a fully acceptable blueprint for federal action, I think it deserves attention as the most enlightening testament on modern youth to come my way. It merits wide distribution, and unbiased reading.

Fuel Tanks Intact As Barge Lifted

The federal fisheries laboratory barge Velella, her top deck swept away and laboratory deck badly mangled, was towed to Victoria this afternoon after being sunk in Active Pass for 23 days.

Posing a threat to pollution while she lay on the bottom, the Velella's fuel tanks had a capacity of 10,000 gallons.

Lt.-Cmdr. Art Rowe, whose navy divers helped beach her at Campbell Bay in Active Pass Thursday, said no tanks were damaged.

Only traces of oil from the barge's bilges had escaped into the pass.

The sinking occurred Sept. 15 when the Velella was being towed from Port Alberni to Nanaimo by the navy tug St. Anthony.

DEADHEAD DAMAGE
The barge began taking water northeast of Boundary Pass and the St. Anthony tried to get her to shallow water before she was lost.

She was in 90 feet of water off Campbell Bay on Mayne Island when she sank.

Rowe said today she had apparently been holed by a deadhead.

"We found a hole that had split a seam six inches by two,"

Rowe said his men had been working on her since Sunday, helping to bring her ashore. They worked all night Thursday to patch her hull sufficiently to get her off the beach today.

They pumped the diesel oil from her tanks into a holding tank aboard the YFP 250.

Although the ecology was not damaged to any degree this time, Rowe says the exercise gave his men a good idea of what could be expected had there been an oil spill.

DECK LOST

The Velella, operated by the Fisheries Biological Station at Nanaimo, had her top deck, with its accommodation for 14 scientists completely swept away when she sank. The lower deck of aluminum and steel contained the laboratories.

'No Doubt at All' on Mayor Standing for Re-Election

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock has decided he will "definitely" seek re-election this December.

Earlier this week Haddock seemed to be lining he might not stand again for the mayoralty, but he said today there's now "no doubt at all" he will be a candidate.

"I saw my doctor Wednesday and he's given me a clean bill of health," Haddock said. "I feel fine."

He added his doctor must have been convinced his patient was fit again because "he called me to suggest a game of golf on Saturday. I didn't call him."

Haddock returned to civic hall duties Monday from a long convalescence following a heart attack he suffered July 15.

IN THE FLURRY touched off by the Committee on Youth report, some over-hasty judgments were rendered. One of these branded the inquiry a half-million dollar mistake.

After trudging through the report, I find that estimate hard to accept.

It could turn out that the sum was well spent in digging out potentially useful information.

The three inquiry commissioners—one over 30 and the other two edging toward that rather arbitrary cutoff point between generations—seem to have done a pretty thorough job. For did they content themselves with testing attitudes and collective views from the hip-folk.

If they hearkened to the voice of Toronto's Rochdale, they also heard from the Girl Guides of Canada. My impression is that they at least tried to deal faithfully in their sampling and reporting of young Canadian opinions.

And if at times their assessments go swooping off in visionary flight, they frequently make sense. Certainly many points made repeatedly in this long, comprehensive and detailed study deserve thoughtful weighing.

"Very often," the commissioners point out, "it is assumed that the society young persons enter today is the same as that of their parents when they were young. This is not the case."

"The situation has changed rapidly in the last few years. As a group, young people appear to be more conscious of their own identity, are more vocal, and much more involved in public life. Their increased numbers, more advanced schooling, and specific claims for goods and services are indications of the irreversible life-styles peculiar to those between 15 and 24 years old."

"Those who wait resignedly or complacently for a return to things as they were may find this conclusion chilling. But the fact of change remains whatever the fate of an off-prickly report. To the extent that an adult population can or should remodel its outlook on youth, we'd be wise to do so."

I find it deeply unfortunate, however, that the commission chose to conclude its excellent presentation on drug use with an emotional and peculiarly illogical decision.

"The medical evidence on cannabis and its derivatives is far from conclusive," they state. "The most reliable studies show it is not physically addictive. Questions about its use by persons with real or incient psychological problems may be valid but the majority would appear able to use cannabis moderately without harmful effect."

Since the medical evidence on marijuana and hashish is far from conclusive, a pitch for legal cultivation, sale, possession and use of the same must be considered damagingly premature.

What the commissioners should have done, after damning both government and the medical profession for failure to have evidence available on which sound judgment could be based, was approved controlled research but withhold any recommendation.

Since they didn't do so, they leave themselves vulnerable to the charge of catering to cannabis users rather than dealing objectively with a situation.

I think the same suspicion

Safety Of Phosphate Substitute In Doubt

TORONTO (CP) — The president of Colgate-Palmolive Ltd. in Canada says he is trying to get the federal government to rule on the use of NTA in laundry detergents.

R. L. Turner says his firm is on record as considering NTA a possible hazard to health, but that its competitors in Canada are using the substance.

In an interview, he said that as detergent manufacturers comply with the federal government's ruling that phosphate content be reduced, the manufacturer who substitutes NTA for phosphate will have a product that is a more effective cleaning agent than the firm that does not.

"We're on record as being against NTA. If we begin to use it, we look like fools. That's the box we're in," he said.

He said he has written to Ron Basford, minister of consumer and corporate affairs and to Jack Davis, minister of environment and of fisheries, but has had no reply.

The United States federal government said Aug. 15 that NTA nitrilotriacetic acid should not be used in detergents because of its possible long-term effects as a cancer-inducing agent.

Mr. Turner says Colgate has not used NTA since January, 1971, when the U.S. surgeon-general first publicly questioned its safety.

The Canadian government has said detergent manufacturers must reduce the amount of phosphate in their products to five per cent by December, 1972. The current legal maximum level is 20 per cent.

Mr. Turner says his firm made a presentation to the Senate committee on health, welfare and science in June, 1970, questioning the safety of NTA. It issued a statement in August, saying it will not use NTA "until its possible carcinogenic effects are fully investigated and the ingredient is proven safe."

He says:

"On the other hand, I'm not going to have a lower quality product and see business taken away from us. You might ask why we don't do a consumer advertising campaign? We don't want to start a fight over what is a public benefit issue. The ecology issue would become a marketing issue."

Job Gives Deaconess 'Deep Responsibility'

Victoria's Joyce Ruddock, a Bishop's Messenger in the Anglican diocese of Brandon for the past 11 years, says quietly: "It's given me a deep sense of responsibility."

She's speaking of her new title, received recently with three other Bishop's Messengers, when they were ordained as deaconesses in the diocese — the first Anglican women in the west to receive the title.

Appointed a Messenger in 1960, after a three-year course at Anglican Women's Theological College, Miss Ruddock was immediately sent to Kinross, some 130 miles north of Winnipeg, a small settlement "right on the shore of Lake Manitoba."

Conducts Services

There she has conducted services in the parish church and in two smaller country churches at Bluff Creek and Reedy Creek, officiated at funerals, given pre-baptism, marriage and confirmation instruction, arranged children's and youth activities, adult gatherings and summer Bible schools.

She did not conduct baptisms or weddings and she did not give Communion. A travelling clergyman came in periodically for those duties.

"I arranged everything for him ahead of time and assisted him at the ceremonies," she explains.

Now, as a deaconess, this will change. When she returns to Kinross, after a visit here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Ruddock, she will do her own baptizing and marrying.

Communion will still be taken by a visiting clergyman with the young deaconess, resplendent in her new robes, carrying the chalice.

Return to Quiet

Young people go off to the city on occasions looking for work "but in many instances they become disillusioned and return to the quiet ways of Kinross."

The new deaconess will continue to travel about in her car, over gravel roads "that are well kept up." She will live, as she has done in the past, in the mission house.

"When I first went up there it was a pioneer building with no conveniences. Now I'm in a fairly new place with running water and an oil furnace."

She does her own cooking, "that is if I'm not eating out." The women up there are excellent cooks and very proud of the fact. "I'm always getting invitations to eat... it's hard on the figure."

Winters are long: "The lake freezes over in early November and stays that way until mid-May."

Summers Short

Summers, on the other hand, while short, "are wonderful for growing things. Everyone has a good vegetable garden."

Experiences? Adventures? Joyce Ruddock laughs when you ask those questions.

Nothing to write about, she insists, unless you place in that category being locked in the church when a doorknob collapsed during a visit of the bishop of the diocese and having to toll the bell to attract attention, or being abandoned out on lake ice on an April Fool Day a few years back, when the caboose of a skidoo in which she was riding, separated from the forward part.

"I had my head down against an icy wind and didn't realize what had happened until the caboose stopped. The young lad who was running the skidoo and his mother, who was also aboard, didn't notice until they reached home and she turned to invite me in for a cup of tea. By then I was walking back to shore."

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 39 and have three pre-school children. I am married to an absolute nut who has made a fortune in business.

He devoted 100 per cent of his time to his business — or to other people.

He tells me what to do and when to do it. I feel like a robot who is wound up every morning and programmed to do whatever he wants me to do.

If I open my mouth, I get a lecture or a black eye. Sometimes both.

I told him I was leaving him and he said I needed to see a psychiatrist. So I saw one, and the psychiatrist told me to send in my husband.

My husband said, "I'm not going. All those head doctors are nuts themselves."

So that's where it stands. Abby, I want out of this jail I'm living in. If it weren't for the kids I'd have left him long ago. How important is it for children to have a father? — Going Nuts.

DEAR ABBY: You can't be staying in that jail because you don't want to deprive your children of a father.

From what you say, he's not much of a father anyway. Children need at least one sane parent, so stay with the psychiatrist and let him un-braid your brains.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply envelope stamped, addressed envelope.

Safeway Changes Labelling of Ground Beef

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Safeway, the nation's second largest grocery chain, said Thursday it will label ground beef according to relative fat content rather than the cut from which the meat came.

The switch, a sharp break with industry tradition, was in accord with a recent report by Consumers Union which said housewives get little or no quality, nutritional or taste advantage from buying ground chuck, round or sirloin despite their higher price.

A Safeway spokesman explained that grinding virtually eliminates taste and tenderness differences among beef cuts. He said labeling by cut also tended to be misleading, partly because stores may sometimes mix trimmings from other cuts with ground chuck, round or sirloin.

In addition, the Safeway spokesman said, "many consumers believe that when you buy ground sirloin you're buying a ground sirloin steak. You're not."

He said that while the ground meat is sirloin, it comes from "the tail and other trimmings off the beef loin." Ground round, the spokesman said, comes from "trimmings and the heel near the leg bone" — part of the beef's round but not that used for round steak.

Safeway said its new system will label ground beef "regular" (25 to 28 per cent fat, 59 to 69 cents a pound); "lean" (22 to 25 per cent fat, 89 cents); "extra lean" (18 to 22 per cent fat, 99 cents); and "super lean" (15 to 18 per cent fat, $1.29). Safeway said the prices and fat ranges were approximate and might vary slightly from city to city.

George A. Pollak, head of Consumers Union's food department, praised the new system as "much more honest." Pollak directed Consumers Union's ground beef study, the results of which were published in the August issue of "Consumer Reports". The report said taste testers couldn't tell the difference between hamburgers made from various cuts, that fat content sometimes was higher in round or sirloin than cheaper cuts, and that cheap ground beef was the best nutritional buy.

Hat Choice Shows Generation Gap

Long hair needs new hat style

The future of hats in Victoria is uncertain. Local millinery experts not only differ in their predictions of what's to come but can't reach a consensus of what's here now.

Four local retailers commented on the trend in hats:

"Sales are depressing."

"Sales have never fallen off."

"People are becoming hat conscious again."

"Fashion designers claim that hats are the 'in' thing, but apparently nobody has told the customers."

If that isn't talking through your hat, then what is?

Millinery sales have dropped by 50 per cent in the last two years, said a ladies' clothing manager of a local department store.

"Young people are setting the fashion trend now, and they aren't wearing hats. The age of the customers is upwards of 50 years."

"Hats used to be almost a necessity. A woman wasn't considered properly dressed without one. Now it's not essential to wear hats at formal occasions, such as weddings."

"The young have a freer, uncluttered way of dressing. They prefer the natural look of long hair, rather than sticking a hat on their heads. The hats they do wear are fun type with floppy, wide brims, or close fitting crocheted caps. Extreme sizes of big and small are popular."

"The older women who are used to wearing hats, continue to buy them."

Downtown, in the men's department of the same store, a clerk said that young men aren't wearing hats either, except for the "floppy, kooky kind."

"But that's just a fad," he lamented.

Longer hair styles are to blame for shorter sales, according to this salesman.

"A hat won't fit over a mass of hair. To fit properly, it has to sit on the crown of the head," he explained.

He said the average customer is the older man, 55 years and up, who buys the standard fedora, or an English wool or tweed cap.

A hat is almost a necessity for the man with thinning hair or poor eyesight, he said. It keeps the head warm if hair has worn out. And on a rainy day, a hat will increase visibility by keeping glasses from getting wet and foggy.

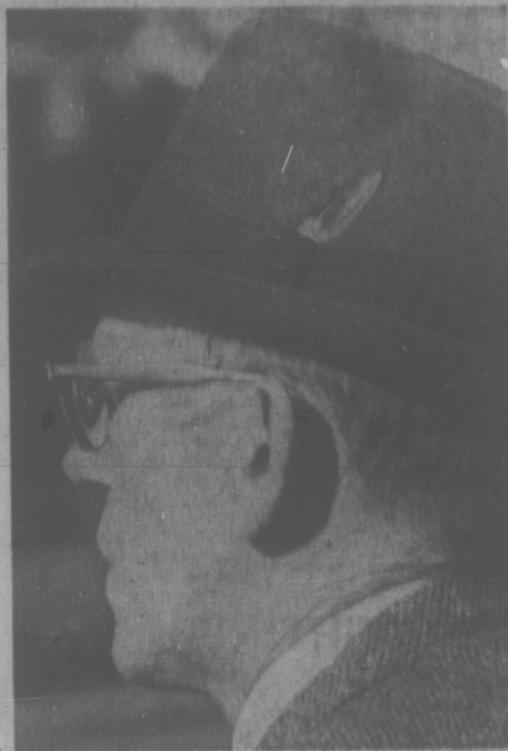

"Until men trim their hair closer to the head, hats won't come back," he predicted.

Then there are those who claim that hats are more "in" than ever.

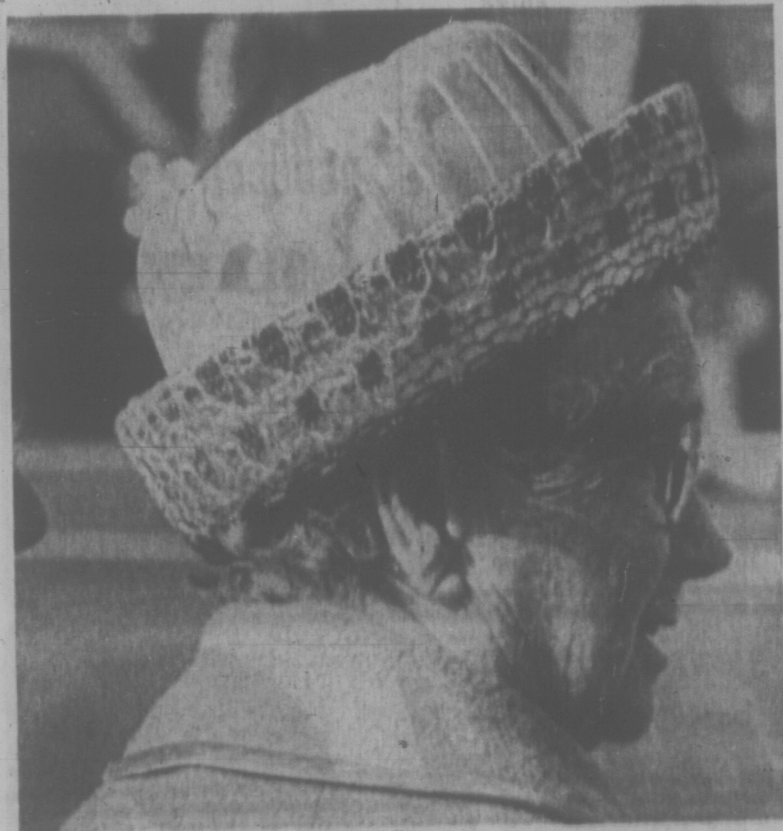

When wigs first came on the market, hat sales plunged, said a proprietor of a millinery shop. Now people are buying hats to cover wigs.

Despite their differences, the millinery experts are united in one area: Rain hats were, are and always will be in demand.

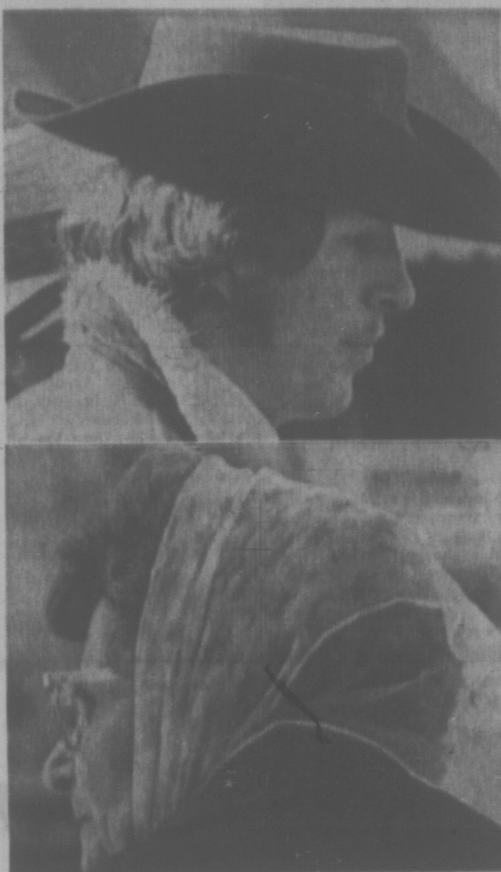

Unless the climate of Victoria changes, that is, which is entirely possible according to some ecologists.

Most hats sold to older men

Women's traditional toppers still seen on most city streets

Of course there are the exceptions

CHURCH CRITICIZES YOUNG OFFENDERS ACT

'Vengeance Philosophy' No Answer

OTTAWA (CP) — The United Church of Canada said Thursday it believes there is a possibility the proposed Young Offenders Act would perpetuate the "vengeance philosophy" type of rehabilitation system for children.

"The monstrous evidence of the failure of the vengeance philosophy is amply provided by the recent riot at the Kingston penitentiary," the church said in a brief presented to the Commons committee on justice and legal affairs on behalf of its board of evangelism and social service.

The brief says the effect of the proposed act would be to virtually incorporate the adult procedure of dealing with anti-social behavior into the juvenile sphere.

"In its zeal to safeguard the legal rights of the child, or young person, the act perpetuates our historic philosophy of crime and punishment."

It has been recognized for some time, says the brief, that the anti-social or delinquent behavior of the child is in fact the symptom of an underlying problem.

"Our society through the proposed Young Offenders Act, intends to label this anti-social behavior a 'crime' and the children who act out their problems in this way as 'criminals.'"

The proposed new act is to replace the present Juvenile Delinquents Act.

The brief says it puts the judge in a difficult position.

since it would give him powers of decision-making in areas where he does not have the required training and competence.

It also comes out against a provision which would delay sentence until the offender is 21 years old.

"It does not take into account the psychological changes that can and do occur in the life of an individual during these formative years. This provision destroys the concept of rehabilitation."

"Recognizing that the court process can be both damaging and destructive to the child, we submit that it should be used only when all other methods have been exhausted."

The brief suggests the establishment of a system whereby voluntary counselling and treatment facilities be required and fully utilized before any court appearance and that federal and provincial governments take steps to see that such facilities are provided in areas where they are inadequate.

Cities Full, Polluted: Tots

HALIFAX (CP) — Community planners were given a picture of a crowded, polluted city this week when elementary school children drew impressions of their surroundings.

The "design-in," organized by Stanley King of Vancouver, came during closing sessions of the Community Planning Association of Canada's annual conference. It was described as one method of getting the public involved in planning.

Eighteen children, from Grades 4 to 6, were given charcoal and asked to draw what they thought a city should look like.

After completing the 200-foot drawing, the children told planners what was wrong with it. "It's too full and the lakes and air are polluted."

Mr. King, an architect now on a fellowship at the University of British Columbia to study the planning method, said pre-planning "design-ins" would give experts an idea of what people really want.

Fire Claims Firefighters

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Four firefighters were killed and two others were injured as flames whipped by an unexpected wind caught the men on the flank of a two-day brush fire, authorities said.

The men were operating bulldozers scraping out a fire line on a ridge Thursday night and "the flames had shot up in the air and engulfed the three 'dozers'," said Jim Ridenour, manager of an ambulance company.

INDIAN WOMEN RETAIN STATUS

TORONTO (CP) — The Federal Court of Canada ruled today an Indian woman cannot be deprived of her rights as an Indian because she married a non-Indian.

The court ruled the Indian Act, under which Jeannette Carrière Lavel, 28, lost her status as a member of the Wikwemikong band, "offends the right of such an Indian woman to equality before the law."

It was the first time a Canadian court has applied the 11-year-old Bill of Rights to the issue of sexual equality.

Mrs. Lavel, an Ojibwa, appealed her case after Judge Ben Grossberg refused in June to order the federal government to reinstate her as a member of the band.

She was removed from the band list in December, 1970, following her marriage April 1, 1970, to David Lavel, 28, a student at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute here.

Her appeal was heard by a three-man panel of the federal appeal court—Chief Justice W. R. Jackett and Justices Louis Trate and A. L. Thurlow.

GAVE DIRECTION

Mr. Justice Thurlow, reading the decision, ordered Judge Grossberg to reopen the case and directed him to interpret the Indian Act "as inoperative to deprive her of her rights."

Today's judgment said an Indian male who married a non-Indian did not lose his status and his wife was regarded as an Indian.

By depriving an Indian woman of the same status, the law was discriminatory and illegal, the appeal court ruled.

Tree Planting To Celebrate Meet Opening

Dogwood trees will be planted on the Patricia Bay Highway at Wain Road to mark the opening on Oct. 17 of the 63rd annual meeting of the Canadian Institute of Forestry at the Empress Hotel.

The trees will be planted by Resources Minister Ray Wiliston, W. G. Burch, CIP president, and Robert F. Shaw, deputy minister of the Department of Environment, Ottawa.

The planting program will be continued through the next several years, said Michael Crown, convention chairman, and chief forester for Pacific Logging Co. Ltd.

They will extend in clusters at intervals along the entire length of the highway from Swartz Bay to Victoria.

The Oak Bay Senior Secondary Band will attend the ceremony.

About 250 delegates from all parts of Canada are expected to attend the five-day convention.

Shaw will be guest speaker at the annual luncheon on Oct. 18. His address, also the theme of the meeting, is entitled "Tomorrow Challenges Pacific Coast Foresters."

Speakers will include Dean John A. Zivnaska, school of forestry and conservation, Berkeley, California; G. L. Druseke, president of the Council of Forest Industries of B.C., Vancouver, and John Stokes, B.C.'s deputy minister of forests.

Business sessions will include discussions on the roles and responsibilities of foresters in relation to industry and the public, urbanization, ecology, silviculture, forest protection and forest management.

Delegates will also visit the Victoria watershed area, the Shawigan division of Macmillan Bloedel Co. Ltd.; the B.C. Forest Service container nursery; and the forest service's experimental station at Mesachie Lake.

Teamsters Ready To Lift Pickets

The striking Teamsters Union Local 31 said today it is ready to take off pickets "temporarily" at Dowell's Cartage and Storage warehouse on Store Street to allow certain goods to be removed.

Union business agent Don Dent said at noon the move is aimed primarily at letting out goods destined for construction sites. The offer covered companies "with Teamster or other union contracts," he said.

Company vice-president Eric Dowell could not be reached for comment. Earlier today, Dowell said the company is considering "serious inquiries" by other companies to take it over.

Sewer Line Extension To be Studied

Sanich council's public works committee will study maps and plans at its meeting Tuesday when it tackles the job of defining what should be the precise boundaries of a major extension of the sewer system into the Royal Oak area.

The extension, estimated to cost $1.3 million, was approved in principle by council last August. It helps clear the way for the $13-acre, $92 million Broadmead housing estate and a regional shopping centre.

The 1,100-acre area earmarked for the sewer extension will extend from the Chesterlea subdivision on the east side of Patricia Bay Highway through the North Quadra area to the Broadmead housing estate, plus a small area on the west side of the highway between Glenford and the Royal Oak Shopping Centre.

Municipal engineer Neville Life said today the committee is likely to recommend "only minor changes" to the original boundary proposals, but it is possible council may decide not to commit itself to any firm boundaries this year.

There are Teamster-covered companies interested in taking over and these will be given very serious consideration by us with a view to eliminating the pickets and release of the so-called hot goods in the warehouse," he said.

CONSIDER OFFERS

Dowell said "this matter will be cleared away in the not-too-distant future," but added that he will have to consider offers from non-union companies as well as Teamster-covered ones.

Teamsters Union Local 31 struck Dowell's Cartage Monday, seeking to have it sign the general agreement covering many cartage companies. The company said the next day it could not afford a settlement and would go out of business.

Thursday, the union offered to remove picket lines and clear the warehouse so Dowell's Cartage could go out of business.

"Dowell said: 'Their offer to help is a hollow offer really, they are not soliciting for this sort of thing. It is just a statement... that they will take off the pickets as soon as another Teamster company takes over.'"

NOT DESIRABLE

"The company was not as 'desirable' as an empty building as a going concern with accounts."

"But at the moment, some negotiating has to be done by us with whoever may take over the warehouse," said Dowell.

In the Times-Thursday, a printing error had Teamster Union business agent Don Dent quoted as saying "he (Dowell) wants to keep the staff in the warehouse." Dent actually said "he (Dowell) wants to keep the staff in the warehouse."

N-Protest Utah Mill Producing To France Copper Concentrates

Members of Amchika 2 have protested to the French consul-general in Vancouver and the French embassy in Ottawa at that country's nuclear test program.

Rhoda Kaellis, a spokesman for the group which opposed the planned American underground nuclear explosion on Amchika Island, said the organization is against all nuclear tests anywhere.

She said France "should show itself more responsible" because the Soviet Union, United States and United Kingdom had abandoned atmospheric tests.

First copper concentrate from its 6,000 horsepower grinding mills began coming off the line Thursday at Utah Construction and Mining Co., Port Hardy operation.

Mine manager Morton Pratt said today two of the six massive autogenous mills, unique in B.C. mining, had begun their run-in period and that by mid-December it was hoped to make the first shipment of concentrate to Japan.

More than 100 men are employed at present in the mining and milling operations, but by the end of the year 450 will be engaged.

The $70 million project has been virtually finished in 28 months. It is geared to a 10-year contract for the sale of $400 million worth of concentrate and $200 million worth in a five-year period.

CHUNKS OF ORE

Autogenous mills of such size have never been built in B.C. They consist of 32-foot diameter drums containing large chunks of ore, tumbling against each other instead of using balls or rollers of steel as in other mills.

They are driven by ring gears 35 feet in diameter, to which are coupled two 3,000 horsepower electric motors.

Foreign Investors 'Interested in B.C.'

Premier Bennett held a mixed-bag press conference Thursday upon return from a three-week European trip and said foreign investors are more interested in British Columbia than any other province.

Bennett announced no new industrial developments, but said he met with Australian businessmen in London who have been surveying coking coal deposits in the world.

He said this coal could be sold to the Cnetwynd coal is the "best uncommitted coking coal in the world."

He said this could be taken by rail to Squamish for overseas shipment.

Bennett's trip took him to Britain, France, Austria, Switzerland, Liechtenstein and Greece.

POPULAR

The premier said Canadian ambassador to France, Leo Cadieux is "very popular" in Paris. He added that the "situation regarding Canada in France is more healthy this year than two years ago."

But, he said, European businessmen are hesitant to invest in Quebec because of unstable social conditions.

Bennett said B.C. will not have an election until 1973 "unless some unusual situation develops."

NO KILLINGS

He defended the government's intention to award Malaspina Gas Pipeline Ltd. a $105 million contract for a natural gas pipeline from Williams Lake to Vancouver Island.

Bennett said the proposal must go before the Public Utilities Commission.

"The main thing is that the money will all be spent judiciously. There will be no 10-cent shares, no killings on shares," Bennett said.

He added that a $45 million bid from B.C. Hydro was unacceptable because there was no engineering guarantee on the proposal.

He admitted that Malaspina's proposal may mean increased natural gas prices on the island, but said this must be considered an inevitable part of the benefit of natural gas delivery.

RELUCTANT

Europeans are reluctantly accepting United States President Richard Nixon's economic policies, because they know he has no choice but to look after his country's interests, first, Bennett said.

"There is no real lack of confidence in the U.S. dollar," Bennett predicted 1972 will be a good year on B.C.'s labor front.

Strategy Charted By BBB

Reorganization of Better Business Bureaus in Canada should be complete by May of next year, reports Victoria BBB manager William Tindall.

Just returned from a Toronto meeting of bureau representatives in Canada, Tindall said policies adopted by international delegates at the Council of Better Business Bureaus meeting earlier this year in Miami had been endorsed for Canada.

The parent body is the Better Business Bureaus of Canada, which will be composed of 20 business leaders acting in a policy-making role, and an advisory board of bureau managers.

Separation of the managers from the policy-makers is the chief characteristic of the new organization, a step in which Tindall concurs.

He said it is only proper for those active in business to be responsible for setting their ground rules and acting as self-regulators, as a board of control.

Local bureaus, which have their own directors, will be guided by the national body.

Target date for completing the reorganization was set by the Toronto meeting for next May.

Transients Vanish

Travelling youth who moved through Victoria during the summer have all but disappeared, according to Cool-Aid staff member Eve Myers.

Most have appeared to return to school and those who use Cool-Aid hostels during the winter months are usually "down-and-out" persons in their 20s who are looking for work.

Cool-Aid hostels handled 8,229 transients from May 1 to Sept. 30. Some 513 were counselled and 11,990 meals were served.

GIFT TO UBC

DEVICE DETECTS DISEASE

A unique diagnostic device, known as a nitralyzer, and used to detect lung disease at an early stage was presented to the University of British Columbia's lung function laboratory this week.

The $4,000 unit is a gift from the Tuberculous and Chest Disabled Veterans Association, which raises funds through its annual auto licence tag campaign.

The unit instantly analyzes nitrogen, operating on a principle similar to that of a neon sign. Gases in a vacuum ionized by an electric spark, produce a color specific for the gas passing through the ionization tube. The intensity of color is measured by a photo electric cell and recorded.

and use, being able to measure the point at which the bronchial tubes close completely when a person exhales as far as possible.

Dr. James Morton, laboratory director and assistant professor of medicine at UBC said there is evidence to suggest that this is the earliest indicator of lung disease while being able to determine the over-all concentration of gases in the air sacs of a lung speeds up routine diagnosis.

NOVEMBER TALKS URGED BY B.C.

British Columbia has proposed that a federal-provincial conference on unemployment be held in November instead of December, Premier Bennett said Thursday.

Bennett said he sent a telegram to Prime Minister Trudeau proposing Nov. 15-16 or Nov. 9-10 as suitable dates for the conference.

But he said a federal official has advised him that the upcoming provincial election in Newfoundland may make it impossible to hold the conference before December.

The conference is tentatively scheduled for Dec. 6-8.

Fish Before Dam Bennett Avers

Premier Bennett Thursday reiterated his opposition to the Moran Dam unless it can be built without damaging Fraser River fisheries.

Bennett's statement followed a release of a federal fisheries department technical study on the proposed dam which said it could cause a potential $71 million annual fisheries loss on the Fraser.

Bennett said the B.C. energy board is studying aspects of the dam's possible effects, and it would be wrong for the government not to hear all the facts before a decision is made.

The report from the energy board will be released next February, Bennett said.

Last week, Recreation and Conservation Minister Ken Kiernan said the Moran Dam could have great value in flood control for the lower Fraser Valley.

Kiernan indicated his support for the dam on a flood-control basis, but said he would wait for the energy board report.

Group Formed to Help People With Problems

The first moves were taken Thursday evening toward establishment of a Christian Social Development Council in Greater Victoria.

A group of 15 persons, led by social worker Reg Clarkson, executive secretary of the Victoria Self-Help Society, formed a steering committee during a meeting at First United Church, to "suggest an organizational structure" for the group and to conduct a demonstration project to show how the council would function.

Clarkson stressed that his proposed, new organization will not usurp the social responsibilities at present carried by existing bodies.

"It is a Christian educational body only. It will not try to solve the problems." Its primary function, he said, will be to explore areas of human problems and make recommendations about how they can be eased.

"The social action will be carried out by existing groups," he said, "and if new groups are required they will be formed by the community at large, not by the Christian Social Development Council."

The council, if established, would finance itself "by a special collection in various churches, and donations from the diocesan organizations," Clarkson said.

Gastown Riot Report 'Fair, Objective'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of the B.C. Civil Liberties Association says one weakness in the Gastown riot inquiry report is it failed to deal with the broad question of relations between police and the rest of society.

In praising as "a relatively balanced document," the report by Mr. Justice T. A. Dohm, Dr. R. A. H. Robson said testimony at the 10-day inquiry last month into the Aug. riot disclosed a lack of understanding and inter-action between police and young people.

Police witnesses had testified it seemed futile to initiate any public relations program directed at young people using the area, something Robson termed "an admission of abject defeat."

Police commissioners Graham Dawson and Arthur Johnson were unwilling to comment individually on the report.

"If one of us makes a statement, he might be over-ruled by the others, and this only causes confusion. Personally speaking, I think it's a good report," said Dawson.

Alderman Art Phillips, who was in the area toward the end of the fracas, said the report seemed "fair and objective," containing useful "suggestions for the future."

He said he thought one suggestion — that riot police should be identified by a helmet number — has been acted upon by Vancouver Police Chief John Fisk.

Alderman Earle Adams, acting mayor in the absence of Tom Campbell, said the report had his "full approval."

"It's not the police force I'm afraid of," he said.

"It's the political agitators — looks — the people who cause these things."

Aerobics Author To Speak

The developer of the "aerobics" system of physical conditioning will speak Friday, Oct. 15, in the Elliott Building (Room 108) at the University of Victoria.

Dr. Kenneth H. Cooper, author of Aerobics and The New Aerobics will speak on "Development of a Personal Physical Fitness Program" at 7:30 p.m.

Cooper is a former lieutenant-colonel in the USAF Medical Corps and devised the aerobics system while with the Air Force. Over eight million North Americans are believed to be following his system of exercise, designed to be fun and effective, especially in the area of heart disease.

EDMONTON (CP) — Drama in Alberta has come a long way in the last 20 years, says Walter Kaasa, director of administration, cultural development branch, department of cultural affairs for the province.

"It's growth is nothing short of phenomenal," he said in an interview, adding that the growth is in all areas, including schools, universities and amateur community groups, as well as the professional theatre.

"To the astonishment of the skeptics, professional theatre in Edmonton and Calgary is flourishing," he said. "Into the province is flowing an increasing stream of top-rate talent."

A survey by The Canadian Press shows great activity in drama in all centres.

For Edmonton's Citadel Theatre, established in 1965 and now holding a record of sold-out performances, this season is billed as "International."

WORLD THEATRE

"It will be a season of world theatre with each play representing a country," said artistic director Sean Mulcahy.

Citadel opens with Bilthe Spirit by Noel Coward and takes off on a tour with Quare Fellow by Brendan Behan, Don't Listen Ladies by Frenchman Sacha Guitry, Of Mice and Men by John Steinbeck, Affairs of Anatole by Arthur Schnitzler of Austria, Enemy of the People by Henrik Ibsen, and Yesterday the Children were Dancing by Canadian Gratien Gelinas.

"We played to 94 per cent of capacity last year," said Olive Finland, Citadel's general manager. "And it looks as though we'll be sold out on a subscription basis this year."

Possibly encouraged by Citadel's box-office successes, a second professional theatre company began in Edmonton last year.

artistic director Mark Schoenberg as an artists' theatre, not concerned about box office but with presenting important plays and the highest calibre of professional theatre.

WILL DO BETTER

In its first season, it played to about 66-per-cent capacity in its 100-seat theatre and expects to do considerably better this year, said manager Anne Green.

Theatre Calgary, which has a new resident director in Clarke Rogers, has seven plays scheduled for the coming season, including a new Canadian play, The House on Chestnut Street, by Ontario playwright John Nichol.

But it's not only professional theatre that's flourishing. Mr. Kaasa praised the drama departments at the University of Alberta and University of Calgary, saying they were "second to none, providing excellent training and instruction in all phases of theatre."

The University of Alberta Studio Theatre, which is run by the drama department, has a waiting list for its season's subscriptions.

But the growth of theatre in Alberta is closely tied with the health of the amateur theatre, which is strong not only in the two major cities but also in the smaller centres such as Lethbridge, Medicine Hat and Red Deer.

Standard Asks for New Hearing

Standard Oil Co. of B.C. has asked Victoria city council for another public hearing on an application to rezone property at Clare Street for one of its city service stations.

At a public hearing last month, the company failed to get a two-third majority on the rezoning, after two residents complained Clare is already too narrow for traffic.

The company is now saying, however, there was some misunderstanding.

In a letter to the city clerk, Standard Oil district sales manager, F. D. Rodway, says the company's representatives were prepared to present a brief if there had been opposition by nearby property owners.

"Since there was no opposition or questions to be answered," the letter says, "our representatives then left the council chambers only to learn later that the subject was re-opened and another public hearing was held."

FISCHER PROTEST FORCES DRAW

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — Soviet grandmaster Tigran Petrosian and Bobby Fischer of Brooklyn, N.Y., drew the third game of their 12-game semi-final world chess championship series Thursday night when Petrosian, a former world champion, was poised to win.

Petrosian and Fischer now have 1½ points each in the match to determine who will challenge reigning world champion Boris Spassky of the Soviet Union for the world title.

Petrosian, playing blacks, was all set for a win, chess experts said, when he inadvertently repeated moves when hard-pressed by time. Referee Lothar Schmidt of West Germany declared the game a draw at the 33rd move after Fischer objected.

The fourth game of their match will be played Tuesday.

Mideast Plans Alive, U.S. Keeps Insisting

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — U.S. officials are continuing to insist that the proposals they are pushing for an interim settlement in the Middle East still "are very much alive."

They say that, despite public statements that appear to the contrary, both Israel and Egypt have indicated privately that they are interested in State Secretary William Rogers pursuing the matter.

The Americans say that when Foreign Minister Abba Eban of Israel and Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad of Egypt deliver strong statements on the Middle East here they are delivering their countries' maximum positions.

An interim settlement would involve a pullback of Israeli troops from the Suez canal and the opening of the canal.

The main hangup is the Egyptian insistence, and the Israeli refusal, that Egyptian troops cross the canal behind the retreating Israelis.

American officials admit that there are fundamental differences between the parties, but they added Thursday that "at least there still is a dialogue going."

That is indicated by the schedule of Rogers who is visiting here. He was to see Riad for the second time Friday and probably will see Eban again, for the second time, next week.

Riad said in his assembly speech Wednesday that Egypt will reject any proposal to reopen the canal that would lead to continued occupation of Egyptian territory by Israel.

But he did not say that Egypt is rejecting the idea of an interim settlement and Western observers, including Americans, said later that the speech was a forceful restatement of past positions that did not close any doors which were open before.

Delta Man Heads BCSTA

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jack Smedley, 51, of Delta, has been elected president of the B.C. School Trustees Association.

Smedley, a member of the Delta school board for 10 years and a former member of the Douglas College Council, had been vice-president of the BCSTA.

Smedley disagreed with an earlier statement by outgoing president Peter Powell that today's students think they are above the law.

He said in an interview he doesn't think there's anything wrong with young people. "They may look a little different," he said, "and they may not a little different, but I think we are turning out a good product in the schools."

Mayor Juba Starts 'Last Term'

WINNIPEG (CP) — Mayor Stephen Juba of Winnipeg, after receiving a mandate from the voters to head the new single-city administration that takes office Jan. 1, said today the election was his last one.

Juba, 57, told a news conference about 12 hours after the polls closed he will not seek re-election when his three-year term as mayor ends at the close of 1974.

Juba's closest opponent was 58-year-old Jack Willis, chairman of Metro since 1965.

Running a distant third and fourth respectively were Metro councillor William Hutton and Gordon Anderson, a Winnipeg businessman.

Pete Shewchenko, a 25-year-old mechanic, withdrew from the race several weeks ago, but his name remained on the ballot and he received more than 200 votes.

Final results gave Juba 139,174 votes, Willis 49,014, Hutton 8,530 and Anderson 2,765.

The single-city idea was conceived by the NDP government that came to power in 1969, defeating the 11-year-old Conservative administration that set up the Metropolitan plan.

"I have just run my last election," said Juba, a long-time proponent of a unified government for the municipally-fragmented Greater Winnipeg area.

"I have never projected my political future before, but I am confident that this will be my last." He said "the public will never know" how close he came to not running in Wednesday's elections.

He will rule over a 50-member council dominated by a civic voters group, the Independent Citizens' Election Committee, which handed the New Democratic Party a solid triumph in the NDP's first full-scale venture into municipal politics in greater Winnipeg.

Under a bill passed at the last session of the legislature, the new council will take over from the 11-year-old Metropolitan Corporation of Greater Winnipeg and 12 separate municipalities.

The NDP, which ran 39 candidates on a platform drawn up last month at the Manitoba party's first-ever municipal policy convention, managed to elect only seven members.

I Just Remember Hitting, Hitting Her, That's All

"I just remember hitting her and hitting her and hitting her and that's all and den I ran."

These words are part of a statement signed by Russell Michael Amos and read Thursday afternoon by Constable L. D. Truesdale as he testified in B.C. Supreme Court here.

Amos, 18, is charged with attempting to kill Fiona Fay Boucher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Boucher, in their home at 543 John St. on the night of March 4-5. He has pleaded not guilty.

Truesdale appeared as the first witness before a jury of 10 men and two women after they had been ordered out of the courtroom for a day and a half while the defence and Crown argued whether certain evidence was admissible.

The evidence was ruled admissible by Mr. Justice A. B. Macfarlane.

The statement, which was signed by the accused before Truesdale and Sgt. John Markin on the night of March 5, was read in full before the jury.

Dictated by Amos and written down phonetically by Truesdale, it said:

"I was drunk and I know I was up on Hillside someplace, that's all I remember was leaving there. That's where everything blacked out and I don't remember the rest, walking down Hillside that's all I remember.

"I picked that piece of bar or whatever it is, someplace, and I went looking around, maybe I was looking for my girl friend. I looked at quite a few places and had a drink of water.

"When I went to the bathroom and den that's where everything went mad. I just blew my mind and then I picked up that wrench and started hitting her, hitting her, hitting her, hitting her and then I realized what I was doing and I ran out of the house and I had a wrench in my hand and den I went down to you where David Street is. I went down to visit my cousin."

Substantial Pay Hikes For Federal Nurses

OTTAWA (CP)—Nurses in the federal public service have been granted substantial pay increases by an arbitration tribunal, the Professional Institute of the Public Service of Canada announced today.

But the Institute expressed "grave disappointment" that the tribunal, chaired by Mr. Justice Andre Montpetit, has turned down one of the nurses' main proposals—the establishment of a national pay rate for nurses on the first rung of the salary ladder.

A majority of the 2,200 federal nurses are in this category which has, however, received increases averaging from 7.9 per cent in the Maritimes to 12.8 per cent in British Columbia, retroactive to last Jan. 4.

This will be followed by a six-per-cent increase across the board effective Jan. 3, 1972.

Thus a nurse in the Maritimes at the minimum level who currently makes $5,523 a year, now will get $6,100 and next January will get a further increase to $6,466. The same nurse in British Columbia who currently makes $6,345 annually now will get $7,340, to be raised to $7,780 next Jan. 3.

The Institute, which does the nurses' bargaining with the federal treasury board, said the award in effect widens the pay disparity for first-level nurses across the country.

It raised the salary differential between a nurse in Vancouver at the maximum of the first salary level and her counterpart in the Maritimes to $1,705 annually from $1,247.

In the other five nursing levels, the tribunal awarded average increases of up to 8.7 per cent retroactive to Jan. 4, 1971, with an across-the-board increase of six per cent effective next Jan. 3.

A nurse at the minimum of the second level who is currently paid $7,157 a year now will receive $7,780, to be increased to $8,247 next Jan. 3.

A nurse at the top of the maximum range currently getting $14,592 a year will get an immediate increase to $15,700, with a further increase to $16,642 next January.

Starting Nov. 1, shift premiums will be increased to $2 for the evening shift from $1 and to $1.50 for the night shift from $1.

Amos then broke down and began sobbing and eventually replied, after he was warned that he was not obliged to say anything, that he used "a small red wrench," the police officer said.

Amos then took the police officers to 553 David Street, which is about a block's distance from the Boucher residence, and Truesdale said he went in and found a wrench under a bathtub.

"When I picked it up I observed what appeared to be hair fibres and traces of dried blood on it," Truesdale said.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British Columbia Hydro spokesman said dust on power lines mixing with moisture in heavy fog was responsible for a minor light snow Thursday night in South Vancouver. Two brilliant flashes of light were reported and lights flickered in the city, but no power outages resulted.

In the police car and the accused identified it as the wrench in question, Truesdale said.

Nixon to Retain Power Over Wage-Price Board

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. Treasury Secretary John Connally said today the government will retain final authority over wage and price decisions made by the new boards created by President Nixon to oversee economic controls when the wage-price freeze ends.

At a nationwide radio and television news conference,

Connally appealed to labor to co-operate with Nixon's "Phase II" operations announced Thursday night. He said the fight against inflation would be "extremely difficult" without labor's participation.

But the sticky point of whether the 15-member pay board composed equally of representatives of labor, management and the public, will have final authority over wage decisions, Connally said it would not.

IN PICTURE
"The government is going to continue to be in the picture," he said.

Labor has withheld its endorsement of Nixon's program on that very point. It wants the pay board to have total authority over what size pay increases will be allowed. U.S. workers during the period the government will seek to cut the rate of inflation in half, down to two to three per cent by the end of 1973.

Connally said he couldn't be sure when the 10-per-cent surcharge on imports might be lifted.

"We want our balance of payments improved. The only way they can be improved, in a sense, is to the detriment of other nations. Other nations have to give up something in order for us to gain something," he said.

FRAMEWORK
Nixon laid out the board framework of his program before the American people, but he passed along to the new citizens' board the key decisions on the size of permissible wage and price increases. It may be as long as five weeks before workers, businessmen and consumers get answers to the questions that concern them most: "How much will wages increase?" and "What will happen to prices?"

The boards have until Nov. 13 — when the wage-price freeze expires — to lay down guidelines for pay and price increases. Administration officials said the membership of the boards would be announced in a few days.

UNTIL NOV. 13

The wage-price freeze, as previously announced, remains in effect until Nov. 13.

"The wage-price freeze has been remarkably successful," Nixon said. "The primary credit for the success of this first step on the fight against rising prices belongs to you, it belongs to the American people. It is you who have shown a willingness to co-operate in the campaign against inflation."

Nixon said profits would not be controlled except for "windfall" profits resulting

BENNETT INVITES KOSYGIN TO VICTORIA

Premier Bennett said Thursday he will invite Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin to come to Victoria as part of his visit to Canada this month.

Bennett said the invitation will be made through proper diplomatic channels and that he hopes Kosygin will accept his invitation.

Kosygin will be in Vancouver on Oct. 22 and 23.

More U.K. Troops Sent to Ireland

LONDON (CP) — After a six-hour meeting with Ulster's Premier Brian Faulkner Thursday, British Prime Minister Edward Heath announced that three new battalions will join the 12,000 British troops already stationed in Ulster.

NEWS BRIEFS

Rock Hurdled

AMSTERDAM (UPI) — An unidentified man today smashed the windshield of Japanese Emperor Hirohito's car with an object, probably a rock, as the emperor and empress drove through the streets of Amsterdam.

Firing Blasted

REGINA (CP) — Marjorie Gordon was unjustly and unlawfully dismissed from her teaching position at Mooseomin high school, Don Keith, a Saskatchewan Teachers' Federation officer, said today. Mrs. Gordon was fired Monday for "gross misconduct" in allowing her students to read a copy of the Georgia Straight, a Vancouver underground newspaper.

SOME POLICE FACE DISCIPLINARY ACTION

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Tom Campbell today said there would be disciplinary action against individual police officers guilty of using excessive force in the Gastown riot last Aug. 7.

But he said the first move is up to Attorney-General Leslie Peterson.

"He can do something himself or he can pass it on to us (Vancouver Police Commission) to act," the mayor said. Peterson was not immediately available for comment.

The attorney general made no firm comment on future disciplinary action Thursday when he released the report on the riot.

prepared by Mr. Justice Thomas Dohm of the British Columbia Supreme Court.

Campbell said the police commission did not want to take any action against individual officers until the Dohm report was published.

He said it was also hampered by the civil actions brought against individual officers by citizens claiming damages.

But now, he said, depending on whether the attorney general acted himself, the commission and Chief John Fish could go ahead and take whatever disciplinary action is necessary.

"It could involve suspension, demotion or loss of pay or dismissal," the mayor said.

Don't Dam Fraser, Says Study

A federal study released Thursday appears to rule out the possibility that Ottawa would ever approve the proposed Moran Dam on the Fraser River.

Highlights of the study are warnings that the dam will halve the Fraser's salmon fisheries and is unnecessary for flood control purposes.

The study contradicts statements made two weeks ago by Recreation and Conservation Minister Ken Kiernan who said Moran Dam may have to be built to prevent Fraser Valley flooding.

The B.C. Energy Board also is studying the proposed dam as part of an over-all survey of provincial power needs to 1985. Its report is scheduled for release in February, 1972.

Nuclear Power Ruled Out

Critics of the Moran proposal charge that the government already has decided to build the dam because the energy board was not permitted to study possibilities of thermal power generation from resources such as coal and natural gas.

Premier Bennett has ruled out nuclear power as long as he is in office, so critics of Moran say he has set his vision on hydroelectricity.

Premier Bennett had no direct comment on the report except to repeat his statement that he would approve the Moran Dam only if fisheries would not be hurt by it. See earlier story on Page 21.

Federal Environment Minister Jack Davis has called the 700 to 800-foot dam proposal a "monstrosity" which would halve the value of the Fraser's salmon fisheries.

The report, prepared by technical staff of the federal fisheries service and the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission, says the dam would cause a total yearly loss of $24 million to salmon fisheries.

Fishing Loss $71 Million

Annual loss of potential salmon production would be $71 million. Fisheries above and below the dam would be impaired, and the report says there is no precedent for passing salmon over a dam as high as the Moran would be.

Fraser River sockeye accounted for 46 per cent of the total B.C. sockeye catch between 1952-69, says the report. About 44 per cent of the Fraser's sockeye catch originates above the dam's site, 25 miles north of Lillooet in the Moran Canyon.

Hatcheries and artificial spawning channels could not compensate for salmon losses, the report continues, because sockeye spend one year in a lake adjacent to spawning channels before migrating to sea.

Most of the salmon rearing capacity of the Fraser is upstream from Moran Canyon with many lakes capable of major increases in sockeye stock.

Truck Line for Fish

The only way to get migrating salmon beyond the reservoir to the sea would be to capture the fish before entering the dam and truck or pipe them to the river below.

This, says the report, would be too expensive. The dam would halt siltation of the Fraser delta, ruining the system of marshes which house waterfowl.

A total of 10 million tons of sediment a year flows into Georgia Strait from the Fraser. Removal of sediment will cause erosion in the Delta, says the report.

Flood control can be more cheaply obtained from a dike system downstream from Moran Canyon with the help of flood storage reservoir. The report says this could be done at an estimated cost of $4.5 million.

A diking system without necessary flood storage facilities is being built for $40 million with a capacity to withstand water levels two feet higher than the levels observed in the 1948 and 1954 floods.

Nemetz Hearings Likely Next Week

Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz is expected to open hearings next week to settle the nine-month dispute between B.C. Hydro and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 358.

The Appeal Court judge agreed to resume his role as arbitrator Thursday after an appeal by Premier Bennett, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson and Labor Minister James Chabot. He had withdrawn in August because of his wife's illness.

More than 2,000 electrical workers were back on the job today after their four-day strike, as well as 2,100 other B.C. Hydro employees who did not go to work for three days because of picketing.

NO PROBLEMS

During the four-day strike, electrical and gas service was maintained by non-union supervisors. No serious problems were reported. Picketing stopped last service in Victoria Tuesday.

The IBEW said it had received assurances from Chabot that "no legal action would be taken against members and officers of the union and other B.C. Federation of Labor affiliates."

Chabot had branded the four-day strike illegal because the cabinet had passed a back-to-work order last summer during an 11-day strike.

Part of the settlement of the 11-day strike was acceptance by both sides of Nemetz as arbitrator. After Nemetz withdrew, both sides could not agree on a replacement to make a binding decision on the dispute.

RUSSIANS RETALIATE; 18 OUSTED

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union today ordered 18 British diplomats and businessmen expelled or banned from returning to Soviet soil in retaliation for Britain's ouster of 195 Soviet officials, an embassy spokesman said.

The British ambassador told the Soviet officials he regarded their action as unjustified.

The list and other details of the meeting were relayed to the British foreign office in London.

Visits of high-ranking Soviet officials to England have been cancelled.

Grains Bill Faces Tuesday Deadline

OTTAWA (CP) — The stormy career of the Prairie farm income stabilization bill appears to be nearing its end, with survival depending on a change of heart by either the government or opposition parties.

Thursday, Liberal House Leader Allan Rock said Tuesday as the deadline for a solution to the Commons deadlock. If opposition parties do not agree to pass the bill next week, the government will drop it.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said at a news conference today that his party is prepared to let the bill come to a quick vote provided the legislation be enacted in two stages.

The first stage would be immediate enactment of the clauses dealing with payments to western farmers to compensate them for replacement of existing plans.

Other parts of the bill would be proclaimed only after further study and possible amendment. This stage of enactment would be by Commons resolution after debate.

UNDER CONSIDERATION

Mr. Stanfield said his proposal has been put before a meeting of party House leaders and is being considered by the other three parties.

Mr. Stanfield said Manpower Minister Otto Lang, responsible for the Canadian wheat board, has shown little disposition to be helpful or conciliatory.

He said he hopes MacEwen would bring some common sense to government deliberations on the Conservative suggestion.

Mr. Stanfield said that if the government is interested only in withdrawal of the bill, Continued on Page 2

Dockers Returning

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dock Union leader Harry Bridges has ordered 15,000 West Coast longshoremen back to work Saturday in compliance with a court order obtained after President Nixon invoked the Taft-Hartley Act.

A strike by 15,000 dock workers in East Coast and most Gulf ports entered its second week today and spread Thursday to Puerto Rico.

Also going into its second week today was a soft-coal strike by more than 100,000 members of the United Mine Workers as negotiations continued in Washington, D.C.

The 100-day West Coast strike, the longest without on Pacific docks in history, has cost an estimated $1.70 billion since it began July 1. Losses in the East Coast and Gulf waterfronts are estimated at $17 million daily.

No Price Curbs For Canada...Yet

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson said today it would not be appropriate to impose wage and price controls in Canada "at the present time."

He told reporters, however, that such controls could become necessary if inflation became worse.

He said he is worried by the recent trend of price increases.

The minister was commenting mainly on President Nixon's economic statement Thursday night.

In the Commons, Prime Minister Trudeau said the provinces would be consulted if controls were to be imposed.

He was replying to Marcel Lambert, Conservative financial spokesman, who said controls similar to those in the U.S. may have to be considered.

A federal-provincial economic conference is scheduled for Ottawa Dec. 5-8.

Mr. Trudeau reiterated Thursday's statement by Revenue Minister Herb Gray that the government is willing to negotiate with the United States on changes in the U.S.-Canada auto pact, but not as a bargaining counter to win removal of the U.S. import surcharge.

He also repeated the government's stand that talks with the U.S. on energy resources cannot go on now.

"The government 'can't do all things at all times,'" Mr. Trudeau said.

Officials were too busy with other economic problems to talk about energy.

In replies to Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, the prime minister said negotiations on the auto pact were under way before the announcement Aug. 15 by President Nixon of the 10-per-cent surcharge on imports.

AND NOW SEA TRAVEL WAR

BRUSSELS (AP) — With airlines cutting transatlantic fares sharply, steamship lines got the green light today to join the competition.

The Atlantic Passenger Steamship Conference announced it would "grant to lines greater flexibility in meeting outside competition."

Richard Duffy, secretary-general of the conference, told a reporter he would "not be surprised" to see some new rates announced soon.

What could become a rate war was set off when the Cunard line, which runs the Queen Elizabeth 2, withdrew from the conference and announced new low fares. Duffy would not say how great the new "flexibility" would be, but it was enough to prevent any further withdrawals among the 13 lines remaining in the conference.

Cunard announced 12-day tourist-class trips, round trip, Southampton to New York, for $362. The price will go into effect Oct. 22. The present minimum official roundtrip fare is $634.

Airlines have announced transatlantic trips at under $200, to begin Feb. 1.

Tax Changes Wanted To Offset U.S. Move

OTTAWA (CP) — One Liberal backbencher invoked Eric Kierans and another advocated retaliation Thursday as the Commons discussed Canadian reaction to U.S. economic policies.

Hugh Faulkner (L-Peterborough) supported what he called the most eloquent plea of Mr. Kierans, former Liberal minister, that the government stop tax discrimination against the manufacturing sector—hit most by the U.S. measures—in deference to resource industries.

Robert Kaplan (L-Don Valley) said the government's tax change bill would have to be revised if U.S. intentions are "what they appear to be" in changing U.S.-Canadian economic relations.

If the U.S. was going to treat Canada as a resource depot, Canada would have to revise its tax laws to stimulate manufacturing, exports and employment in a way that had never been necessary or desirable before.

Their comments came on second-reading debate on the government's tax change bill.

DEFEAT AMENDMENT

A Conservative amendment calling the bill inadequate to deal with the country's economic problems was voted down 92 to 56. All Liberals present were opposed and all other parties voted in favor.

As the government moved toward critical decisions in what External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday could be a fundamental reassessment of Canada's relationship with the United States, nearly all debate focussed on that issue.

Mr. Kaplan said Canada and the U.S. had been involved in an economic partnership of great benefit to both countries.

But if U.S. was changing its economic policy towards Canada, then this country would have to retaliate with measures similar to the U.S. 10-per-cent import surtax, its export-promoting and buy-American tax incentives.

REJECTS NDP IDEA

He rejected suggestions by New Democratic Leader David Lewis that Canada impose an export surtax on resources needed by the U.S., saying the U.S. wasn't really all that dependent on Canadian resources.

Middle East oil was cheaper than Canadian oil, natural gas could be replaced with oil, and nickel was being produced in other countries.

In a recent Commons finance committee meeting, Mr. Kaplan suggested Canada put a special tax on dividends and interest flowing to U.S. citizens from Canadian investments.

Mr. Faulkner agreed the U.S. had gone too far in trying to repair its balance-of-payments deficit and was threatening world trade structures.

But he said it was to the credit of the Canadian government that it had not attempted to retaliate. Rather, he said, Canada should bargain with the U.S. and other countries from strength, on the basis of its good record on free trade, and "not make all the concessions."

CITES KIERANS

Mr. Faulkner then invoked Mr. Kierans's theories on both the need for co-operation among labor, business, and government and on the contention that resource exports favored by tax concessions aren't enough for real Canadian development.

He agreed with Wednesday's report of the Science Council of Canada that Canadian manufacturing, on the other hand, is not growing rapidly enough.

The government should push for more processing of resource exports domestically, Mr. Faulkner said, and give priority to making a statement on foreign ownership of resources and industry.

Ran Harding (NDP-Kootenay West) also praised Mr. Kierans. The former minister had shown how unjustly the income tax system favored big mineral-fuels business, he said.

POLICE IDENTIFY DU PONT VICTIMS

MONTREAL (CP) — A 27-year-old man is being held on a coroner's warrant following the shotgun slayings Thursday of three employees of Du Pont of Canada Ltd. in their downtown offices.

Police saw Vincent Joseph Meloche, dismissed the day before as a sales representative with the company, gave himself up shortly after the shootings and will be held pending a coroner's inquest.

The three victims were senior personnel in the company's sales division. Autopsies have been completed on two of the bodies but a police spokesman declined to give results.

The victims, each shot in the head, were identified as J. C. Cawley, 48, sales manager of the film division, Brian Mathews, 61, sales office supervisor, and Gordon Langlois, 42, eastern district sales manager.

DEMANDS A JOB

Mr. Cawley was to be presented with a gold pin at a special luncheon later in the day for 25 years of service with the company.

Plans Scrapped

VANCOUVER (CP)—Plans for a 42-storey hotel at the southeast corner of Georgia and Seymour in the downtown area have been scrapped and the land has been sold to British Columbia Telephone Co. by its Hong Kong owners, it was announced here.

Ho-Chapman, managing director of the Investment Syndicate, said in a telephone interview from Hong Kong that difficulties in obtaining financing and management for the hotel forced the group to scrub the venture.

Police said a man entered the Du Pont offices at 555 Dorchester Boulevard, near the busy intersection of Beaver Hall Hill at 10:20 a.m. He interrupted a meeting between Mr. Cawley and Mr. Mathews and demanded employment.

The man pulled out a .410-calibre shotgun when they refused, police said, and shot them in the head.

He then went through a passageway leading to Du Pont offices in an adjoining building, and shot Mr. Langlois.

Heavily-armed police moved in on the buildings and ordered them evacuated. They also blocked off part of Dorchester Boulevard.

Believing the man to be still inside, police asked office workers to leave or to lock themselves in their offices or a washroom.

Lieut. Larry Lewis of the Montreal police said a man was arrested about 10 blocks from the scene after he telephoned police about 11 a.m. saying he wanted to give himself up.

Mr. Cawley, a native of Halleybury, Ont., is survived by his wife, a son and two daughters.

Mr. Mathews, from Shawbridge, Que., is survived by his wife and two sons.

Mr. Langlois, born in Ottawa in 1929, was also a 25-year employee at Du Pont. He is survived by his wife and one daughter.

Carpet-Makers Believe Recession Period Over

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Carpet Institute was told Thursday that the carpet-making industry is finally coming out of its first recession in at least a decade.

Albert Davidson, president of the institute, said during recent months there have been encouraging signs of renewed growth in the economy following 1 1/2 years of recession for Canadian carpet producers.

"There is no doubt that Canada is on a rising curve of production which could give us a gross national product about five per cent higher than last year in terms of constant dollars," he said.

Mr. Davidson of Brantford, Ont., president of Harding Carpets Ltd., told the institute's annual meeting that consumer buying has been renewed "so far as our industry is concerned."

BIGGER USE

"This was particularly evident during the second quarter when consumer buying increased by 4 1/2 per cent. Housing starts are continuing to rise, as is general construction activity, and these are two indices of business activity which have a bearing on our industry's prospects."

Mr. Davidson said per capita consumption of carpets in Canada has increased more than half a yard in 1961 to nearly two yards in 1971.

The official government price index shows that between 1961 and 1971 — an inflationary period — carpets have actually been reduced in price, he added.

A development in domestic or international trade might not have an immediate effect on the carpet business, he said, but it could become a factor.

There is no reason why the industry's 1971 sales level of about 40 million square yards of carpeting cannot become 70 million five years from now, said Mr. Davidson.

HIGH TAX RATE

He criticized Canada's high rate of taxation and government legislation, part of which, he said, could result in a larger number of strikes than now occur.

However, he believes world bankers will solve the monetary crisis and "hopefully, the U.S. will not continue to do what it is doing."

"The other nations will help work out some basis to enable the U.S. to balance its payments," he said.

Atkinson suggested Canadian exporters try to sell in Canadian dollars to avoid exchange fluctuations and possibly some other hazards of exporting.

The corporation was set up two years ago by the federal government and is designed to help exporters.

"My point is that the whole Canadian economy now suffers too much from strikes and the proposed changes in the Canadian Labor Code can only contribute to a further loss of production time through work stoppages."

And, said Mr. Davidson, "it is my belief that the high cost of taxation has become an intolerable drag on Canadian growth."

"We now have reached a stage in our affairs where the task of the three levels of government is the equivalent of 46 per cent of the GNP. By comparison, the figure for the U.S. is calculated at less than 30 per cent."

"We are getting into the position where we must spend as much time finding ways to relieve the tax burden as we do finding ways to increase our sales and improve our efficiency."

Nov. 1 Walkout Deadline Set By Ladysmith Ambulancemen

LADYSMITH — Members of the Ladysmith Volunteer Ambulance Drivers' Association will terminate services Nov. 1 unless they are provided with new accommodations.

Mayor Kay Grouhel said today the 10-member association's decision is "regrettable but it is virtually impossible to have their new quarters ready by the deadline they have set."

She said a walkout would "just have to rest on the men's conscience."

Mayor Grouhel said council has alternatives in mind but she is not going to discuss them yet.

The association first notified council of the walkout threat early in September. At that time they were advised plans for a combined fire department and ambulance building were being drawn up.

PULLED BACK

Three weeks later they submitted their resignations to the town office but shortly after a member of executive requested them back.

The association has now placed an advertisement in the Ladysmith-Chemainus Chronicle advising residents that effective Nov. 1, it no longer will operate the ambulance service.

Mayor Grouhel said there has been discussion of new ambulance quarters off and on for the past year.

She said preliminary drawings and sketches have been prepared for the joint $90,000 facilities and hopefully construction will start before the end of the year. Ambulance accommodations are to be built first, she said.

ONE ROOM

Ambulance headquarters are now a room in the back of the Ladysmith fire hall. The town has one ambulance.

"I admit the quarters are small and they do need better facilities but we just can't do everything overnight," the mayor said. "We can't do all the capital projects as rapidly as I would like them done. They have to be budgeted for."

"Every attempt is being made to start the building as soon as possible. It is regrettable but if the men wish to resign they will just have to act as they see fit."

Mrs. Grouhel said the association has refused to meet with Ald. Pat O'Brien, chairman of the ambulance and fire department committees, to discuss the blueprints.

Alan Gilroy, captain of the drivers' association, refused to comment on the controversy.

Guard Never Informed About Ton of Dynamite

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) — A security guard watching over construction company equipment was unaware that a ton of dynamite was stored at the site until after it was stolen, a police spokesman said Thursday.

About 2,300 pounds of dynamite, owned by Dawson Construction Co., was stolen Sunday night or Monday morning from powder magazines on the Upper Levels Highway in this municipality.

The police spokesman said a guard hired to watch the site had not been warned that dynamite was stored there.

"If he didn't know it was there, then he wouldn't bother to check it on his rounds," he said.

The thieves apparently smashed their way into the locked magazines with a truck.

A spokesman for Seikirk Security Guard Service Ltd. said his company had held a security contract with the construction company until Oct. 1 at 1:30 a.m., when another security company took over the job. The theft was discovered more than two days later.

There have been no arrests.

SERVICEMEN DONATE RECORD $32,000

Servicemen in the Greater Victoria area have set a record by contributing $32,000 to this year's United Appeal campaign.

This is $4,000 more than the amount collected in 1970 and 182 per cent of this year's $17,500 target for the military.

Campaign chairman for the armed forces' section, Lt. Cdr. Frank Allwood reports that about 3,600 personnel contributed.

Strike Threatened To Get Port Action

VANCOUVER (CP) — Longshoremen in the port of Vancouver will threaten strike action in contract negotiations next spring in a bid to get financial commitments for port development, union president Lou Kaufman said Thursday.

He said the union demand is necessary to save jobs by building the port.

"This is an emergency," he said. "We can't wait around another two years for the port to get rolling."

Mr. Kaufman said he felt Seattle, Vancouver's major competitor, was siphoning off cargo that rightfully belonged to Vancouver.

He said he wanted all levels of government to become involved in harbor development.

"I don't know how much is required. We're not economists. Management and the government should know that."

He said he explained the union position to Delmer Taylor, acting chairman of the National Harbors Board, on Wednesday.

Mr. Kaufman said he felt

Seattle, Vancouver's major competitor, was siphoning off

Drug Battle 'Takes Time' Says Brothers

Education Minister Donald Brothers said Thursday critics of the government's drug abuse committee must realize it takes time to develop effective anti-drug policies and

"We're just starting off in British Columbia to attack the thing, and we're the first province in Canada to do this," Brothers said in an interview.

Brothers is chairman of the committee which also includes Health Minister Ralph Lofmark, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson, deputy provincial secretary Laurie Wallace and deputy travel industry minister Ron Worley.

The education minister said the committee's first priority is an education campaign now being conducted in all news media.

He said this will continue well into 1972 but refused to place any cost estimate on the advertising.

Other committee programs include plans for in-school presentations about drug use.

Brothers said he hopes the first of several teams of informed people and former drug users will be visiting schools before Christmas.

Resignation Regretted

He said he regretted the resignation of Saanich police Sgt. Bill Chisholm from the committee, Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis charged Tuesday Chisholm resigned because he was being used as a "political pawn."

Brothers said: "It doesn't help to have people come out with statements that it's just a political ruse." But he praised Curtis for speedily making Chisholm available to the committee.

Chisholm's departure, Brothers said, will delay progress on the in-school program, because the Saanich policeman had become an expert in the field.

The B.C. Medical Association Wednesday passed a resolution calling on the committee to outline its programs, particularly regarding the treatment and rehabilitation of heroin addicts.

Brothers said rehabilitation programs will be developed later as will anti-drinking campaigns and programs designed to counter the abuse of prescribed drugs.

He suggested the BCMA contact Lofmark on the question of rehabilitation for heroin addicts.

Other committee programs, Brothers said, include a call for proposals for an anti-drug film. The committee will decide who makes the film before December. Brothers said it is unlikely the film will be in production before 1972.

The committee intends to survey work being done by private agencies in drug education and rehabilitation and set up advisory committees throughout B.C. to inform the government of specific community problems.

River, Museum director Bristol Foster said there is only a false front to the longhouse, which was designed by Tony Hunt at Thunderbird Park, but later there will be an entire house as a walk-in exhibit. It is part of a display of contemporary Indian art on the museum's third floor, made possible through a $49,500 grant from the provincial First Citizens' Fund. (Bill Halkett Photo.)

Kick in the Face Costs Man $50

A city man was fined $50 today by Judge William Ostler for kicking a cab driver in the face when he was refused a ride.

It was "just stupidity," James W. Warrington, 3012 North Park, said when asked to explain his actions by Ostler.

Warrington pleaded guilty to common assault.

Court was told that cab driver, Les Brown, 221 Sims, refused to pick up Warrington at his home Sept. 29 because he was too drunk.

Working Prisoners To Get $1.75 Rate

Selected prisoners at William Head minimum security establishment will soon be paid a federal minimum wage of $1.75 an hour to do construction work on prison grounds.

The announcement was made Thursday in the Commons by Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer who was outlining a new federal policy of rehabilitation instead of punishment.

Goyer said the reforms, which will include family visits, prison committees and even income tax, are aimed at the 80 per cent or more of prisoners who can return to normal life.

Gamel Milner, superintendent of William Head, said today he has not yet been given specific instructions on the new program but he has been aware of the steps leading up to it.

REWARD FOR WORK

He said only prisoners "who are reasonably skilled and willing to go to work" will be selected for the job, which he expects will be the construction of new vocational shops.

If a prisoner does not put full effort into it he will be taken off the job, Milner said. "It will just be like working out in the world. If he works he is awarded accordingly."

Currently, prisoners get paid between 55 and 55 cents a day for normal duties. Those who are completely uncooperative don't get paid at all.

Milner said prison committees have been in operation for some time and recently their sizes have been expanded. Those committees, he said, make recommendations on behalf of the 140 prisoners there on ways to improve rehabilitation.

In the Commons, Goyer said visits by the prisoner's family, "under conditions which are to comply more fully with the requirements for privacy," are one aspect of the program. (For the past three years selected prisoners at William Head have been allowed to make weekend visits to their families.)

Goyer said that establishment of elected prisoner committees for co-operation with prison officials has already been set in motion across Canada.

The new wage "will make it possible for them to pay for their room and board at the institution, to pay for their clothing, to save money for their eventual release from prison, to pay their taxes and to be eligible for payments under unemployment insurance and workmen's compensation acts," Mr. Goyer said.

"Once released, an inmate may be less inclined to rob a bank. On the contrary, he will already have a bank account."

"He may even, as in the case of other workers, receive unemployment insurance payments during the period required for finding some employment."

CESSNAS TO CROSS TWICE DAILY

Air Link Set With Abbotsford

Twice-daily service between the Inner Harbor and the middle Fraser Valley will be launched immediately with light amphibious aircraft of Abbotsford Air Services Ltd.

The company, operating out of Abbotsford airport, was granted a charter to fly the regular service on a demand basis in addition to its charter work.

A Cessna 180 with retractable wheels will connect the Inner Harbor with the hard surface airport, serving Fraser Valley communities 30-60 miles from Vancouver.

The company said there is a demand by lawyers, real estate agents and municipal officials particularly for fast transportation to the capital.

TWO SERVICES NOW

Under terms of its licence, the company would not be required to make flights if there are no passengers, but initially it is intended to leave Abbotsford at about 8:35 a.m. and 4 p.m., returning almost immediately.

Additional flights may be added as required by volume of traffic.

Two float-equipped flying services now operate out of the Inner Harbor. Air West and Victoria Flying Services both connect with Vancouver Harbor, some flights directly, some by way of Duncan and the Gulf Islands.

A spokesman for the firm said businessmen wanting to visit Victoria for a few hours must now waste an hour driving to Vancouver airport and a half-hour driving from Victoria airport downtown, repeating the performance en route home.

$16 FARE

Total travelling time from Abbotsford airport to the Inner Harbor is 45 minutes, he said. Fare will be about $16 each way.

Permission was granted by the air transport committee of the Canadian Transport Commission.

The commission rejected the original application April

15, 1970, and upheld its decision Oct. 9, 1970. But Abbotsford Air appealed to the transport minister and the minister asked the commission to review the case.

In its decision, the commission noted the minister had said that Abbotsford Air would not hurt existing carriers since Abbotsford was sufficiently far from Vancouver as not to affect Vancouver-Victoria traffic. Abbotsford is 50 miles southeast of Vancouver.

City to Remain Visiting Point for Liners

Canadian Pacific's marine section.

West Tours had earlier planned to omit the Victoria call and use only Vancouver.

Sam Lane, president of the Greater Victoria Visitors and Convention Bureau, said the Seattle company's reasons for considering boycotting Victoria had been mainly based on "logistics."

Lane said the company would be using slower ships in 1972 that would need eight hours for the crossings between the mainland and Victoria.

They had also been concerned about their passengers' have good connections by planes and Canadian Pacific boats.

Negotiations also ironed out problems connected with the victualling and refuelling of the cruise ships.

The bureau and Jack Thomas, manager of the Vancouver Island Coast Lines, had acted as intermediaries in the dispute between Canadian Pacific and the Seattle company.

Lane said that Harry Tyson, manager of CP's marine section, "deserved all the accolades."

He said CP had gone out of its way to co-operate.

Last year, Lane said, West Tours conducted a total of 45 cruises from Victoria to Alaska. Had they withdrawn Victoria from their schedule Lane estimated this would have meant a loss of about $150,000 in tourist revenue.

"There were a total of 11,000 tourists on the cruise ships this year. They stay here two days before the ship goes to Alaska and another two on her return."

"This gave you an idea of how much would be lost to the tourist industry if the Victoria stop had been cancelled."

Fuel Tanks Intact As Barge Lifted

The federal fisheries' laboratory barge Vellela, her top deck swept away and laboratory deck badly mangled, was towed to Victoria this afternoon after being sunk in Active Pass for 23 days.

—Posing a threat to pollution while she lay on the bottom, the Vellela's fuel tanks had a capacity of 10,000 gallons.

Lt.-Cmdr. Art Rowe, whose navy diver helped beach her at Campbell Bay in Active Pass Thursday, said no tanks were damaged.

Only traces of oil from the barge's bilges had escaped into the pass.

The sinking occurred Sept. 15 when the Vellela was being towed from Port Alberni to Nanaimo by the navy tug St. Anthony.

DEADHEAD DAMAGE

The barge began taking water northeast of Boundary Pass and the St. Anthony tried to get her to shallow water before she was lost.

She was in 90 feet of water off Campbell Bay on Mayne Island when she sank.

Rowe said today she had apparently been holed by a deadhead.

"We found a hole that had split a beam six inches by two."

Rowe said his men had been working on her since Sunday, helping to bring her ashore. They worked all night Thursday to patch her hull sufficiently to get her off the beach today.

They pumped the diesel oil from her tanks into a bailing tank aboard the YFP 250.

Although the ecology was not damaged to any degree this time, Rowe says the exercise gave his men a good idea of what could be expected had there been an oil spill.

DECK LOST

The Vellela, operated by the Fisheries biological station at Nanaimo, had her top deck, with its accommodation for 14 scientists completely swept away when she sank. The lower deck of aluminum and steel contained the laboratories.

GIRL TREATED AFTER BUMP FROM CRUISER

A four-year-old city girl was treated in hospital for minor bumps and bruises Thursday afternoon, following an altercation with a city police patrol car.

Wendy Powell, 394 Oswegen, according to a police accident investigation report, "darted from behind" a parked car and collided with the police cruiser driven by Const. Albert Cave, 1675 Ash Rd.

The incident occurred on Michigan, just west of Menzies.

According to police, Wendy suffered minor shock and a bump on the forehead and was released immediately after treatment by the hospital.

IN THE FLURRY touched off by the Committee on Youth report, some over-hasty judgments were rendered. One of these branded the inquiry a half-million dollar mistake.

After trudging through the report, I find that estimate hard to accept.

It could turn out that the sum was well spent in digging out potentially useful information.

The three inquiry commissions — one over 30 and the other two edging toward that rather arbitrary cutoff point between generations — seem to have done a pretty thorough job. Nor did they content themselves with testing attitudes and "collective views from the hip-folk."

If they hearkened to the voice of Toronto's Hochdale, they also heard from the Girl Guides of Canada. My impression is that they at least tried to deal faithfully in their sampling and reporting of young Canadian opinions.

And if at times their assessments go swooping off in visionary flight, they frequently make sense. Certainly many points made repeatedly in this long, comprehensive and detailed study deserve thoughtful weighing.

"Very often," the commissioners point out, "it is assumed that the society young persons enter today is the same as that of their parents when they were young. This is not the case."

"The situation has changed rapidly in the last few years. As a group, young people appear to be more conscious of their own identity, are more vocal, and much more in evidence in public life. Their increased numbers, more advanced schooling, and specific claims for goods and services

"Those who wait resignedly or complacently for a return to things as they were may find this conclusion chilling. But the fact of change remains, whatever the fate of an oft-pricked report. To the extent that an adult population can or should remodel its outlook on youth, we'd be wise to do so."

I find it deeply unfortunate, however, that the commission chose to conclude its excellent presentation on drug use with an emotional and peculiarly illogical decision.

"The medical evidence on cannabis and its derivatives is far from conclusive," they state. "The most reliable studies show it is not physically addictive. Questions about its use by persons with real or inipient psychological problems may be valid but the majority would appear able to use cannabis moderately without harmful effect."

Since the medical evidence on marijuana and hashish is far from conclusive, a pitch for legal cultivation, sale, possession and use of the same must be considered damagingly premature.

What the commissioners should have done, after damning both government and the medical profession for failure to have evidence available on which sound judgment could be based, was approved controlled research but withhold any recommendation.

Since they didn't do so, they leave themselves vulnerable to the charge of catering to cannabis users rather than dealing objectively with a situation.

I think the same suspicion attaches when on most unconvincing grounds, they brand sea, army and air cadet programs anachronistic and recommend that they be denied federal funds.

In fact, the chief weakness of the report is that while admitting wide diversity among the young in Canada, it tends to slight its own finding.

Some boys join cadet corps — others prefer drop-in centres — and conceivably, still others enjoy both. A youth program that failed to take youth's varied inclinations into account wouldn't get off the ground.

However, while I don't see the report as a fully acceptable blueprint for federal action, I think it deserves attention as the most enlightening testament on modern youth to come my way. It merits wide distribution, and unflinching reading.

'No Doubt at All' on Mayor Standing for Re-Election

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock has decided he will "definitely" seek re-election this December.

Earlier this week Haddock seemed to be hinting he might not stand again for the mayoralty, but he said today there's "no doubt at all" he will be a candidate.

"I saw my doctor Wednesday and he's given me a clean bill of health," Haddock said. "I feel fine."

He added his doctor must have been convinced his patient was fit again because "he called me to suggest a game of golf on Saturday. I didn't call him."

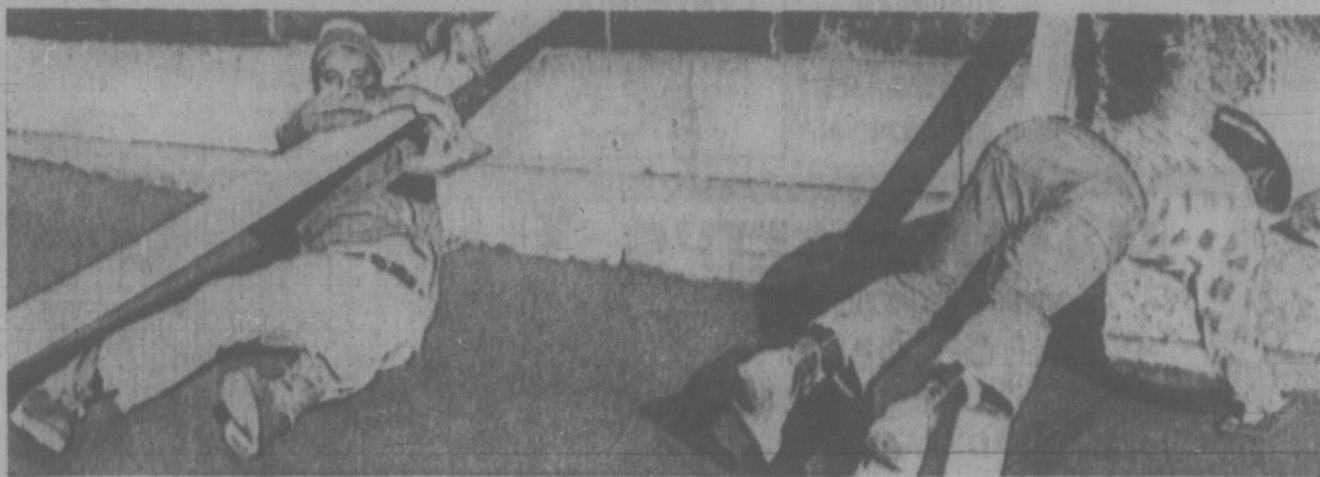

Haddock returned to civic hall duties Monday from a long convalescence following a heart attack he suffered July 13.

Don't Dam Fraser, Says Study

A federal study released Thursday appears to rule out the possibility that Ottawa would ever approve the proposed Moran Dam on the Fraser River.

Highlights of the study are warnings that the dam will halve the Fraser's salmon fisheries and is unnecessary for flood control purposes.

The study contradicts statements made two weeks ago by Recreation and Conservation Minister Ken Kiernan who said Moran Dam may have to be built to prevent Fraser Valley flooding.

The B.C. Energy Board also is studying the proposed dam as part of an over-all survey of provincial power needs to 1985. Its report is scheduled for release in February, 1972.

Nuclear Power Ruled Out

Critics of the Moran proposal already has decided to build the dam because the energy board was not permitted to study possibilities of thermal power generation from sources such as coal and natural gas.

Premier Bennett has ruled out nuclear power as long as he is in office, so critics of Moran say he has set his vision on hydroelectricity.

Premier Bennett had no direct comment on the report except to repeat his statement that he would approve the Moran Dam only if fisheries would not be hurt by it. See earlier story on Page 21.

Federal Environment Minister Jack Davis has called the 700 to 800-foot dam proposal a "monstrosity" which would halve the value of the Fraser's salmon fisheries.

The report, prepared by technical staff of the federal fisheries service and the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission, says the dam would cause a total yearly loss of $24 million to salmon fisheries.

RUSSIANS RETALIATE; 18 OUSTED

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union today ordered 18 British diplomats and businessmen expelled or banned from returning to Soviet soil in retaliation for Britain's ouster of 103 Soviet officials, an embassy spokesman said.

The British ambassador told the Soviet officials he regarded their action as unjustified.

The list and other details of the meeting were relayed to the British foreign office in London.

Visits of high-ranking Soviet officials to England have been cancelled.

Grains Bill Faces Tuesday Deadline

OTTAWA (CP) — The stormy career of the Prairie farm income stabilization bill appears to be nearing its end, with survival depending on a change of heart by either the government or opposition parties.

Thursday, Liberal House Leader Allan Rock set Tuesday as the deadline for a solution to the Commons deadlock. If opposition parties do not agree to pass the bill next week, the government will drop it.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said at a news conference today that his party is prepared to let the bill come to a quick vote provided the legislation be enacted in two stages.

The first stage would be immediate enactment of the clauses dealing with payments to western farmers in compensation for replacement of existing plants.

Other parts of the bill would be proclaimed only after further study and possible amendment. This stage of enactment would be by Commons resolution after debate.

UNDER CONSIDERATION
Mr. Stanfield said his proposal has been put before a meeting of party House leaders and is being considered by the other three parties.

Mr. Stanfield said Manpower Minister Otto Lang, responsible for the Canadian wheat board, has shown little disposition to be helpful or conciliatory.

He said he hopes MacEachen would bring some common sense to government deliberations on the Conservative suggestion.

Mr. Stanfield said that if the government is interested only in withdrawal of the en-

Nixon to Retain Power Over Wage-Price Board

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. Treasury Secretary John Connally said today the government will retain final authority over wage and price decisions made by the new boards created by President Nixon to oversee economic controls when the wage-price freeze ends.

At a nationwide radio and television news conference,

Connally appealed to labor to co-operate with Nixon's "Phase II" operations announced Thursday night. He said the fight against inflation would be "extremely difficult" without labor's participation.

But on the sticky point of whether the 15-member pay board composed equally of representatives of labor, management and the public, will have final authority over wage decisions, Connally said it would not.

The government is going to continue to be in the picture," he said.

Labor has withheld its endorsement of Nixon's program on that very point. It wants the pay board to have total authority over what size pay increases will be allowed U.S. workers during the period the government will seek to cut the rate of inflation in half, down to two to three per cent by the end of 1972.

Connally said he couldn't be sure when the 10-per-cent surcharge on imports might be lifted.

"We want our balance of payments improved. The only way they can be improved, in a sense, is to the detriment of other nations. Other nations have to give up something in order for us to gain something," he said.

FRAMEWORK

Nixon laid out the board framework of his program before the American people, but he passed along to the new citizens' board the key decisions on the size of permissible wage and price increases.

It may be as long as five weeks before workers, businessmen and consumers get answers to the questions that concern them most: "How much will wages increase?" and "What will happen to prices?"

The boards have until Nov. 13 — when the wage-price freeze expires — to lay down guidelines for pay and price increases. Administration officials said the membership of the boards would be announced in a few days.

UNTIL NOV. 13

The wage-price freeze, as previously announced, remains in effect until Nov. 13. "The wage-price freeze has been remarkably successful," Nixon said. "The primary credit for the success of this first step on the fight against rising prices belongs to you, it belongs to the American people. It is you who have shown a willingness to co-operate in the campaign against inflation."

Nixon said profits would not be controlled except for "windfall" profits resulting

BENNETT INVITES KOSYGIN TO VICTORIA

Premier Bennett said Thursday he will invite Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin to come to Victoria as part of his visit to Canada this month.

Bennett said the invitation will be made through proper diplomatic channels and that he hopes Kosygin will accept his invitation.

Kosygin will be in Vancouver on Oct. 22 and 23.

More U.K. Troops Sent to Ireland

LONDON (CP) — After a six-hour meeting with Ulster's Premier Brian Faulkner Thursday, British Prime Minister Edward Heath announced that three new battalions will join the 12,000 British troops already stationed in Ulster.

NEWS BRIEFS

Rock Hurlled

AMSTERDAM (UPI) — An unidentified man today smashed the windshield of Japanese Emperor Hirohito's car with an object, probably a rock, as the emperor and empress drove through the streets of Amsterdam.

Firing Blasted

REGINA (CP) — Marjorie Gordon was unjustly and unlawfully dismissed from her teaching position at Moonbeam high school, Don Keith, a Saskatchewan Teachers' Federation officer, said today. Mrs. Gordon was fired Monday for "gross misconduct" in allowing her students to read a copy of the Georgia Straight, a Vancouver underground newspaper.

SOME POLICE FACE DISCIPLINARY ACTION

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Tom Campbell today said there would be disciplinary action against individual police officers guilty of using excessive force in the Gea town riot last Aug. 1.

But he said the first move is up to Attorney-General Leslie Peterson.

"He can do something himself or he can pass it on to us (Vancouver Police Commission) to act," the mayor said. Peterson was not immediately available for comment.

The attorney general made no firm comment on future disciplinary action Thursday when he released the report on the riot.

prepared by Mr. Justice Thomas Dohm of the British Columbia Supreme Court.

Campbell said the police commission did not want to take any action against individual officers until the Dohm report was published.

He said it was also hampered by the civil actions brought against individual officers by citizens claiming damages.

But now, he said, depending on whether the attorney-general acted himself, the commission and Chief John Fisk could go ahead and take whatever disciplinary action is necessary.

"It could involve suspension, demotion loss of pay or dismissal," the mayor said.

Fishing Loss $71 Million

Annual loss of potential salmon production would be $71 million. Fisheries above and below the dam would be impaired, and the report says there is no precedent for passing salmon over a dam as high as the Moran would be.

Fraser River sockeye accounted for 46 per cent of the total B.C. sockeye catch between 1952-69, says the report. About 44 per cent of the Fraser's sockeye catch originates above the dam's site, 25 miles north of Lillooet in the Moran Canyon.

Hatcheries and artificial spawning channels could not compensate for salmon losses, the report continues, because sockeye spend one year in a lake adjacent to spawning channels before migrating to sea.

Most of the salmon rearing capacity of the Fraser is upstream from Moran Canyon with many lakes capable of major increases in Sockeye stock.

Truck Line for Fish

The only way to get migrating salmon beyond the reservoir to the sea would be to capture the fish before entering the dam and truck or pipe them to the river below.

This, says the report, would be too expensive. The dam would halt siltation of the Fraser delta, ruining the system of marshes which house waterfowl.

A total of 10 million tons of sediment a year flows into Georgia Strait from the Fraser. Removal of sediment will cause erosion in the Delta, says the report.

Flood control can be more cheaply obtained from a dyke system downstream from Moran Canyon with the help of flood storage reservoir. The report says this could be done at an estimated cost of $4.9 million.

A dyking system without necessary flood storage facilities is being built for $40 million with a capacity to withstand water levels two feet higher than the levels observed in the 1948 and 1954 floods.

Nemetz Hearings Likely Next Week

Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz is expected to open hearings next week to settle the nine-month dispute between B.C. Hydro and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 258.

The Appeal Court judge agreed to resume his role as arbitrator Thursday after an appeal by Premier Bennett, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson and Labor Minister James Chabot. He had withdrawn in August because of his wife's illness.

More than 7,000 electrical workers were back on the job today after their four-day strike, as well as 1,300 other B.C. Hydro employees who did not go to work for three days because of picketing.

NO PROBLEMS

During the four-day strike, electrical and gas service was maintained by non-union supervisors. No serious problems were reported. Picketing stopped his service in Victoria Tuesday.

The IBEW said it had received assurances from Chabot that "no legal action would be taken against members and officers of the union and other B.C. Federation of Labor affiliates."

Chabot had branded the four-day strike illegal because the cabinet had passed a back-to-work order last summer during an 11-day strike.

Part of the settlement of the 11-day strike was acceptance by both sides of Nemetz as arbitrator. After Nemetz withdrew, both sides could not agree on a replacement to make a binding decision on the dispute.

Dockers Returning

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dock union leader Harry Bridges has ordered 15,000 West Coast longshoremen back to work Saturday in compliance with a court order obtained after President Nixon invoked the Taft-Hartley Act.

A strike by 45,000 dock workers in East Coast and most Gulf ports entered its second week today and spread Thursday to Puerto Rico.

Also going into its second week today was a soft-coal strike by more than 100,000 members of the United Mine Workers as negotiations continued in Washington, D.C.

The 100-day West Coast strike, the longest walkout on Pacific docks in history, has cost an estimated $1.70 billion since it began July 1. Losses in the East Coast and Gulf walkouts are estimated at $17 million daily.

No Price Curbs For Canada ... Yet

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson said today it would not be appropriate to impose wage and price controls in Canada "at the present time."

He told reporters, however, that such controls could become necessary if inflation became worse.

He said he is worried by the recent trend of price increases.

The minister was commenting mainly on President Nixon's economic statement Thursday night.

In the Commons, Prime Minister Trudeau said the provinces would be consulted if controls were to be imposed.

He was replying to Marcel Lambert, Conservative financial spokesman, who said controls similar to those in the U.S. may have to be considered.

A federal-provincial economic conference is scheduled for Ottawa Dec. 8-9.

Mr. Trudeau reiterated Thursday's statement by Revenue Minister Herb Gray that the government is willing to negotiate with the United States on changes in the U.S.-Canada auto pact, but not as a bargaining counter to win removal of the U.S. import surcharge.

He also repeated the government's stand that talks with the U.S. on energy resources cannot go on now.

AND NOW SEA TRAVEL WAR

BRUSSELS (AP) — With airlines cutting transatlantic fares sharply, steamship lines got the green light today to join the competition.

The Atlantic Passenger Steamship Conference announced it would "grant to lines greater flexibility in meeting outside competition."

Richard Duffy, secretary-general of the conference, told a reporter he would "not be surprised" to see some new rates announced soon.

What could become a rate war was set off when the Cunard line, which runs the Queen Elizabeth 2, withdrew from the conference and announced new low fares. Duffy would not say how great the new "flexibility" would be, but it was enough to prevent any further withdrawals among the 13 lines remaining in the conference.

Cunard announced 12-day tourist-class trips, round trip, Southampton to New York, for $362. The price will go into effect Oct. 22. The present minimum official roundtrip fare is $634.

Airlines have announced transatlantic trips at under $200, to begin Feb. 1.

U.S. Station Appeals To Canadian Viewers

PEMBINA, N.D. (CP) — The television station in this northern North Dakota community is appealing to its Canadian viewers in Manitoba to protest proposed Canadian government legislation dealing with advertising on United States stations.

Manager of station KCND-TV, G. O. Johnson, has appealed directly to viewers to write their federal MPs to protest legislation recommended by the Canadian Radio-Television Commission.

The legislation would amend the income tax act to prohibit Canadian advertisers from continuing to exempt advertising on U.S. stations as a business expense.

In his pleas to viewers Monday night, Johnson said the CRTC recommendation would put the U.S. station out of business "the minute it came into effect."

Johnson, who said 90 per cent of the station's advertising revenue comes from Canadian advertisers, said under such legislation "any advertiser who cannot claim his advertising expense simply won't advertise on the channel."

UPCOMING SPECIAL

Aesop's Fables Still Relevant

The run-of-the-mill social jester who hears a joke and repeats it a couple of times at parties before he forgets the punch line has to envy the prowess of a Greek ex-slave whose yarns are still being spun after more than 2500 years.

Bill Cosby adds yet another dimension to the fables of Aesop, one of the greatest narrators the world has ever known, when he portrays him for television in Aesop's Fables, animation and live-action special with music, Sunday, Oct. 31 on CBS.

History has it that Aesop, a freedman, came to the court of King Croesus in Asia Minor some time during the sixth century B.C. and remained to build a reputation for himself among scholars as a wit and as a narrator of tales about animals.

"Aesop was not a court jester type of fellow," says Cosby of his current alter ego, "even though he got a lot of laughs in his day."

As a matter of fact, the fable became a powerful political weapon in Greece during the time of the tyrants, when free speech was the least dangerous, and the most fatal. It was in this field that Aesop developed the ancient beast tale and its primitive wisdom, which was an effective camouflage for the naked truth.

"Aesop wasn't a writer," continued Cosby, who is a collector of the fables in both their ancient and modern forms.

"He told the stories in narrative forms, and they were written down by others through the years."

"Everybody talks about 'relevancy' today," Cosby pointed out. "Here's a guy who is as relevant today as he was 2500 years ago."

Fables, with their brief moral punch lines, like The Fox and the Grapes, The Hare and The Tortoise, The Lion and The Mouse tell as much about human nature in 1971 as they did in 500 B.C."

Former Victoria Actress Hosts Show

Diana Ricardo, well-known Vancouver broadcaster, newspaper columnist and actress will host a new late night talk show beginning Friday, at 11:50 p.m. on Channel 2.

Diana Ricardo and Friends, an hour-long show to be telecast in color each Friday night, will be produced at the Bayside Room of the Bayshore Inn Hotel in Vancouver. The program will focus mainly on arts and entertainment and will feature local personalities and visiting celebrities with guest entertainers.

Diana's guests on the first show, Oct. 8, are Bruno Gerussi who is starring in the CBC-TV Vancouver series, The Beachcombers now in production; singer-guitarist Pat Rose, co-host of CBC Vancouver's contribution to the network series, Drop-In; and John Margulies and Bill Adler, producers of The Television Environment, an exhibition which opens at the Vancouver Art Gallery Oct. 6.

Music for the show will be provided by a show trio. The announcer is Bob Switzer. Producer is Doug Gillingham.

Diana Ricardo was born in Victoria. Her theatrical career began at age five when she performed in school and Little Theatre productions. Her first professional role was

new talk show

with Victoria's Starlight Theatre. She later had major roles with Totem Theatre, Avon Theatre, Vanguard Theatre and Metro Theatre in Vancouver. Her most recent theatrical work was with Metro in Goodbye Charlie, Alfie and Fallen Angels.

Diana's entry into radio was with the CBC at the age of 18. She started with boy's roles due to her flexible vocal range. Many other roles followed including the sustaining character of Jean in the series, Dominic Andrews G.P.

which was written by David Brock.

Her first TV work, also with CBC, was a play called Russian Roulette produced by Frank Goodship. She says, "the only notable part about it was that Jon Winther played a Danish farmer in the thing and great problems were extant to get him on the other side of the camera since he was also producing for CBC in those days."

Diana has performed in innumerable TV shows both in Vancouver and Toronto and has made many radio and TV commercials.

Her first TV series, Down Centre began in 1968. It was a showcase for the arts in Vancouver and was produced by John Thorne. The program continued in 1970 as The Diana Ricardo Show with Diana and Pat Munro and was produced by Keith Christie. Aside from her regular series, Diana Ricardo acted as a commentator on the CBC coverage of the Royal Visit last summer and was co-commentator with Ted Reynolds on this year's live coverage of the P.N.E. Parade. She also did a profile of Dr. David Suzuki which Keith Christie used to start his second series of Suzuki On Science this year.

Her newspaper career began with the Vancouver Sun in October, 1964. Six months later she became fashion editor, a position she still holds. Last year she published her first book, Should I Wear Clothes To A Wedding? published by MacLellan and Stewart. It hit the best-seller lists in Canada.

A musician as well, Diana studied piano for 10 years. When she has time, Diana likes to design clothes, sew, read and swim. She is married to photographer Clive Lance and has a 16-year-old son.

Show Features Bassoon in Solo

George Zukerman is a Canadian musician with incredible felicity in an instrument rarely heard in solo — the bassoon.

On Sunday, on 2 at 5 p.m., CBC Television's Music To See will present Zukerman, assisted by Norman Tobias, Nicholas Kilbourne, Wayland Mosher and Montreal pianist Andre Savoie, in a bassoon recital in color.

One does not think of the bassoon as a solo instrument in the ordinary course of events. There is little music for it, comparatively speaking, and its tone, even in the hands of experienced players, tends to be coarse in texture and weak in volume — not so with Zukerman, however!

Selections for this television recital range from the baroque to contemporary. They are Phoenix (Corrette), Sonata in F Major (Galliard), Song About Words (Mendelssohn), Trio No. 7 (Kummer), Concerto in F Major (Weber) and Scherzo Humoresque (Prokofiev).

The program was produced in Toronto by John Coulson.

NEW YORK (AP) — Les Brown, television-radio editor selection of a show for television of Variety, says in a new book that a major ingredient in the sion is the fear of making the wrong choice.

The right choice is a show or a schedule that attracts more viewers than the competition — and hence commands higher prices for commercials, he says in Television: The Business Behind the Box.

The right choice also is a show that offends no one and attracts no complaints.

Few executives are willing to risk their upward mobility or the company's fortunes on anything new or experimental. One network vice-president told Brown, "We don't pick the shows we think will have the best chance of becoming popular. To be honest, we're attracted to those that seem to have the least chance of failing."

This fear also is corporate.

He writes: "Since television is a highly conspicuous business, and always under the watch of politicians, it does not benefit a broadcast company to look for controversy."

Early copies of the book already are circulating among network executives and the reaction is one of unhappiness.

It deals in the personalities who occupy the executive suites, and Brown — with flashes of humor — records the adroitness, absurdities, fears and peccadilloes of those who wage the ratings war.

Brown charges that the TV system "produces broadcasters who are one part conscience and nine parts profit motive."

Brown, who has been with the trade weekly Variety for 16 years, said in an interview:

"The point of the book and the thing I most wanted to get off my chest — and I have nothing against profit and the free enterprise system — is that profit seems to be the over-riding consideration in broadcasting. They are dealing with the minds and morality and fabric of this country and it calls for some conscience and not just for the mad pursuit of money."

School Buses May Get Television

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — Television may be installed on buses which transport pupils to school from remote areas in Nevada.

John Gamble, deputy state superintendent of public instruction, said a program is being developed by which buses might be equipped with education television of video tapes for viewing by the children.

'WOULD MOM BE PROUD'

Powerful Man Behind the Tube

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — One of the most influential men in your living room is man you've never seen and probably never will, but his judgment determines 12 hours of prime time viewing and some 30 movies a year on your video tube.

His name is Sid Sheinberg.

His title: President, Universal Television.

Sheinberg is 35 years old. He was born in Corpus Christi, Texas. He is a graduate of Columbia University Law School.

The man is bright, tough and responsible for Ironside, Night Gallery, The Man and The City, The Bold Ones, Marcus Welby, M.D., Sarge and a flock of other new series.

What about this man who makes these shows which are watched by uncounted millions? How does he handle his responsibility?

"I share the responsibility with the networks and the creative people who work on the shows," Sheinberg said. "I hope viewers will enjoy, learn or be inspired by our shows."

"I'm an idealist about television. Not a cynic. I believe a man has to live with himself before he can live with others."

It may sound like Pollyanna, but Sheinberg is sincere.

How, then, does he measure the value of his television shows and their contents?

"I consider whether my mother would like the shows and if she would be proud that I had something to do with them. You see, I don't live with the millions of viewers, but with my wife and children. That is the criteria."

Sheinberg is an exponent of the "long form" shows — the hour, 90-minute and two-hour formats for series and movies-for-television.

This year his organization produces only a single situation comedy, Partners, starring Don Adams.

"There is no formula for success in TV programs," he said. "Whatever success Universal has had (compared to other major studios) starts at the top of the company. We've always had the support of Lew Wasserman and other executives."

 HOLLYWOOD (UPD) — drinking set — a champion of

 But with the advent of Jim

 Manhattan sophisticate.
 Truth be, Ernie has been out-hicked.
 During lunch the other day Ernie reckoned as how he'd stay put, coming to Hollywood as infrequently as possible to star in television specials and cut new recordings.
 "That's why I'm here now," Ernie said, "I'm doing a show

2-WAY SYSTEM

British Invade Cable TV Land

NEW YORK (UPI) — The British Red Coats who landed at Dennis Port on Cape Cod last year and said they were going to revolutionize the American cable television industry seem to have dug in for a long economic battle.

They claim they're getting ready to fan out and introduce their two-way system with a potential of 100 channels to the U.S. Midwest and the Pacific Coast next year.

The invaders work for Rediffusion International, Ltd., an English company that has been in the closed circuit communications business since 1929. Leghorn Corp., a Boston CATV firm, is co-operating in the Dennis Port pilot project with Rediffusion's Dial-A-Program system.

The British system is revolutionary in comparison with conventional American CATV systems. It also is compatible with them. The Dennis Port Rediffusion Network is plugged into one channel of a conventional CATV system on Cape Cod owned by Leghorn. It sells at the same price, about $6 a month, as a regular system and so far has picked up about 200 customers.

At present, Rediffusion provides Cape Cod customers with service on only 16 channels, but manager Herbert Goodwin said this could be stepped up to 36 or even 100 channels if programs were available. In addition to the regular television programs picked up, Rediffusion provides a weather watch from Logan Airport and a local shopping news service.

The multiplicity of channels means Rediffusion also could provide local play-by-play sports coverage, official municipal broadcasts, two-way educational programs with students talking to teachers or computers from their homes. The two-way system also could enable students at home to dial a class, tune in on lectures or the information desk of a library to get information.

"It is a flexible open system making two-way television as adaptable to community needs at low cost as the telephone is for the voice alone," Goodwin said. "We have proved the feasibility of the hardware, now it's time to expand the system and let programming develop to take full advantage of its virtually limitless possibilities."

The system is adaptable to existing CATV systems and to all home receivers, Goodwin said. Installation is simple, requiring mainly a dial selector and a signal inverter packed in a plastic case that sits atop the home receiver or it can be used as a remote tuning device.

Another potential advantage of this two-way system is that it can be used for home protection when the family is away. A small rented television camera installed in the home can be dialled at regular intervals by the police or residential patrol agency for a first hand check on what's going on inside the house.

Rediffusion International wants to sell the system as a supplement to existing American CATV services rather than compete with them. The British firm is not seeking local CATV franchises, only to sell its new method to existing franchise holders.

TV Profiles Show Victoria, Regina

Two major Canadian cities — Victoria and Regina — will be the subjects of in-depth profiles when CBC Television repeats two episodes of its popular Centennial series, A City Story during Thanksgiving week.

First of the two, A City Story — Victoria, is a fast-paced glimpse of B.C.'s beautiful capital, with its two unique atmospheres, one conceived for tourism and the other a special, jealously-guarded phenomena. It will be telecast Tuesday on 2 at 10 a.m. and the second episode, focusing on the lively history and development of Regina, will be seen Thursday, at 10 a.m.

The half-hour programs will show the commerce of the two cities, their new developments in building and industry, their artistic and recreational life, and something of their spirit and significance in 1967.

BBC Creates Watchdog Body

LONDON (AP) — The BBC announced Sunday the creation of an independent watchdog commission to rule on complaints from the public about radio and television broadcasts.

The three-man commission, headed by former Lord Chief Justice Parker, will begin work in January in offices outside the BBC with a staff appointed by the commissioners.

The commission was set up to handle complaints which the BBC does not answer to the satisfaction of the complainants.

'WORTHWHILE PROJECT'

Carrie Snodgrass in NBC Drama

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Little more than a year ago a young actress named Carrie Snodgrass was being touted as the best natural actress to make a film in decades.

She was nominated for an academy award for Diary of a Mad Housewife and created a stir when she refused to show up for the presentation ceremonies.

Thereafter it was as if Carrie and plunged through an open manhole. She simply disappeared.

Carrie has surfaced again. She has returned from her hideaway in the Santa Cruz mountains near San Francisco where she lives simply and privately with her boyfriend.

At 25 Carrie is an excellent actress for the cameras, but she refuses to put on an act when she's on her own time.

We met at Universal studios where Carrie was dressed in a raggedy blouse and denims which had seen better days. She wore no makeup and her hair would not have drawn the envy of any Phyllis Diller.

Sincerity is Carrie's strong suit. Sincerity and candor.

"I didn't appear for the Academy Awards because I would have been dressed to suit myself. Not what might have been expected of me," she said. "So I saved some people embarrassment."

Why hasn't Carrie worked since Diary?

"I chose not to accept another picture," she explained. "I'd rather not work than do something I don't believe in."

Some actors can do that and I'm not criticizing them. It's just not for me."

Carrie left boyfriend and hideaway to star in the Impatient Heart which will be seen Oct. 8 as a world premiere for NBC.

It marks the first time that a single actress — and certainly one with as little exposure as Carrie — has been asked to carry the burden of a movie-for-television. Usually the casts are laden with several familiar names and faces. Carrie is the only recognizable name in the cast.

"I think this is a worthwhile project," Carrie said. "I did it because it's honest and deals with social problems."

"Today people don't want to see stories of returning GIs from Vietnam all strung out on drugs. Maybe they're right."

Carrie was anxious to let everyone know her absence from the screen was not due to difficulties or disagreements with studios or independent producers.

"I don't embark on anything I can't follow through with," she said. "So it was simply a matter of waiting for the right thing. Maybe I've been very involved with myself. My confidence is growing."

"There aren't many scripts written for 25-year-old girls today. But with the passing of time my work will be better and more roles will be coming along. If not..." Carrie shrugged her shoulders. "For the time being it's good to be young and alive."

Godfrey Goes the Special Route

NEW YORK (AP) — It's coming to an end — that long, long time when Arthur Godfrey dominated the airwaves, made headlines with every move, and probably earned more money for CBS than any other performer.

Godfrey is quitting CBS radio next April 30, on the 7th anniversary of Arthur Godfrey Time. He has been a performer more than 50 years.

He will devote his energies now to four television specials a year, his 2,500-acre farm in Virginia and to urging ecological reforms.

LOSES CONTROL

"I've been thinking about quitting for a year or so," said Godfrey, who at 68 still has a full head of red hair and the booming foghorn voice that pleased his listeners and terrorized network vice-presidents.

Godfrey, who thrived long after the collapse of network radio as an entertainment force, finally fell victim to changes in radio formats.

He said: "In the last year or so the affiliated stations became more independent and less controlled as to where they were putting my program. My show is for the late morning or early afternoon, but some stations were putting it on at five in the morning or six at night."

"They claimed that when they have a rock format, a program like mine loses their audiences. So I figure what the hell is the use of all this work."

In the 1950s Godfrey was virtually a one-man network. For six years, until 1958, his show was broadcast daily for 1½ hours over both CBS television and radio. In addition, two other television shows were on once a week — Arthur Godfrey and His Friends and Talent Scouts.

It was estimated that he earned $22 million a year for CBS and kept 10 per cent of it. He had great influence over his audience.

One oldtimer mused: "So Arthur Godfrey's leaving."

That means fear will no longer stalk the halls at CBS. He's still a big power and a big money-maker.

At one time they had a vice-president who did nothing but look after Godfrey."

ERA EVENTFUL

It was an era marked by his abrupt dismissal of some of his most popular performers — Julius LaRosa the singer, was fired right on the air in 1953 — his buzzing of the control tower at the Teterboro, N.J., airport, a big operation and a triumph over lung cancer.

Was he a wilful, unpredictable tyrant who turned on the charm only before the camera and microphone? Or a warm, generous, misunderstood perfectionist? It depends on whom you ask, and the debate continues to this day.

Godfrey stayed at the top for years. He was the first to track the product when he did a commercial. Advertising men grew pale, but sales soared.

He was, and is, keenly interested in aviation, and qualified this summer to fly the Boeing 747 and DC-10 jumbo jets.

But in 1954 he was grounded for six months by the Civil Aeronautics Administration on charges that he buzzed the Teterboro tower. He said he didn't do it deliberately, although he was displeased with his takeoff instructions.

He recently made a record about it that sold a million copies.
